NATIONS PAYING TO BE INCLUDED IN DEBTS TALKS

Include Britain, Finland, Italy, Lithuania and Czechoslovakia.

ECONOMIC SITUATION WILL BE DISCUSSED

Chamberlain States Accord Must Involve Banning of Reich Reparations.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

President-elect Roosevelt yesterday expanded the scope of his debt invitation, recently transmitted to Great Britain through Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, to include all the countries that made their December 15 debt payments to the United States. Great Britain, Italy, Czechoslovakia, Lithuania, Finland and Latvia have been invited to appear here shortly after inauguration to take up severally with the new Administration the final revision of their debt principal to the United States.

Great Britain and Italy are planning to take advantage of the invitation as soon after March 4 as possible. Premier Mussolini evidently will be right on the heels of the British delegation, since yesterday reports were cabled from Rome that an Italian delegation will sail from Naples on February 22 to take up with the new Administration the definite settlement of Italy's $2,000,000,000 war debt to this country.

Two Bases of Accord.

In the absence of any official acknowledgment from the British foreign office of the receipt of the Roosevelt invitation, transmitted through the office of Secretary Stimson last week, the British Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain, in a speech at Leeds, laid down the bases of the accord which the British delegation will try to draw up at the debt conference here in March. The British debt principle will be based on the two following points: First, that any settlement arrived at be final and definitive, and secondly, that the debt settlement take into formal consideration the end of all German reparations payments to any country.

France, Belgium and Poland, the three chief defaulting nations who refused to meet their obligations to this county, are thus shut out from the debt revision program now in view and this exclusion will be maintained as long as payment from these countries has not been made.

The formal statement from the Department of State which embodied this announcement yesterday placed Victim Painfully Hurt as He Tosses Son's Hobby Into Furnace.

A youngster's hobby—saving and piecing together old moving picture film—yesterday sent his father to Casualty Hospital, brought extensive damage to the interior of his home at 707 Second street northwest, and excited residents of the neighborhood for more than a block around.

Thomas Flannery, 14, a student at St. Aloysius School, was unaware of the havoc wrought by his pastime until he arrived home from school shortly after 4:30 p. m.

Approaching the house, Thomas stopped in dismay. The front cellar windows were shattered, the door stood ajar and a small crowd of

$41,000 GIFTS TO 16 LEFT BY MISS KIRK

Will Is Probated While Her Death in Auto Explosion Remains Mystery.

Leonardtown, Md., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Bequests totaling $41,000 were left to 16 persons in the will of Miss Ida Kirk, 76-year-old Chaptico philanthropist, which was probated in Orphans Court here today.

Miss Kirk was fatally injured January 7 when an explosion occurred under the automobile as she was driving to Washington.

Three of the bequests were for $5,000 each and the others were for $2,000 each. Mrs. Elva Gibson, wife of the Rev. Joseph P. Gibson, rector of Christ Episcopal Church at Chaptico, was given $5,000. Mrs. Gibson was in the car with Miss Kirk when the explosion occurred. Miss Kirk had spent the previous night at the Gibson home.

States Attorney John H. T. Briscoe was given $5,000 and was named executor of the will. Briscoe has been prominent in the investigation of the explosion that caused Miss Kirk's death.

The third gift of $5,000 was to the Ladies' Aid Society of Christ Church, the money to be used for "cemetery purposes."

Nigel Dixon, who was Miss Kirk's ward and had lived at her home much of his life, was not given a bequest. Miss Kirk wrote that he had been provided for during her lifetime.

Meeting Here Acts To Halt Latin War

Diplomats Are Hurriedly Called by Stimson as Conflict Threatens.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Stimson conferred last night with diplomatic representatives of world powers signatory to the Kellogg pact to consider the threatened war between Peru and Colombia over possession of the Amazon River port of Leticia.

Among the diplomats present at the hurriedly called conference were the ambassadors of Japan, France and England. The Italian and German ambassadors were also reported as being invited to the meeting which was held at Mr. Stimson's home. The conference was similar to that called by the secretary about two years ago when Russian troops in China threatened complications.

Colombia sent a joint note Monday to the signers of the Kellogg pact asking that they call upon Peru not to violate the treaty at Leticia, toward which a Colombian flotilla is steaming to recapture the town from Peruvian Nationals. The port was ceded to Colombia by Peru under a treaty signed in 1922.

PECORA APPOINTED PROBER FOR SENATE

Will Investigate Practices of Stock Exchange and Insull Debacle.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate Banking Committee yesterday selected Ferdinand Pecora, New York attorney, to conduct its inquiry into stock exchange practices and the collapse of the Insull utility empire.

A former first assistant district attorney at New York, Pecora has had extensive experience in prosecuting bucket shop operators and making other investigations of a financial nature. He was employed as counsel by the Senate committee primarily for the purpose of conducting its long-prepared investigation of the Insull case, on which agents of the committee have been concentrating for months.

Pecora succeeds Irving Ben Cooper, former assistant to Samuel Seabury in the New York City investigations, who resigned after a single week as committee counsel with the charge that Chairman Norbeck would not give him a "free hand."

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Ferdinand Pecora, appointed today as counsel for the Senate subcommittee on banking's investigation of the stock market, was for several years chief assistant district attorney of New York County.

After serving on the district attorney's staff for ten years, Pecora re-

Consul at Prague Dies in Hotel Leap

Raymond Davis Kills Self After Cheerful Tea Party With Wife.

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—After a ceerful afternoon tea party with his wife and friends from the legation and consulate and after dining with Mrs. Davis at the Hotel Alcron, where they lived, Raymond Davis, United States Consul, killed himself tonight by leaping from the second floor to the lobby of the hotel.

The body landed in the hall near a table where Mrs. Davis was sitting. Mrs. Davis collapsed and had to be carried to her room. Friends were at a loss to explain the reason for the suicide.

Raymond Davis was born at Portland, Me., in 1883, and was graduated from Bowdoin College in 1905, and from Yale Forestry School in 1907. He served with the Serbian Relief Commission, entered the consular service in 1921 and served at Aden, Paris, Lyon and Rosario, Argentina, before going to Czechoslovakia last March.

SILVER MONEY BILLS LOST BY SENATE'S VOTE

Movement for Inflation Is Believed Balked for Session.

GLASS BANKING ACT DEBATE IS RESUMED

Chamber Will Meet Earlier Today and Night Meeting Is Threatened.

(Associated Press.)

After eleven hours of gruelling debate which left two moves for currency inflation flattened under a 3 to 1 vote, the Senate adjourned at 10 o'clock last night with a final vote on the Glass banking reform bill still to come.

The currency proposals offered by Democratic liberals were tabled, 56 to 18, on motion of Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, author of the bank measure, who said they had no relation to the pending legislation and if adopted would ruin the country. They would have provided for free coinage of silver and purchase of silver bullion.

Debate then turned to the bill, and after several important amendments were accepted by the bill's sponsors and approved by the Senate, adjournment was taken until 11 a. m. today, an hour earlier than the usual meeting hour.

Night Session Threat.

Glass said he would hold the Senate in another night session today if the bill has not passed before then.

Amendments adopted last night would provide for the divorcement of national banks and security affiliates in five years instead of three as originally provided in the bill.

Another amendment approved, touching on the same section, would allow national banks to underwrite special as well as general obligations of States and political subdivisions thereof, including bonds of municipal improvement projects.

The vote on the two silver projects was interpreted as ending any possibility of inflation legislation before the session ends. A majority vote would be necessary now to bring them back before the Senate.

Long Accuses Glass.

Wheeler said the votes of some senators from silver States helped table the free coinage rider, which was of-

Tear Gas Quells Ohio Hunger Riot

300 Storm Relief Office in Cleveland; Many Are Injured.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Three hundred persons stormed a branch office of the Associated Charities here today, and ten squads of police were called to quell the disturbance.

Injuries were confined to fainting from tear gas and minor bruises.

The police were called after speechmakers in front of the offices were reported by charities supervisors to have urged the crowd to action.

The disturbance ended after an hour of trouble. Twenty-five employes of the charities branch were treated in the offices after being affected by tear gas.

"Send an officer real quick; there's a strange man in my bathtub!"

Imagine the surprise of Second Precinct police when a woman shouted that request over the telephone yesterday afternoon. But the statement of Mrs. Clara Scott, 1347 L street northwest, was verified when they went to her home.

Fully clothed, but without any water turned on, the man was found in the bathtub all right. Apparently bewildered by the entrance of the law, the man announced there was some mistake—he must have got into the wrong bathtub.

Agreeing that he had made a mistake, the police took him to the station, where he was booked on a charge of intoxication. He identified himself as Russell B. Keyser, 33, 1217 K street northwest.

NAVY ACTS TO MOVE NEW STATION WJSV

Officers Say Vital Military Functions Jeopardized by Its Proximity.

By ROBERT D. HEINL.

If the Navy has anything to say in the matter it looks as if the new 10,000-watt station of WJSV, erected a few months ago on Mount Vernon highway, half way between here and Alexandria, said by the Columbia Broadcasting System to represent an investment of upward of $100,000, will have to be junked. The Navy claims because of interference from WJSV's transmitter that important radio experiments at the Naval Research Laboratory are at a standstill. The laboratory is just across the Potomac River and about a mile away from WJSV.

That there would likely be a clash between these stations was foretold in The Washington Post a month or so ago, but it was not until yesterday that the Federal Radio Commission, which granted WJSV permission to erect the station, took official notice of the situation. At the request of the Navy Department a hearing before the full commission has been set for February 15.

Just who is to blame for the blunder in allowing a powerful commercial broadcasting station to be built almost within the shadow of what is described as the Government's most essential radio experimental laboratory last night caused a considerable difference of opinion. The bulk of the criticism seemed to be on the Radio Commission.

"At the Naval Research Laboratory they are conducting secret experiments which have to do directly with the national defense," a radio expert said. "How under the sun Radio Commission engineers, if they went into the matter at all, could have permitted a powerful station like that to locate just across the river is a mystery to me. They surely must have been asleep at the switch."

It was the contention at the Radio Commission that the Navy Depart-

2 Destroyers in Maneuvers Collide 300 Miles at Sea

Two Vessels Escorting Crippled Dahlgren After Pacific Crash With Tarbell, Which Is Only Slightly Damaged; None Killed.

San Diego, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Two destroyers of the U. S. Navy collided 300 miles at sea today, and one, the Dahlgren, required an escort to port.

Messages received at Eleventh Naval District headquarters said no one was injured in the accident. The Tarbell, the other destroyer, apparently was able to proceed toward the Hawaiian Islands for fleet concentration.

The destroyers Lawrence and Sands of the group bound for Honolulu were assigned to furnish a convoy for the damaged destroyer. The Jacob Jones and Tattnell were dispatched from San Diego Bay to relieve the Lawrence and Sands in convoy duty so that they could return to the fleet and carry out their part in a naval problem.

San Pedro, Calif., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Naval staff officers expressed confidence tonight that the Destroyer Dahlgren, badly damaged in a collision with the destroyer Tarbell off San Diego today, would reach port safely with its 105 officers and men.

Although details were lacking in the brief official report wirelessed to the fleet flagship the Pennsylvania, the officers said the Dahlgren undoubtedly was shipping water. Assignment of two vessels as a convoy, they said, indicated the destroyer was "in a bad way."

The report said no one was killed when the destroyers came together in maneuvers on their way to Hawaii for next month's Pacific war games. No mention was made of injured.

The nature of the Dahlgren's damage was not described, but the report said the Tarbell had suffered only a bent propeller guard and was proceeding with the fleet.

HOUSE UPHOLDS VETO OF DEFICIENCY BILL; D. C. AID FUND WAITS

Chamber Vote to Override Lost, 193 to 158.

NEW ACTION IS DUE SOON

Meanwhile, Capital Is Without Money to Relieve Poor.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

President Hoover yesterday vetoed the $31,000,000 deficiency bill, and within an hour the House had sustained the veto. The vote was 193 to 158, falling short of the two-thirds majority necessary to override the veto.

The President based his veto on what he pronounced the "unconstitutionality" of provisions for the "legislative determination of individual tax returns." He submitted a lengthy opinion by the Attorney General upholding his contention.

The bill carries the $625,000 appropriation for relief here, and as a result of the veto the District Emergency Relief Bureau not only is left without funds but also is several thousand dollars "in the red."

Promises Reconsideration.

Apprised of the seriousness of the situation, House Deocratic Leader Rainey promised to expedite reconsideration of the measure. House Appropriations Chairman Byrns was less optimistic.

Rainey said he saw no reason why the House Appropriations Committee could not meet today, meet veto requirements by striking the McKellar tax refund provision from the bill, and resubmit the measure to the House at once. Chairman Byrns, while withholding comment pending consultation with his committee, saw prospect of delay.

Meanwhile, Commissioner Luther H. Reichelderfer intimated dispensing relief can not continue beyond this week unless Congress reappropriates the $625,000 at once. District Auditor Daniel J. Donovan said he knew of no way the District Government can make sufficient funds available by transfer from other local appropriations. Director Leroy A. Halbert of the Emergency Relief Bureau said he would continue relief

Fire of President Is Directed at Tax Refund.

SCORES PLAN OF M'KELLAR

Avers Proposal for Joint Group Is Not Constitutional.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Characterizing the proposed new method of handling tax refunds as a patently unconstitutional encroachment upon administrative authority, President Hoover yesterday vetoed the $31,000,000 first deficiency bill, the only appropriation measure thus far enacted in the present session.

The veto was required, the President said in his message to the House, because of a provision under which all tax refunds in excess of $20,000 would be invalid until approved by the Joint Committee on Taxation.

The message pointed out, first, that tax refunds are an administrative function and, second, that even if they could be regarded as a legislative function, it would be unconstitutional to delegate congressional authority in the matter to a joint committee of the two Houses. If refunds are a legislative function, they must be handled as legislation, by both houses. If they are an administrative function, they are the province of the President and his appointed officers.

Cognizant of Discussion.

"I recognize that refunds of taxes overpaid present a subject of constant discussion," the President's message said, "and that there is a natural desire for assurance that such refunds are correctly made. Such an assurance, I am sure, would be a relief to administrative officers having to deal with this difficult subject.

"I would suggest, however, that if Congress deems the system provided by existing laws should be reinforced, it should be accomplished through the creation of additional auditing machinery and not by Congress undertaking executive and administrative functions."

The tax refund provision in the bill was presented by Senator Kenneth D. McKellar, of Tennessee, who has been an avowed critic of the Treasury and Bureau of Internal Revenue for many years. In its original form, the amendment would have required committee approval of all refunds or abatements over $5,000. As amended in the House, the minimum was fixed at $20,000.

Opinion of Mitchell.

With his veto, the President transmitted a voluminous opinion of Attorney General William D. Mitchell on the constitutional law involved. This document traced the history of

Louisiana Tornado Injures 20 Persons

30 Homes Destroyed and Three Victims Hurled Hundreds of Feet.

Maurepas, La., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—A tornado swept through this section late today injuring a score of persons, several seriously, destroying about 30 homes, and snapping hundreds of trees off several feet from the ground.

Residents said the tornado struck first at Whitehall in Livingston parish, demolishing a number of houses, then passed through Maurepas and Killian, picking up some houses and unroofing others. The blow apparently spent its force within a 12-mile stretch 200 feet wide.

The most seriously injured were prof. R. J. Williams, 35; his wife, 32, and Irene Vicknair, 13. They were taken to a Baton Rouge hospital. The Williamses were injured when the wind lifted the house and catapulted it 300 feet into a swamp.

(Associated Press.)

Frank Nitto, better known as Frank Nitti, Chicago henchman of Al Capone, yesterday was given an income tax abatement by the Internal Revenue Bureau of $285,723. The abatement involved an overassessment of income tax penalties and interest which never had been paid.

The bureau summarily assessed a deficiency tax and penalties against the gangster, who recently had been released from the penitentiary, after they began to investigate his alleged failure to make income tax returns. The Board of Tax Appeals, acting on an appeal by Nitto for a redetermination, held that $244,618 of the

HOUSE PASSES ARMY APPROPRIATION BILL

Eliminates Longevity Pay of Officers; Sweat-Shop Provision Beaten.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

The budget-balancing House continued its program yesterday, adding millions to various War Department appropriations, but striking millions from the Army pay roll.

It passed the annual War Department appropriation bill carrying $348,895,000, the total of which included an increase of $2,500,000 for citizens military training camps and $573,000 for Organized Reserves.

What was added to the total of the bill was compensated for, so far as the budget balancers were concerned, with the reductions made in the pay of Army officers. This reduction was based on elimination of allowances for longevity of service.

But opponents of low salaries felt somewhat compensated by their victory over the so-called Collins' "sweat-shop" provision in the bill. This had been written in by Representative Ross Collins (Democrat), of Mississippi, chairman of the War Department appropriations subcommittee. The Collins amendment was designed to take from the age-old—age-old so far as national history goes—uniform factory in Philadelphia its uniform-making work and turn the job over to sweat-shop operators.

Representative Harry C. Ransley (Republican), of Pennsylvania, made a point of order against the Collins provision. The point was sustained.

Representative Joseph B. Shannon (Democrat), of Missouri, who has

CROP LOAN MEASURE SENT TO PRESIDENT

Hearings Will Begin Today on Domestic Allotment Proposal.

(Associated Press.)

Stamped with the final approval of House and Senate, a bill carrying $90,000,000 in Federal credit for the farmer was dispatched last night to the White House.

Only a flourish of President Hoover's pen remained to make it a law and sponsors of the legislation freely predicted the signature would be forthcoming.

Hailed by its friends as providing the only adequate source of credit for thousands of farmers, the bill would authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to lend a total of $90,000,000 for use in producing 1933 crops. As security, the Government would take a first lien on the crop.

Is Speedily Approved.

A similar measure was passed last year and the new bill simply reappropriates for 1933 a part of the same funds made available originally out of the Reconstruction Corporation treasury.

Within 24 hours after conferees agreed on a compromise bill it was approved at both ends of the Capitol. The Senate at first had voted to use the entire remaining balance estimated at $103,000,000 and the House had limited it to $75,000,000, but the conferees hit upon the $90,000,000 figure.

In the brief words of debate that preceded its acceptance in the Senate, marking completion of congressional action, Senator Smith (Democrat), South Carolina, its sponsor, hailed the bill as "aid for the 'one-horse' farmer."

Avoidance of Duplication.

He referred to the avoidance of duplication of effort with the regional Agricultural Credit Corporations.

Administration of the fund in the past was sharply criticized by Senator King (Democrat), Utah, who said, "during the past year a political organization has been administering the fund and it has not been in the interest of the farmer."

Under the measure as finally passed, the Secretary of Agriculture may require a borrower to cut his production by as much as 30 per cent. The Secretary is not compelled to make this requirement, however.

A provision incorporated at the instance of Western senators states that loans may be made for live stock feed in drought and storm-stricken areas, borrowers giving a first lien on the live stock. The amount that may be loaned for this purpose is limited to $1,000,000.

Hearings Begin Today.

While Congress was making this definite contribution to farm relief, the wheels of legislation ground slowly on other and bigger proposals designed to give the agriculturist better prices for what he produces and to ease his debt and mortgage worries.

Representatives of the leading farm organizations were invited to appear today for the opening hearings on the domestic allotment price-boosting bill passed by the House.

Members of the committee were inclined to hear proponents first and then listen to the testimony of the millers, packers and others who have indicated opposition.

Democratic House Caucus Is March 1

Rainey Discloses Plan to Start Organization Machinery Then.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Rainey, majority floor leader, yesterday told newspapermen that in all probability the Democratic organization caucus for the new House would be held here about March 1. Many incoming members plan to attend the inauguration of President-elect Roosevelt on March 4, and have expressed their desires for caucus near that time.

A speakership nominee, floor leader and other officers of the organization for the new House will be selected. As majority leader, Rainey has the power to call a caucus.

Rainey, McDuffie, of Alabama, the Democratic whip; Byrns, of Tennessee, chairman of the House appropriations Committee; O'Connor of New York; Rankin, of Mississippi, and Crosser, of Ohio, are the announced candidates to succeed Speaker Garner, who becomes Vice President on March 4.

U. S. School Loans Urged by Senator

Lewis Testifies They Are Needed to Avert Peril to National Welfare.

(Associated Press.)

Federal loans to aid education were urged before a Senate Banking Committee yesterday by a group of witnesses, headed by Senator Lewis (Democrat), Illinois, as necessary to avert serious consequences to the national welfare.

They appeared in behalf of the bill sponsored by Senator George (Democrat), Georgia, to authorize the Reconstruction Corporation to lend from its funds to local political subdivisions for maintenance and operation of school systems.

Unless something is done to keep schools open, Lewis said, "I am sorry to say you are opening the prospect of a new army of criminals," adding:

"The idle child will fall easily into the hands of the older, experienced criminal who knows how to guide these young."

amount assessed was not justified and ordered it wiped off the tax books.

The remainder of the abatement, amounting to $41,105, represented a portion of interest that had been assessed on the original deficiency which had to be taken from the total because of the decrease in the original amount.

The abatement was $157,808 for the deficiency assessed Nitto on his 1925 income, $66,207 on his 1926 income and $61,622 on his 1927 income.

There was nothing in the announcement to show how much tax and deficiency tax the Government had collected from Nitto.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES SUSTAINS DEFICIENCY VETO

operations on credit until advised to the contrary by the Commissioners.

The relief situation is this: When the President failed last week to sign the deficiency bill, the Emergency Relief Bureau withheld payment of some $40,000 in grocery and coal bills, in order to pay about $20,000 in wages. Included in this last amount were funds paid out to some 2,926 of the District's needy. The payments completely exhausted funds in hand, and left unpaid bills outstanding.

The Emergency Relief Bureau is taking care of approximately 6,500 families, with less than a bare-living wage scale average of $3.70. Director Halbert said new relief cases are coming in at the rate of from 75 to 100 a day.

Although it has been suggested up to 15 per cent of other appropriations might be transferred to the bureau, with the assent of budget officers, Maj. Donovan said even were this permissable, it would be "a mere drop in the bucket," and could not tide the bureau over a week.

In his veto message to Congress yesterday, President Hoover said he disapproved the bill "with great regret as the appropriations provided for relief and other purposes are urgently needed."

Passage Urged by Byrns.

Immediately following the reading of the message Representative Byrns took the floor. Pointing to the emergency nature of the local relief provision, he told how leaders hurried the bill through House and Senate to meet the District urgency. Brushing aside the Attorney General's contention that the tax refund provision is unconstitutional, he called on members to pass the bill immediately over the veto.

"Any delay will not rest at the door of Congress," he said, "and certainly not at the door of the House."

Republican members protested an immediate vote on the issue. Representative Mapes (Republican), Michigan, asked reading of the Attorney General's opinion. There was objection. He asked unanimous consent that the matter go over until today. This also was objected to. The regular order was called for, and members voted strictly on party lines, 193 to 158, for passage, far shy of the necessary two-thirds.

Funds Not Protested.

The irony of the situation is that the $625,000 for local relief, just one provision in the $31,000,000 bill, never has been protested. Yet the veto, aimed at the clause prohibiting any tax refunds over $20,000 without approval of the Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue, automatically kills every other provision in the measure.

"The situation now is just the same as if the bill never had been introduced," Representative Byrns commented following the House action. "It will have to be considered all over again in committee, passed on again by the House, sent again to the Senate and possibly again go to conference."

House Democratic Leader Rainey took a less pessimistic view of it. He said he thought the bill could go through all these congressional channels in the next two or three days.

May Be In Separate Bill.

Representative Byrns conceded that the local relief item might be submitted as a separate bill and passed on immediately, but declined to say whether he would sponsor such a move. It has also been suggested that the $625,000 might be provided in the District appropriations bill, but this might entail considerable delay, as two other appropriation bills will precede the local measure on the House calendar. The District bill is expected to provide an additional $625,000 for use in the last six months of 1933.

Called at his home last night, Maj. Donovan said the turn in events unquestionably had left local authorities in a "serious" predicament. He said positively no funds are available to pay salaries this Saturday to some 40 relief administration workers, and not a cent to pay the weekly pittances meted out to the needy.

Commissioner Reichelderfer said he could not predict whether made work would be stopped at once until he has conferred today with other members of the board and welfare officials. Two weeks ago, all made work was stopped when current relief funds gave out. When passage of the deficiency measure indicated the money soon would be forthcoming, made work was resumed again.

Committee Is Chosen.

Upon recommendation of Auditor Daniel J. Donovan and in line with recommendations of local welfare leaders, the Commissioners yesterday appointed a committee on work planning and job assignments of the District committee on employment.

Headed by Capt. Howard F. Clark, assistant engineer commissioner, the committee includes J. B. Gordon, director of sanitary engineering; Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways; Harold W. Baker, director of construction; Lieut. F. B. Butler, assistant to the director of public buildings and public parks; George S. Wilson, director of public welfare, and Mr. Donovan.

Duties of the committee are: To prepare a work plan for the calendar year, to assign applicants to jobs, to cooperate with the Emergency Relief Bureau and the District Cimmittee on Employment and to coordinate all matters relating to work relief, and to supervise that part of the paid personnel of the District employment committee having to do with work assignments.

Message of President Vetoing Deficiency Bill

The text of President Hoover's message, vetoing the deficiency appropriation bill, follows:

I disapprove of the bill with great regret, as the appropriations provided for relief and other purposes are urgently needed, and with the hope that the Congress may early amend the act.

Attached hereto is the opinion of the Attorney General, who has most carefully reviewed the subject.

The difficulty lies not alone in the unconstitutionality of the provisions for legislative determination of individual tax refunds, but the further fact that in the opinion of the Attorney General those provisions invalidate these appropriations themselves.

I recognize that refunds of taxes ovepaid present a subject of constant discussion and that there is a natural desire for assurance that such refunds are correctly made. Such an assurance would, I am sure, be a relief to administrative officers having to deal with this difficult subject. I would suggest, however, that if the Congress deems the system provided by existing laws should be reinforced, it should be accomplished through the creation of additional auditing machinery and not by Congress undertaking executive and administrative functions.

HERBERT HOOVER.

DEBTS TALKS WILL INCLUDE NATIONS MAKING PAYMENTS

further emphasis on the interrelation between the debt discussions and the general discussions of world economic problems.

Must Be Conditioned.

The exact language of the communique was as follows:

"This discussion must be concurren with and conditioned upon discussion of world economic problems."

The substantive interpretation of this statements was the ever-increasing role to be played in the forthcoming discussion by the "quid pro quo" policy in preference to the former "capacity to pay" basis. It was learned authoritatively yesterday that the Roosevelt discussions will bring into the debt picture for the first time the principle of reciprocal advantage. The old capacity-to-pay rule, upon which was predicated the debt agreements now existing, will continue to exist, but in a minor degree of importance, especially for such countries as Great Britain.

Preferential Tariff Drive.

Great Britain has recently embarked on a campaign of preferential tariffs for the empire, which has caused material losses to American export trade. On this point, therefore, an important agreement can be made which will serve to the mutual advantage of both countries at the Anglo-American debt conference. Similar opportunities for mutual exchanges of national advantages can be worked out as soon as the President-elect has announced his Secretary of State. Opportunities for cooperation in the Far East would immensely strengthen the force of the Hoover-Stimson doctrine of recognition, by which the President-elect will consider himself bound, and this could also be worked into the debt conversations.

An anomalous situation, however, has developed in the department by which Col. Stimson, President Hoover's first Cabinet member, virtually finds himself functioning as President-elect Roosevelt's Secretary of State. While he has the authority of expanding the Roosevelt invitation, as he did yesterday, he is nevertheless in the dark as to the exact plans of the new administration.

Result of Visits.

The expanding of the Roosevelt invitation to include four other nations came as a result of the recent visits made by their diplomatic representatives to the Department of State. The Italian Ambassador, Augusto Rosso, made his call on Monday, and the Lithuanian Minister, Bronius K. Baliutis, and the Czechoslovak Minister, Ferdinand Veverka, on Saturday. Under authority of the President-elect, these envoys were referred to the announcement already made "that this Government is prepared to enter with the British government upon a discussion of its debt and that this discussion must be concurrent with, and conditioned upon, discussion of world economic problems in which the two governments are mutually interested."

The formal statement from the State Department then declared:

"The State Department was authorized to say that President-elect Roosevelt will be glad to receive separately at Washington a representative or representatives of the several governments above mentioned for discussions having a similar scope and purpose. These discussions will take place after the British discussions and the order in which they will occur will be determined later. These three countries, with the British and Latvia making five, are all of the countries which have paid their installments and have made requests for a discussion of their debts.

Payment Is Seen.

When a stronger government has come into office in Paris, it is believed that the deferred payment of the French debt of $20,000,000 will then be met and France will at that time be invited to participate in the Roosevelt discussions. The same procedure will be followed when Belgian and Polish payment is made.

Cutting Refuses to Admit Tender of Cabinet Post

(Associated Press.)

Senator Bronson Cutting (Republican), New Mexico, yesterday told newspapermen that "of course any man would feel highly honored to be considered as a Cabinet possibility," but declined to intimate whether he had been tendered a Cabinet post by President-elect Roosevelt, or would accept one.

Cutting, who has been mentioned as choice to be next Secretary of the Interior, merely smiled and turned to other subjects when asked whether he would accept or had been offered such a position.

Suffers Nervous Collapse; Retains Lawyers to Seek Millions.

Philadelphia, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Facing three more months in the hospital, where she is being treated for a nervous breakdown, Mrs. Libby Holman Reynolds today retained two Philadelphia lawyers to wage a fight for a share in the estate of her late husband, Smith Reynolds.

That the former Broadway singer is undergoing special hospital treatment, following the birth of her son, was revealed by Mrs. Louisa Carpenter Jenney, of Wilmington, a close friend, who has been her constant companion since last summer when her husband, an heir to the Reynolds tobacco millions, was found fatally shot.

The lawyers retained by Mrs. Reynolds are John R. K. Scott and William T. Connor, in whose office Mrs. Jenney said that Mrs. Reynolds is receiving treatment other than maternity care.

SENATE BEER DELAY ANGERS DEMOCRATS

Harrison Warns of Action if Finance Committee Proves Dilatory.

(Associated Press.)

The 3.5 per cent beer and wine bill ran into a threat of delay yesterday which drew from Senate Democrats a warning that they would not tolerate any dilatory tactics.

Senator Harrison, ranking Democrat on the Senate Finance Committee, served notice that if there was any unreasonable delay in the committee's consideration of the bill there would be a move to bring the bill to the floor by a vote of the Senate.

Chairman Smoot was noncommittal about when the committee would be called together. Though he gave assurance that it would be "within a few days," he said he did not know whether a meeting could be held this week.

Repeal Move Impends.

With his beer bill tied up in the Finance Committee, Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, announced that he would move to call up in the Senate the pending resolution to repeal the eighteenth amendment as soon as the Senate has disposed of the pending Glass bank bill, expected by leaders within a day or two, and the Treasury-Postoffice appropriation bill.

The beer bill was sent to the Finance Committee Monday for study of its revenue features, after receiving the approval of the Judiciary Committee.

Secretary Mills testified before the House Ways and Means Committee that beer alone would raise from $125,000,000 to $150,000,000. Harrison said Mills would be asked to appear also before the Finance Committee.

Harrison's Threat.

Smoot announced that his committee would hold hearings on the measure, which foreshadowed the possibility of further delay, though Democratic members were expected to oppose any extended hearings. Smoot said he had a "number of applications" for hearings.

Pointing out that the bill was sent to the Finance Committee only for a study of its revenue angles, Harrison said it should receive "prompt consideration."

"If there is any disposition not to consider it reasonably early," he said, "there will be a motion to discharge the committee."

Senate Democrats are determined to bring the beer bill to a vote at this session of Congress, as it is one of the most important features in their party plans for raising revenue. They agreed to the unusual procedure of sending it to two committees, with the understanding that it would be given speedy consideration.

ment had been notified and since the fact that WJSV was putting up a new transmitter on the Mount Vernon highway was in all the newspapers, they should have known what was going on. The answer to this was that a routine notice, very vague in character, was sent to the Navy Department stating that a station was to be erected somewhere between Alexandria and Washington, but that the commission sent the notice to an officer who had nothing to do with the Research Laboratory.

First They Knew of It.

At any rate the first the Navy officers knew of it was when they saw the towers of WJSV beginning to sprout across the river. There was a tendency to blame Columbia officials for going ahead and "trying to bull the thing through" after they were notified that the new station would probably play havoc with the naval radio laboratories.

Replying to this, Harry C. Butcher, Columbia representative in charge of the station, said:

"We complied with every requirement of the Radio Commission legally and lawfully. Our investment down there is around $100,000, of which we would lose at least $75,000 if obliged to move. We could not, for instance, move the brick building which cost between $30,000 and $35,000. The towers cost approximately $10,000, having had to be set on 60 feet piling because of the swamp."

Value Is Questioned.

Commenting upon this a radio expert declared that as compared to Columbia's investment, which he said he didn't believe was anywhere near $100,000, because they are using a transmitter bought from WCAU, Philadelphia, there was an investment of several millions at the Naval Research Laboratory.

"There are about 60 radio engineers down there," he said, "and I think the value of the equipment is around $3,000,000. However, in this case it isn't a question of money value but of national defense. Right now war sparks are flying in the Far East. Short-wave radio communication and its perfection is a most vital factor in this situation. We must keep in touch with our fleet out there. Nobody outside of the Navy knows exactly what they are doing at the Naval Research Laboratory, that being one of the few branches of governmental work that is absolutely secret.

"Suffice it to say this work is so important they will not permit it to be interfered with by a commercial broadcasting station, regardless as to what amount of money has been invested or who is to blame for its location."

Grounds for Removal.

Nobody seemed to be able to lay his hands on it but several declared that there is a Federal statute which says that a radio station shall not be located at any place in which it will interfere with governmental activities. That being the case, though naval officials would not talk for publication, they seemed to be sure they had sufficient grounds to cause the removal of WJSV.

A question arose, once the Columbia Broadcasting System built the station with the sanction of the Federal Radio Commission, if Columbia would not have grounds for heavy damages against the Government.

Arlington is also only about a mile from WJSV, but whether or not they have experienced any interference there could not be learned. It is the Navy's key wireless station and directly or indirectly communicates with warships and naval stations in all parts of the world.

White House Pictures Made for Mrs. Hoover

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, with the aid of Government photographers, has had pictures made of every room and virtually every nook and corner of the White House.

Photographs of the interior of the Executive Mansion are rare, especially those taken of rearrangements made during the Coolidge and Hoover administrations, and those taken recently probably will not be made public generally.

Under Mrs. Hoover's direction, Mrs. Stark McMullen, one of her friends and aides, has made a voluminous card index of White House furniture and its individual history, and already has written one magazine article on antique "hunting" in the Executive Mansion.

Mrs. McMullen may publish a book on the same subject, and some of the pictures taken under Mrs. Hoover's direction may be lent as illustrations.

Prison Heads Urge Smeeman Release

Recommendation Is Made After Wife Tries to Commit Suicide.

Denver, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Executive clemency for Glenn Smeeman, prosperous Cleveland business man and Colorado convict, was recommended today by State prison officials soon after Smeeman's attorney announced the Ohio man's comely young wife had attempted suicide.

After a conference between Gov. Edwin C. Johnson, Roy Best, warden of the State penitentiary; Ralph Wann, secretary of the Colorado board of corrections, and Thomas A. Duke, president of the board, the recommendation was made to the governor.

Previously Neil Kimball, secretary to Gov. Johnson, said he had been informed that Mrs. Margaret Smeeman, 20, attempted suicide last Thursday.

FILM BLAST WRECKS HOME, BURNING MAN

neighbors stood about conversing in quiet tones.

Thomas pushed his way past the throng and into the house. A portion of the wall beside the basement steps was torn out and the kitchen floor curved upward as though pushed from beneath.

Returning to the street, the boy asked friends where his family was. Thomas was told his father had been injured in an explosion.

Just then, however, his mother, Mrs. Mary Flannery, arrived and told Thomas the following story:

A pile of old films was found by the lad's father, John J. Flannery, a carpenter.

Picking them up with an armful of trash, he went to the basement and threw everything in the furnace. A few moments later a resounding explosion startled the household. Mrs. Flannery, who was in the kitchen, was almost thrown from her feet by the concussion.

Mr. Flannery's cries brought Mathew McNally, a roomer. He found the man, his clothes a mass of flames, lying on the cellar floor. A bucket of water extinguished the blaze and McNally succeeded in dragging the injured man to the street. At the hospital it was found he suffered second degree burns to the face and arms.

The films, tightly compressed in a large roll, exploded as soon as the furnace door was closed. A cellar window was blown out and a hole was torn in the stairway wall. The kitchen floor all but buckled in half.

Thomas explained he found the films in the dump near the Washington Airport in Arlington County, Va. He was saving them, he said, to complete a motion picture and start a neighborhood theater for the "gang."

FRAUDULENT VOTING MARS IRISH BALLOTS

Cosgrave Popular in Cities; De Valera May Carry Rural Support.

Dublin, Irish Free State, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—When the polls closed tonight in the Irish Free State election it appeared there had been less violence reported than instances of fraudulent voting. The balloting was for the selection of a Dail Eireann, which in turn will elect a president.

With the voting, the largest ever recorded in the history of the republic, came widespread reports of "personation," consisting of voting for someone else, voting under the names of the dead or balloting under fictitious names.

In one Dublin district one-third of those who appeared at their polling place before noon found that others already had voted for them. The arrest of twelve men on impersonation charges was reported in Dublin, and in the Cork district five men and one woman were detained on similar charges.

The voting did not occur without violence, however. In Dublin the lord mayor was involved in a scene with several young men when he went to vote. While talking for a short time near the polling place, he was jostled by the group. He struck at one of them, but the incident passed without further violence when the young men fled upon the approach of a policeman.

Counting of the votes does not begin until tomorrow and only a few returns will be known during the day. Even the trend of the election may not be known until Thursday.

To all appearances former President William T. Cosgrave, opposition leader, had done well in the cities, but in the rural areas President Eamon De Valera may have increased his strength greatly.

Roosevelt's Ideas Affect Relief Move

Chairman La Follette Calls Manufactures Group Tomorrow.

(Associated Press.)

The Roosevelt touch spread from Warm Springs into relief legislation being shaped for Senate consideration yesterday with members of the Manufactures Committee discussing plans for combining the features of several pending proposals into one program.

Chairman La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, who, with Senator Cutting (Republican), New Mexico, talked over the relief picture with Mr. Roosevelt in Georgia last week-end, called the committee to meet tomorrow to work on the matter just after it had heard further appeals for Federal help for the transient needy.

La Follette declined to say whether the committee would draw up a program along lines outlined by the incoming Chief Executive, nor would he say whether the President-elect had suggested any steps; but it was generally understood that a program would be worked out largely as a result of the conference.

Ludington's New Service Is Opened

First Regular Passenger Plane Arrives From Nashville.

With numerous high officials participating, Ludington Airlines formally inaugurated a new through air service to Nashville, Tenn., when the first plane arrived at Washington-Hoover Airport yesterday evening.

The plane was started by D. W. McKellar, who acted in the absence of his brother, Senator Kenneth McKellar, of Tennessee. A telephone signal was used from the local field to start the ship on its passenger trip to Washington.

The party was met at the airport by members of the Tennessee delegation to Congress and members of the local Board of Trade and the Chamber of Commerce, as well as officials of the air line. The Ludington Line will now run three round trips a week over this route, leaving Washington on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, and returning on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

City Mail Control Is Urged by Mills

Tells House Jurisdiction by Treasury Would Aid Efficiency.

Secretary Mills yesterday asked Congress to place the Washington City Postoffice Building under the jurisdiction of the Treasury Department, to the same extent it now has control over customs offices, courthouses and postoffices outside of Washington.

"Upon the completion of the Postoffice Department Building in this city certain departmental activities now housed in the city postoffice will be moved to the Postoffice Department Building, leaving only field activities in the City Postoffice," he wrote the House.

"It has been requested by the Postmaster General that the Treasury take over the custody and control of the City Postoffice to operate it in the same manner as other buildings throughout the country. To this the Treasury Department has no objection."

Woman Is Injured By Bank Bandits

Trio Take $1,300 After Striking Down Lone Employe.

Frankfort, Ill., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—The Frankfort State Bank was robbed of between $1,300 and $1,400 today by three bandits who frightened the woman employe alone in the bank and then struck her over the head as she admitted them.

Although the bank is protected by bullet-proof glass, Miss Bernice Weichbrodt, the bookkeeper, was terrified by the robbers and opened the door allowing them to enter the bank workroom. One of the trio immediately struck her, knocking her unconscious.

No one else saw the robbers. The Illinois Bankers Association posted a $1,000 reward for their apprehension. Miss Weichbrodt was not seriously hurt.

Logan Regrouping Plan Is Revealed

Senator Would Have Congress Play Part in Bureau Changes.

Senator Logan (Democrat), Kentucky, proposed yesterday that any extensive reorganization of the Government be carried out by a committee on which not only the President, but members of House and Senate and other Government officials, would serve.

His proposal was filed as a substitute plan for the Senate Economy Committee authorization conferring broad reorganization powers on the President alone. He suggested that the Speaker of the House, the minority leader of the Senate, the Comptroller General and the Director of the Budget serve on the Regrouping Committee.

The Logan amendment, which will be brought up when the Treasury-Postoffice bill is discussed in the Senate, would prohibit diminution of the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Federal Trade Commission or the General Accounting Office. Congress could disapprove by law whatever the special committee might do.

been achieving front-page newspaper notice throughout the country on various investigating trips to find how much the Government is competing with private business, jumped into the fight. He proposed that the Philadelphia uniform plant be dispensed with.

There was a fight over this proposal in the course of which Representative Collins suggested that those who were opposed to turning the job of uniform making over to the sweatshops were the friends of private soldiers who wanted them to get the thrill of wearing a pair of drawers, the making of which one of their officers had to supervise.

Mr. Shannon's motion was beaten on a vive-voce vote, on a count when a division was demanded, and on a vote by tellers, which meant that those for and against the proposal had to come down into the well of the House and walk up the center aisle between two other members who had been designated as tellers to count those for and against.

CHANG IS REPORTED READY TO QUIT POST

Militarists Are Not Satisfied With His Record Against Japanese Forces.

Shanghai, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Caught between the Japanese war machine on one side and dissatisfaction at home on the other, Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang, reports from Peiping and Tientsin said today, is ready to withdraw as military leader of north China.

The resignation of the young marshal would give the leaders of the National government a free hand in dealing with the Japanese crisis.

The reports that Chang was withdrawing were not verified, but it was pointed out that if he chose to fight he might be destroyed by the Japanese, and if he did not he might be ruined by rising opposition in China.

Dissatisfied With Record.

North China militarists are dissatisfied, dispatches say, with Chang's record since the Japanese seized Shanghaikwan three weeks ago. They are ready, the reports assert, to overthrow the young marshal and to replace him with a command that would put up a stiffer resistance against the Japanese.

These reports reached Shanghai after the north China leaders had met in an important military conference at Nanking, the Nationalist capital. Among those attending this meeting were Marshal Chang, Finance Minister T. V. Soong, Marshal Chiang Kai-Shek and Marshal Tuan Chai-Jui, former President of China.

Returns to Peiping.

The latest statement from Marshal Chang on his attitude toward the Japanese was that he would fight only if they made another attack. After the Nanking conference he returned to his headquarters at Peiping.

Feng Yu-Hsiang, formerly known as the Christian general, who is being mentioned as a possible candidate to succeed Marshal Chang, at present is installed somewhere on the Mongolian frontier. Yen Si-Chan, dictator of Shansi Province, who opposed the National government in 1930 on the battlefields of Shantung, also is advanced as a possible candidate.

China Reiterates Charge.

Nanking, China, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—A new note to Japan, reiterating the charge that the Japanese were responsible for the trouble which led to its occupation of Shanhaikwan, was dispatched to Tokyo by the Nationalist government foreign office today. The note renewed China's demand that the Japanese withdraw from Shanhaikwan.

Chinchow, Manchuria, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—The Japanese reported today that after an hour's hard fighting a Japanese garrison at Chaoyang, in Jehol Province, repulsed a stubborn attack by unidentified Chinese troops. Chaoyang is about 60 miles west of Chinchow.

attempted legislative encroachment on administrative functions from the first term of George Washington, and cited among the historic precedents for Mr. Hoover's present action analagous vetoes by Presidents Buchanan, Grant and Wilson, as well as numerous decisions of the Supreme Court sustaining the earlier Presidents in their statements of the law involved.

"I disapprove of the bill with great regret," the President's veto message began, "as the appropriations provided for relief and other purposes are urgently needed, and with the hope that the Congress may early amend the act."

Scheme's Constitutionality.

Attorney General Mitchell's opinion also brought into question the constitutionality of the governmental reorganization scheme authorized in the last session of Congress, as an amendment to the legislative appropriation bill. He made the point that when Congress delegated to the President the authority to regroup and consolidate the executive agencies, it conferred an executive authority which could be recinded only by legislation, that is, by the concurrent action of both Houses.

"The attempt to give to either House of Congress, by action which is not legislation, power to disapprove administrative acts, raises a grave question as to the validity of the entire provision in the act of June 30, 1932, for executive reorganization of the governmental functions," the Attorney General concluded on this point.

Declared Obnoxious.

After declaring the McKellar provision "attempts to give a committee of the legislative branch power to approve or disapprove executive acts," the Attorney General then took the ground that even if Congress has authority in the matter, the proposed method still is unconstitutional.

"If the process of examination and allowance of a claim for refund of taxes may be viewed as a legislative function," Mr. Mitchell's opinion continued, "the proviso in this bill is equally obnoxious to the Constitution, because a joint committee has not power to legislate, and legislative power can not be delegated to it. These principles are settled by many decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States. * * *"

Points Possible Way Out.

Pointing a possible way out for Congress, Mr. Mitchell then set forth the elementary principles of constitutional law relating to the operation of the three principal branches of the Government — legislative, executive stitution the authority once having and judicial. The refunding of taxes illegally collected might be handled by either one of these branches, according to law, but under the Conbeen delegated to one branch, must be administered by that branch until the law is changed. In the present case, he added, Congress long since had set up tax-refunding machinery in the Treasury Department. In so doing it established a clearly defined administrative function. Under the Constitution this function is not subject to encroachment by the Congress.

"If the process attempted by this bill were reversed and a joint committee were required merely to examine these claims and make recommendations to the Congress as to their allowance, to be followed by appropriate legislative action in the form of a statute for their payment, passed in the usual way and approved by the President, or passed over his veto, a different situation would exist."

Manner Not Authorized.

Nor may the McKellar provision be regarded as a proper condition attached to an appropriation bill. Congress does have wide authority in fixing the purposes for which public funds may be expended, but this authority never runs to the administrative method governing the spending.

Said Mr. Mitchell on this point:

"Congress may not, by conditions attached to appropriations, provide for a discharge of the functions of Government in a manner not authorized by the Constitution. If such practice were permissible, Congress could subvert the Constitution. It might make appropriations on condition that the executive department abrogate its functions. It might, for example, appropriate money for the War Department on condition that the direction of military operations should be conducted by some person designated by the Congress, thus requiring the President to abdicate his functions as Commander in Chief."

The opinion cited an appropriation act vetoed by President Buchanan in June, 1860, because a certain appropriation carried a provision that only one Capt. Meigs should be appointed to superintend the expenditure of the money. Again, in May, 1913, President Wilson vetoed an appropriation bill because it carried a proviso that certain printing in the Executive branch should first be approved by the Joint Committee on Printing.

Cites Presidents' Actions.

"Since the organization of the Government, Presidents have felt bound to insist upon the maintenance of the Executive functions unimpaired by legislative encroachment, just as the legislative branch has felt bound to resist interference with its power by the Executive," the opinion continued.

After citing that President Washington had sent a message to Congress on the subject during his first term, Mr. Mitchell recalled that John Adams, Jefferson, Madison and John Quincy Adams had taken the same ground, and that Andrew Jackson had mentioned the subject no less than six times in his communications to Congress. After the Civil War the Executive authority again was defended by Presidents Grant, Hayes and Wilson.

"The proviso in this deficiency bill may not be important in itself, but the principle at stake is vital. Encroachments on the Executive authority are not likely to be deliberate, but that very fact makes them all the more insidious."

ROOSEVELT SEEKING ECONOMIC STABILITY

Stimson Is Told to Arrange Hearings for Nations Paying War Debts.

Warm Springs, Ga., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Means for restoring world and national economic stability were put in motion today by President-elect Roosevelt in far-reaching actions.

Secretary Stimson was authorized to arrange for hearings before Mr. Roosevelt after he takes office with those nations who have met their war debts obligations and are asking relief.

Experts in American economic problems, particularly those relating to the railroads, were summoned around the Roosevelt conference table in the "Little White House" on Pine Mountain.

Bernard M. Baruch, of New York, financier and authority on economics, spent the day and night with the Democratic President-elect, discussing "everything." His visit has brought his name into speculation for Secretary of State.

To Be Separately Received.

In authorizing Mr. Stimson to arrange meetings with the European debtors, Mr. Roosevelt empasized that each would be received separately. As in the case of Great Britain, whose pleas will be heard first, it is understood he is linking the question of debt relief with the forthcoming world economic conference.

Ready to hear the petitions for aid on debts it appears certain the President-elect will demand in return definite assurance of support for a comprehensive program in the econonmic conference aimed at stabilization of the money exchanges and a revival of trade operations through reciprocal tariff agreements.

In addition to England and Italy it is understood that all debtor nations who met their December 15 payments have asked for conferences with the United States.

Nothing has been said here about France, Belgium and others who failed to pay up in December. The door is open to them, but there is the belief that before they will join the others in pleas for help they will make some overtures about the December payment.

Relief Policy Mystery.

Just how far Mr. Roosevelt is willing to go on debt relief is an absolute mystery and probably will remain so, for he naturally wants to do his own bargaining. There has been discussion, however, among some of those who have advised with him about a postponement of future payments for a period in return for economic agreements.

Therefore, it is believed that any debt action will be predicated on results of the economic conference. The next payments are due June 15, and early meeting of the proposed economic parley is believed certain.

Mr. Baruch is acting chairman of the National Transportation Committee which has been studying the railroad problem and is about to report.

Mr. Roosevelt is holding to his campaign declaration proposing that the Government announce its intention "to stand back of the railroads for a specified period."

To See Hines and Sherley.

Walker Hines, former head of the Railway Administration, and Swagar Sherley, of Kentucky, former chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, will join Mr. Roosevelt in conference tomorrow.

Referring to his conferences, the President-elect emphasized to newspapermen today that they related "to the Government as a whole." That subject includes economy, he said, adding "the prospects for real economy are good."

Gov. Pollard of Virginia, who was traveling through this section, stopped for a brief visit during the day. Virgil McNitt, of Los Angeles, also was a caller.

SILVER MONEY BILLS TABLED BY SENATE

fered as a substitute for the Long amendment. Both proposals were tabled by the one vote.

After the roll call, Long accused Glass of preventing a discussion of his amendment and continued the argument for currency expansion.

Glass replied that Long had indicated he might withdraw his proposal and reiterated the Senate had "wasted nearly eight hours on a matter that has no relevancy to the bank bill."

Senators Norris (Republican), Nebraska, and Lewis (Democrat), Illinois, who voted against tabling the amendments, had asked their withdrawal so they could be given a fairer test when not connected with the bank measure, but Wheeler refused.

The roll call on the motion to table both silver propositions follows:

Pairs on the vote were announced as follows:

FERDINAND PECORA.

SUSPECT IN MURDER OF DRY MAN KILLED

Gangster Who Leaped Out of Train Window Is Shot by Deputy.

Baton Rouge, La., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Stanley ("Swede") Anderson, St. Louis underworld character who escaped from United States marshals yesterday by leaping through the window of a swiftly moving train north of New Orleans, was shot and killed near here early today as he sought to flee northward on a fast freight train. He was shot by a deputy sheriff in an open field near Louisiana State University after jumping from the freight.

Anderson was quickly identified by a half dozen letters in his pockets and by injuries about the face, suffered in yesterday's leap through the window of a drawing room in which St. Louis marshals were bringing him to New Orleans to face charges in connection with the murder of a Louisiana dry informer two years ago.

Search of swamps near Kenner, where Anderson escaped, proved fruitless and peace officers throughout the section were asked to aid in a general watch on railroads and highways.

A train dispatcher at Lutcher, halfway between New Orleans and Baton Rouge, early this morning saw a man hiding on a freight car on a northbound train and notified the sheriff's office here. Officers intercepted the freight at the Louisiana State University station where open fields would make it difficult for the man to escape.

As the officers started a systematic search of the cars, Anderson leaped from a coal gondola and started running. When he declined to heed orders to halt, Deputy Sheriff Ed Whitney opened fire with a riot gun and Anderson dropped in a field, fatally wounded.

Blazes in Kenilworth Laid to Defective Wiring

Fires, apparently caused by defective wiring, gave firemen considerable trouble in Kenilworth, Md., early today. A blaze in a vacant house at 1815 Kenilworth avenue brought fire companies to the scene when a local alarm was turned in and a box in the District pulled. The fire, which was on the third floor, did considerable damage. The flames could be seen for some distance.

While they were extinguishing that blaze, the firemen learned that there was a fire in an apartment house at 1700 Kenilworth avenue. This blaze was also in the third floor. The wiring in a house at 1817 Kenilworth also was heated, evidently by the same defect.

Chicago, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Suit for $40,000,000 damages was filed in United States District Court today against Samuel Insull and the entire board of directors of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., $500,000,000 investment trust now in receivership.

The bill of complaint charged the directors authorized payment of stock dividends in 1929, 1930, 1931 and 1932 though the company had no surplus and that consequently each board member is liable for damages.

The suit was filed in behalf of a score of debenture holders in Midwestern States by Attorney Lewis Jacobsen, who also represented petitioning creditors in the bankruptcy action.

PHILHARMONIC WINS CONCERT APPLAUSE

Gieseking and Walter Share Honors With Orchestra at Constitution Hall.

The Philharmonic Symphony Society of New York, Walter Gieseking, pianist, and Bruno Walter, conductor, forms a trio of reasons why the concert given by the famous organization in Constitution Hall yesterday under local auspices of the T. Arthur Smith Concert Bureau will linger long in memories here.

It was a real pleasure to watch Mr. Walter as he conducted his musicians through the four movements of Schubert's "Symphony in C Major, No. 7." Perhaps the greatest enjoyment came from the second movement, "The Andante con moto" with its smooth and even tone.

Nor should be forgotten the dainty beauty of the sparkling measures of the third movement, "The Sherzo," all of them bearing out the renown of the last work of the master who died before he had the joy of hearing it performed. With an innate sublimity the finale proceeded to finish what must ever be regarded as a great tone poem cast in symphonic form.

Mr. Gieseking came into his own in the Schumann "Concerto for Piano in A Minor Opus 54." The audience grew enthusiastic over this number and insisted on recalling the soloist four times.

The orchestra earned other laurels in its playing of Strauss' tone poem "Don Juan," always a favorite with Washington audiences who enjoy the melodies to be found in this more modern composition.

Washington music lovers will be eager to welcome the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra when it comes to Washington again on March 7, with Arturo Toscanini as conductor.

Key, daughter of Mrs. Key; Evelyn Montgomery, sister of Nigel Dixon; William Kirk Snoffer, Walter Kirk Sterling, 5-year-old Leonardtown boy; Viola Montgomery, Addison Herbert, a friend; Miss Virginia Reeves, of Washington; Webster Herbert Hurley, John T. Shade, Miss Kirk's butler, and Mary E. Shade, wife of the butler, and Miss Kirk's cook.

The mystery surrounding Miss Kirk's death has never been solved. No motive has been ascribed for placing a bomb in the automobile in what was apparently a deliberate plot against Miss Kirk. Experts believe dynamite was used, but have been unable to explain how the bomb was designed so that heat from the engine would explode it.

INTERSTATE CHORUS PLEASES BIG CROWD

Thirteenth Season of Male Group Has Auspicious Reinauguration.

The Interstate Male Chorus, Clyde B. Aitchison, director, started its thirteenth season last night with a concert before a capacity audience in Memorial Continental Hall. These choristers now include a personnel of 50 men recognized as one of the outstanding choruses of the country.

Last night's program lived up to the reputation of the Interstate Male Chorus. It avoided the ultra modern school while filled with color, cheer and contrast. The audience enjoyed the "Sunrise" by Podbertsky; the warmth of rhythm and harmony of the Finnish "Broken Melody" of Sibelius, and "Suomi's Song," by Franz Mair.

Other favorite numbers were "Companions, Let's Drink" from Verdi's "Ernani," and a gay quick-step patrol by Ivan Serveis, a Baltimore composer. In more classical mood was a Terzett, in manuscript, "An Ode To Music," by Albert M. Schuff. Mr. Aitchison's own flowing setting of Tom Moore's lovely "When Twilight Dews" pleased the audience likewise.

As soloist the chorus presented Edwin C. Steffe, who has twice won the local Atwater Kent auditions, and is well known as a soloist at the Washington Cathedral. He is a singer of fine personality and stage presence, with musical understanding and rich, virile tone. Mr. Steffe presented the well-known aria from "Rigoletto," by Verdi, "Cortigiani, Vil Razza," and a group of songs, and also sang the incidental solo in W. G. Hammond's dramatic ballad-cantata "Lochinvar," to Scott's familiar poem.

Mr. Feuerstein, as accompanist, added much by the good support given both chorus and soloist. While listed as the first concert of the season, it was the second given, the first being the joint program with the orchestra of the Marine Band, a few weeks ago, presenting a program made up of music by Oregon composers.

Argument Is Started On Federal Power Act

Alexandria, Va., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—A possibly far-reaching attack on the Federal Power Commission's interpretation of the water power act of 1920 was opened today by the Appalachian Electric Power Co. in seeking a "minor part" license to dam the New River in Virginia.

The commission is seeking dismissal of a complaint that it lacks authority to require a major part license for the proposed hydroelectric dam. Under this form of license the company would be subjected to supervision as to operation, rates, earnings and security issues.

Measure Asks Quarters For Troops in Inaugural

Provision for quartering troops here for the inauguration in public buildings, and authority to use public space for various inaugural purposes, was proposed yesterday in two joint resolutions introduced in the House by Representative Pou (Democrat), North Carolina.

One of the measures would permit the Director of Public Buildings and Public Grounds to house troops in public buildings up to March 6. The other would authorize the director to issue permits for use of public space. It provided no stand could be erected on sidewalk, park or public ground, except it have the approval of the inaugural committee and the building inspector of the District.

Unusual By-Word Of Swarmi Fedd

Insists He Sets Precedent by Letting Girls Ask Men to Dance.

After the Swiss Marines had been called out to aid in the search, Swarmi Fedd was finally located beneath a huge pile of waste paper in the basement of The Washington Post Building, where he was attempting to hide from an army of male Federal employes, who were loudly decrying his apparent favoritism in issuing tickets to the Federal Diary dance at the Shoreham Hotel Thursday night, February 2, only to feminine employes of Uncle Sam.

Surrounded by flashing bayonets and a battery of French 75's the Swarmi finally recovered his equilibrium sufficiently to explain that he always does things differently. Since the usual method is for the gentleman to invite the lady of his choice to a dance, the man of mystery decided to reverse the procedure and allow the girls to reciprocate. He pointed out the precedent established by "leap year" conventions, but insisted that he was still being different because 1933 is not a leap year.

Elaborating upon plans for the dance which will be held at the Shoreham Hotel, Swarmi Fedd revealed that Leon Brusiloff and his orchestra will play for dancing between the hours of 10 p. m. and 1 a. m., but explained that he has issued his invitations for 8 p. m., because he has sufficient added attractions to entertain the guests in the interim.

Subcommittee on Funds Inspects Capital Streets

The House District Appropriations subcommittee, which Monday concluded hearings on the District supply bill, passed yesterday in making its annual inspection of streets in the District, preparatory to marking the local appropriations measure.

Chairman Clarence Cannon led subcommittee members on the tour, accompanied by a delegation of District highway engineers.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

"Are you taking a picture?" the policeman asked us, including Ted Johnson, Washington Post photographer, as he focused in the dark for the above shot of a prehistoric monster swung from the National Museum ceiling silhouetted against the windows. We've captioned this picture, "Skeletons Out of the Closet." More scenes of Washington here and there after nightfall.

"AFTER the ball is over" at the Shoreham Hotel the evening of February 2, those present will be able to say, A good time was had by all."

RILEY.

Swarmi Fedd is one who believes in doing things right and that includes a lot of the unusual. And just because this isn't leap year, he conceived the idea of having the ladies invite their escorts to the grand ball and pageant. And how the requests have been coming in for tickets. It's marvelous. And from practically every department and bureau, too. All the way from War and Navy and Interior over to General Land Office, Civil Service Commission and Library of Congress.

And won't the Swarmi feel right honored to have such a brilliant assemblage of grace and beauty on the ballroom floor?

One letter contains a coupon half covered with ink, with this note: "Please blame kitten for accident. Hope will not deprive me of tickets, if one of the fortunate 250." Okeh, Mrs. S. S. H., the tickets are in the mail. So kitty is forgiven.

From another, "I especially would like to have tickets, if possible, as my fiance is to broadcast for WRC that night and I would like to be there. At least, he wants to, at present plans, so would appreciate it if you will send me two tickets." They're in the mail.

And from another, a grape arbor and reposing, chin on hands, young lady. But the lady's married. How do we know? Swarmi told us so. After all, you see, Swarmi knows all, sees all and often tells all.

There's still some tickets left. Swarmi is celebrating the anniversary of his coming to America. There've been suggestions that the Swarmi should read from his famous crystal ball. Well, we'll see what we'll see.

"But Mr. Wilson, take a look——"
"Ah, yes it's covered in this book."

"Not the stuff I want at all."
"That will be released next fall."

"The stuff I want's not printed yet?"
Then he though I was all wet.

BUT he still had his note.

Ordinarily, the Maritime would have made the voyage in six days. But she made it in five and a half, so desirous was she to be rid of Mr. Fedd's presence. Even the Maritime seemed to know the skipper's secret, the contents of the note.

There came the ship near the harbor. It was a foggy day and she proceeded slowly, the better to pick her way and not to crash some smaller, hapless craft.

The vessel was well within the 12-mile limit. The skipper decided, and so issued orders for Swarmi's release from irons. Let him be free now. If he chose to jump overboard and escape, good riddance. Set him free.

WALTER H. SHOMO, Government Printing Office, announces the first meeting of the Departmental Baseball League for February 3 in the green room, G. P. O. Shomo, who is the newly elected president of the organization, wants all managers of last year's teams to be on hand as well as any new candidates for franchises.

The Departmental loop operates in almost as efficient a manner as the majors, with its official scorers, archives, &c. The Federal News chronicles batting averages from time to time, championship series are held each fall, and the games at 5 p. m. each summer day average an attendance of 500 from the crowds of Federal workers who daily to watch their mates compete for the annual trophies.

The men had their inning this week. Philip Ebert, 1105 Jefferson street northwest, General Accounting Office, was given so much favorable comment on his recent fine letters that his public nominated him for the weekly $5 merchandise prize. The nomination carried.

PHILIP EBERT.

Mr. Ebert chose the Sanitary Grocery Co. as the place to cash his prize order. It's easy to win the Federal Diary weekly prize. Try it.

AUTO LICENSE FEE RELIEF MOVE LOST

Alexandria Council Is Asked to Seek $103,000 From R. F. C. for Streets.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Councilman Henry O'Bannon Cooper was prevented from introducing last night a resolution to have the city absorb the license fee of 50 cents on automobile licenses, as was done in 1932, by the fact that the rules of the city council prohibit the passage of an amendment to an ordinance within 30 days after the passage of the original ordinance.

A resolution by Councilman Cooper to suspend the rules was lost, the vote being: King, Barley, Dwyer and Lawler against the resolution, with Cooper, Davison, Garrett and Herbert favoring it, Mayor Ticer casting the deciding vote against the resolution. Mr. Cooper announced that the resolution will be introduced at the next meeting, and will be voted upon the second meeting in February.

Another resolution by Mr. Cooper was lost by the same vote. This provided that the amounts of money stated in the budget and used by the council for fixing the tax rate, shall be considered as appropriations of the various amounts for the specific purposes mentioned, and for no other purpose. It was brought out that it has been customary to transfer money from one account to another without specific authority of the council.

Councilman Davison introduced a resolution to borrow from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation $103,000 for the construction of curb and gutters on streets 50 per cent or more completed, the cost of the work to be borne by the property owners. This was referred to the city attorney and city manager for a report as to the feasibility.

The financial report for December showed a cash balance, December 1, of $63,444.93; budget receipts of $24,891.06, and other receipts not estimated in the budget of $2,067.60, or total receipts of $90,403.64. The budget disbursements were $50,858.24; other disbursements $3,903.94, or total receipts of $54,762.18, and a cash balance January 1 of $35,641.46.

The council approved a temporary loan of $150,000. Bids from the three national banks of the city were opened, and the award of the loan made to the Alexandria National Bank at 4 per cent.

The report of the trustees of the gas fund showed that they have paid for city bonds of 1902, 1908 and 1916 $343,200, and Potomac bonds, $60,000; advanced to the city council, $25,500 for payment of interest on bonds; that the city council has allocated $237,000 to a trust fund for retirement of 1921 bonds, $18,000 of which has been paid by the trustees, reducing this fund to $219,000. The trustees have invested $224,307.27 in high-grade securities amounting to $225,700, and have a cash balance remaining of $3,656.16.

KING SOLOMON SHOT FATALLY IN BOSTON

Four Assailants Wound Club Proprietor and Escape; Guests Questioned.

Boston, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Charlie (King) Solomon, night club proprietor, was fatally wounded in a tiny rest room of the Cotton Club early today. His four killers crowded him into the room as he walked down a narrow corridor and fatally wounded him with pistol fire.

Solomon, recently indicted by a Federal grand jury in New York City in connection with a $14,000,000 rum smuggling conspiracy, staggered back to the dance floor, where a score or more couples were dancing, went to a table and fell face down upon it.

Only then, apparently, did any one notice that anything was wrong. The killers, who had quietly occupied a table not far from that at which Solomon had entertained his friends, had grabbed their coats and hats from a frightened check girl and fled without returning to the main room of the place.

Attendants who went to Solomon's aid put him in a taxicab and sped to the City Hospital where they placed him on an operating table and left, refusing to answer questions of nurses.

Meanwhile, police summoned to the club had herded together 27 guests and employes and taken them to a nearby station for questioning. They sent word out for the arrest of five men suspected of knowing something in connection with the crime. They found, they said, many valuable fingerprints at the table occupied by the killers.

The actual slayers, police believe, were imported for the job, since, they pointed out, Solomon, whose underworld acquaintance was wide, apparently had failed to recognize them although they sat within a few feet of him.

Judge Ready to Free Halloran in Judd Case

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 24 (U.P.).—Ruling the State has failed to produce evidence of murder, Judge J. S. Niles indicated today he was ready to free wealthy John J. (Happy Jack) Halloran on charges of aiding Winnie Ruth Judd after a double slaying.

Final decision on whether Halloran must stand jury trial as an accessory after murder was reserved until tomorrow, when County Attorney Jenz L. Jennings will submit legal authorities bolstering his contention that Mrs. Judd murdered Agnes Ann Leroi, and afterward was aided by the Arizona lumberman.

LEGISLATURE SENDS BUDGET TO RITCHIE

Highways Listed for Biggest Cut in Total Reductions of $6,096,755.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 24.—A budget, cut $6,096,755 under the 1933 figures, tonight was sent by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie to the Legislature, where it was immediately swirled into the vortex of tax discussion in the two houses.

The six million cut is in the appropriation for 1934, although the budget covers both 1934 and 1935. In 1935 the State appropriations recommended total $31,933,708, which is $4,989,000 under the 1933 figures.

In only a few instances are the 1934 appropriations recommended by Gov. Ritchie greater than the 1933 allowances. The Commissioner of Motor Vehicles is allowed $80,525 more to pay 25 more State policemen, while an increase of $27,640 in the Bank Commissioner's appropriation will pay ten new bank examiners.

Largest Single Cut.

The largest factor in the decrease for the State roads commission is accounted for by an estimated drop of $2,500,000 in gas tax revenues in 1934. "Taking heed of this year's collections, which promise to be much less than anticipated, State officials have planned for 1934 revenues to be considerably lower than in 1932. The rest of the cut is represented by proceeds of a bond issue in 1932. Last year the State received $1,000,000 from bonds, but this source of revenue will be lacking in 1934.

The cut in the Roads Commission appropriation is due to several factors. One of them is that in 1933 the commission received the proceeds of a bond issue for bridge-building, but these bonds all have been sold and will yield no revenues in 1934. Another is that in 1933 the commission was credited with the proceeds of a ½-cent gasoline tax, which will be applied to bond retirement in 1934.

Public School Aprpopriation.

The largest single factor of saving in the public school appropriation is due to a bond issue to fund the State teachers' retirement system. Instead of contributing cash, the State will issue bonds to go into the retirement fund. Other savings are made in vocational education, school salaries, equalization and normal school expenses. In 1932 there were deficits in the census and attendance and equalizations funds, but these have been paid off and will not enter into the 1934 budget.

Throughout the budget there is the notation that all salaries listed shall be reduced by 10 per cent. This amount "shall be retained in the State treasury for the purpose of reducing the expenses of the State government," the budget says. The budget makes no mention of a reduction in teachers' salaries, as these are paid by the counties. A bill to reduce these 10 per cent is expected to be introduced, however, and this saving is expected to permit a reduction of at least 7 cents in the county school tax.

Lawyers Deadlock In Ford Wrangle

Court Delays Decision on Warrant Until End of Subpena Attack.

Detroit, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Two determined groups of attorneys, one seeking to compel Henry Ford's testimony in a court action, the other battling to keep him from the stand, wrangled themselves into a deadlock today—and awaited court action Saturday to untangle a mass of technicalities.

Requests for a bench warrant, charges that the subpena served on the motor manufacturer by a ruse is invalid, and a barrage of technicalities thrown up by attorneys for both sides brought a four-day delay while judges studied the situation. Meanwhile, Mr. Ford, for the second day, failed to appear.

Attorneys for the Sweeten Automobile Co., of Philadelphia, are seeking to have Ford testify in an action for $227,000 against his company, involving the Lincoln Motor Co., purchased in 1922 by Ford. The case has dragged through the courts for six years, but the sudden serving of a subpena upon Mr. Ford, for the first time in many years, brought the suit to life again last week.

Montgomery Bill Proposes Postponement of Tax Sales

Another Measure Introduced at Annapolis Is Designed to Stop Shipment of Garbage Into Prince Georges for Disposal.

By Staff Correspondent.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 24.—Bills to defer tax sales in Montgomery County and to prohibit the transportation of garbage or other refuse from outside Maryland into Prince Georges County were introduced in the House of Delegates last night as the Legislature met for the third week of the session.

The Montgomery bill was introduced by Walter W. Dawson, of the county delegation. It provides that sales of property for unpaid taxes will be postponed this year from April to August. The Prince Georges County measure was introduced by Oliver Metzerott, who is chairman of the county committee, appointed to study the dumping question.

The bill prohibits bringing in "garbage, trash or junk" for "feeding, dumping or incinerating or any other final disposition." Mr. Metzerott also explained that his action last week in asking the secretary of state for the names of lobbyists who have registered was not meant as a criticism of the secretary. His sole purpose, Mr. Metzerott said on the floor of the House, was to call lobbyists' attention to the fact that they had to register.

The rules committee reported favorably two economy resolutions, although recommending a change to take the teeth out of one. A resolution limiting delegates to $10 for postage at this session was nullified by the committee's recommendation to raise the limit to $25, which has been the postage allotment in prior sessions. A resolution instructing the speaker of the House to turn back to the treasury at once 20 per cent of the House expenses was also reported favorably. The House had already pledged itself to cut expenses this amount, and immediate reversion to the treasury will insure the pledge being kept.

The House had its first facetious interval of the session when the members were questioned about their marital status. The information was asked so that invitations to the governor's ball might be sent the wives, if any. Mr. Metzerott rose to a jocular point of order that the information might be considered confidential, but was overruled.

The Senate's session was quiet, the only State-wide bill introduced being one to provide compulsory unemployment insurance.

Bills to fix the State tax for 1934 and 1935 at 22 cents and to provide for a bond issue of $2,523,000 were also introduced in the House. Both of these measures weer recommended in the governor's message and are provided for in the budget.

A bill authorizing a constitutional convention to ratify the repeal of the eighteenth amendment was offered in the House. It gives the governor power to call the convention and set the date for its meeting, and sets up the machinery for electing delegates.

A bill to give magistrates, judges and clerks of the court power to perform the marriage ceremony was introduced, as was another measure increasing the license fees of chain stores.

Still Junk

Men Released After They Say They Were Taking It to Dealer.

Transportation of a still is permissible if it is being taken to a junkshop, United States Commissioner J. Frank Parran ruled yesterday in releasing two men who were brought before him in Marlboro, Md., on a charge of transportation of articles for the manufacture of whisky.

Federal agents testified they arrested Dudley Willett and Nelson Murphy, both of La Plata, on the Southern Maryland pike, with a knocked-down cypress still, a copper worm and some rubber hose in their car. The men said they were taking the still to a Washington junk dealer. The agents followed them and arrested them after several miles. Commissioner Parran released the men when it was testified that they had not turned off the road to Washington. There was nothing to show that the men intended to do anything but sell the still for junk, he said.

Joseph Gray, of Browns road in Charles County, did not fare so well at his hearing yesterday on charges of manufacture and possession of liquor. Commissioner Parran held him for the Federal grand jury on bond of $1,000.

COUNTY GIVES FIRST ROADHOUSE PERMIT

Board of Prince Georges Acts Favorably for Resort at T. B.

The first permit ever issued in Prince Georges County for the operation of a roadhouse was given yesterday by the county commissioners to B. B. Wills, manager of the Old Fireside at T. B., Md. A public hearing on Wills' application was held, but there were no protests against the proposed resort.

The permit was issued under the roadhouse law of 1929, which provides that a license must be obtained from the commissioners to hold dances oftener than once a week. Several applications have been made before, but no permits have ever been granted. Wills told the commissioners he intends to have dances on Thursdays and Saturdays.

J. J. Crowley, chief of police, told the commissioners that he had investigated a recent fatal shooting during a raid on a still, and had found that neither of the two county policemen in the raid had fired the fatal shot. A coroner's jury investigating the case, however, had recommended that the two policemen, as well as two constables on the raid, be held for action of the grand jury.

Hearings on tax assessment appeals will be held by the State Tax Commission on February 1 in the courthouse at Marlboro, according to a letter received by the commissioners from the Commission. There are sixteen appeals pending, the Commission said, and it may be necessary to extend the hearings into the next day.

John Silverthorne, Society Man, Killed

Brother of Former Countess, Who Shot Self and Man, Found Dead.

Chicago, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—With a pistol at his side, the body of John Silverthorne, 26, was found shot through the heart, in his suburban Riverside home by his wife. The shooting occurred last night just after the young husband and father had kissed his infant daughter goodnight.

The victim was a son of C. M. Silverthorne, vice president of the Western Felt Works, with which the young man was also connected. Silverthorne was a member of a family long known in Chicago society. He was a cousin of Alice Silverthorne, the former Countess de Janze and now Mrs. Raymond de Trafford.

Miss Silverthorne was married in 1921 to Vicomte Frederic de Janze, of Paris. They were later divorced. In 1927 she shot herself and De Trafford. Both recovered and a few years ago she and the young Englishman were married. She now has a divorce action pending against him. She is a niece of Mrs. J. Ogden Armour.

I don't spend very much on Myself—

BUT, believe ME, when it comes to what I smoke, I want it right!

You know how it is when a fellow is accustomed to smoking a good cigarette and he gets hold of one that isn't right. He's likely to get in a bad humor.

I am a great believer in the old saying that "quality will tell," and I have noticed that the things which come to stay are good things.

You can buy a package of good cigarettes for 15c. Six cents of this goes to the Government. So that outside of the 6c paid to the Government, you get a little over two cigarettes for one cent.

The right kind of tobacco, the right sort of paper—a cigarette that's pure and good-tasting and mild—that's the kind I want.

I have been smoking CHESTERFIELDS for a long time. They are mild and yet they satisfy.

DEBT PARLEYS.

The governments which have met their installments upon war debts and which ask for reconsideration of their debts are to be accorded the same hearing as that which has been granted to Great Britain. Italy thus gains an advantage over France in the prospect of early revision of debts.

In discussing the forthcoming debt conference the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, Neville Chamberlain, takes note of the fact that two of the principal sources from which the debtors drew funds for payment of debt installments to the United States have dried up. These were receipts from American tourists and loans from America. The tourist trade has dwindled, and Americans are not lending money nowadays. So the debtors are forced to fall back upon the old threadbare argument that there is deadly danger to a creditor in demanding payment of debts owed to it, and that debts can be paid only in goods or services, anyhow; so that, unless the United States buys goods or hires services it can not collect what is owed. This plea has been exposed so often that it is tedious to discuss it further. The debtors found no difficulty in borrowing money from the United States and its citizens. It is only when they can not borrow more that they set up the bugaboo of deadly danger in making repayment. As for "goods or services," there is no reason why Great Britain should not apply to debt payments to America the profits derived from the sale of goods or services to Kamtchatka or Boorioboolagha.

The remarks of Mr. Chamberlain did not extend to a discussion of any means whereby the British government could reciprocate for a reduction of its debt. What does Great Britain propose to offer as an inducement? The time has gone by when a mere agonized appeal for reduction or cancellation will have any effect upon Americans except to stiffen their determination to hold the debtors to account. Unless some tangible and valuable consideration can be given in exchange for debt concessions it will be better not to open the question, for bad feeling can be the only result of another demand that Americans shall take over the debts of foreign countries without obtaining any benefits from the sacrifice.

All the debtors have the power to grant concessions to the United States—trade concessions, co-operation in armament reductions, co-operation in smothering the Far Eastern war embers, tariff adjustments, &c. All signs point to disappointment on their part if they expect to come to Washington and obtain debt relief while refusing to make concessions of equal value to this country. President-elect Roosevelt has made it very clear that co-operation will be expected.

CONFLICTING TAXES.

The interstate conference of legislators to be held in Washington February 3-4 will be the first official parley of legislative and executive departments of the States in conjunction with representatives of Congress to consider primarily the confused situation with regard to duplicated and overlapping taxes. Every State is to be represented. The make-up of the convention will be one delegate appointed by each State Senate and House of Representatives, and one or more fiscal officials named by each governor to represent him.

The competition for taxes between the States and the Federal Government has created a situation that becomes steadily more complicated. It will be the purpose of the forthcoming conference, which is the culmination of much preliminary work, to find means by which the States collectively may effect an equitable apportionment of the various sources of revenue that will be advantageous to both interests. Several States have adopted a sales tax. Last year Congress encroached upon the heretofore exclusive State tax on gasoline. The State's right to tax tangible property is considered well established and safe from invasion, but it is foreseen that in most other lines there is danger of rivalry and duplication.

It is with a view to eliminating some of the present confusion and avoiding more that threatens for the future that the conference will seek better co-ordination in tax matters. Taxpayers who are caught for State and Federal taxes are frequently caused no little inconvenience by differences in methods of collection and varying reports required. This extends in some cases to the necessity of keeping two sets of records in order to conform to differing requirements. The practical result of the meeting here will probably be to delegate authority to a smaller group which can negotiate with a similar group from Congress. The results of the conference ought to be of great value to taxpayers.

TAX REFUND VETO.

President Hoover has vetoed the first deficiency appropriation bill. He was reluctant to kill an appropriation measure, especially in view of the deadlock in the Senate. But an amendment inserted in this bill, on the insistence of Senator McKellar, would have transferred control over tax refunds from the executive to the legislative branch of the Government. It is the duty of the President to prevent such encroachment upon the powers granted to the Chief Executive by the Constitution.

Tax refunds have been a political bugbear for many years. The charge is often made that the Treasury is being robbed every time it returns to taxpayers funds that have been taken by mistake or without sanction of the law. Most of the larger refunds are made, however, only after court decisions, and after thorough investigation by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Existing law provides, also, that no refund of more than $75,000 shall be made until 30 days after a report, containing all information regarding it, shall have been submitted to the Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue. The committee has no authority to hold up refunds or prevent them from being made, but it can call the attention of Congress to the matter.

Congress thus has every opportunity to investigate all refunds and to raise objection if any refund should be wrongfully made. But Senator McKellar insisted that a committee of Congress should have the right to veto all refunds about $20,000.

The Constitution makes a sharp division between executive and legislative functions. The President may not usurp legislative power, nor can Congress delegate it to him. Likewise Congress is forbidden to take over executive functions. If Congress could assume authority over tax refunds, it could also collect taxes and take over the whole gamut of administrative functions. If President Hoover had not vetoed this obnoxious measure it would have failed in the Supreme Court.

Congress will have to repass the deficiency measure. It contains some very important items, including $350,000 for unemployment relief in the District. These items can be quickly restored by a new act minus the McKellar amendment. There could be no objection whatever to lowering the amount of the refunds on which reports are submitted to the joint congressional committee. In examining these reports to make certain that every refund is made in accordance with law, the committee performs a useful function. Let the committee examine all refunds of more than $20,000 and make its findings available to Congress and the public. But to give a congressional committee a veto on executive acts is not within the power of Congress.

TAXICAB CHAOS.

An impressive appeal for action to relieve the "chaotic condition of public transportation" in Washington is made by the Citizens Joint Transportation Committee. Taxicabs are literally running wild on Washington streets, with almost complete lack of supervision or control. Public safety, reasonable working regulations and equitable rates are disregarded. The committee is fully justified in referring to this state of affairs as a "distressing and demoralizing condition."

Foremost among the evils of this situation is the lack of public safety. A few years ago Washington had one of the lowest traffic accident rates of any large American city. Now the National Safety Council puts Washington among the "worst four" large cities in point of automobile fatalities. In the first eleven months of 1932 deaths caused by motor vehicles increased 60 per cent.

Cut-throat competition in a business of this kind always produces chaos. Drivers are working as long as sixteen hours per day, in their desperate efforts to eke out a living. Cabs are allowed to go unrepaired. Hundreds of inexperienced drivers rent cabs and offer their services to the public. One driver who was recently observed proceeding down Pennsylvania avenue like a derelict confessed that he had not driven a car for seven or eight years. The fact that 7,000 taxicab drivers have been licensed since last July and only about 3,000 cabs are now in operation suggests that many inexperienced drivers are operating cabs, and that they find conditions extremely unsatisfactory.

Together with the rise in the accident rate there has been a sharp decline in the financial responsibility of taxicab operations. Too frequently the victims of taxicab accidents must bear the loss because the operator has no resources of his own and no liability insurance. There is no excuse for a city exposing its people to such dangers. Congress must accept responsibility for the loss of life and damage that are inflicted upon Washington people in this way until it enacts a financial responsibility law for taxicabs in the District.

The question as to whether the meter system should be restored is incidental to the larger issue of public safety. It is agreed that whether or not meters are installed in cabs the high rates which formerly prevailed will not be reestablished. But some agency in the District government should be given authority to regulate taxicabs as a means of public transportation. It is absurd to permit public vehicles to operate without regulation and without financial responsibility.

CONFIDENCE.

No opinion regarding the depression is heard more frequently than the remark that all that is necessary now for recovery is a return of confidence. The same thing was said a year ago; yet conditions are radically different in many ways. The people are no longer panicky. They are not even afraid of business in itself, and would be ready to go ahead with plans if they knew what to expect from elements that are beyond their power to control. In a word, they want to know whether the Federal Government is going to put its financial affairs in order and withdraw from the loan market; they want to know what taxes to count on, whether tariff rates will be changed, whether there is to be any inflation of the currency, and whether there is to be an attempt to substitute legislation for economic laws to favor some particular class at the expense of the whole population.

As long as these fundamental questions remain unsettled it is impossible for commerce or industry to initiate broad programs for expansion and resumption of business. How can they plan ahead when so many vital factors affecting outlay, operation and possible profits remain uncertain? Retailers will continue to place hand-to-mouth orders; factories can not inaugurate expansive plans while orders are confined to weekly and monthly needs and while commodity prices may be violently upset by proposed legislation.

There is not a single line of endeavor that would not be materially influenced by legislation pending before the present Congress or that is to be considered by its early successor. No competent business man would risk his own money or that of stockholders by undertaking any large enterprise at the present time. There are too many factors which may upset all present calculations during the next few months. The plain duty of Congress is to get these uncertainties out of the way.

C. M. T. C. SAVED.

By an overwhelming vote the House rejected the advice of its appropriations committee to eliminate funds for Citizens' Military Training Camps from the 1934 budget. The War Department supply bill now carries $2,500,000 for operation of these camps. President Hoover's recommendation for a drastic cut in this appropriation was given no more heed than the advice of the committee.

Congress can well afford to maintain these summer training camps. They are an investment in citizenship. During this period of hard times, when thousands of young men are roaming about the country in their efforts to find employment, the C. M. T. C. are especially valuable. Savings can be made in dozens of other places with less sacrifice of the national welfare than would be entailed in the elimination of this training in national defense and citizenship.

President Hoover objects to transferring to a committee of Congress the powers of the Treasury Department and the courts in regard to tax refunds. Doesn't he know that the Constitution has been repealed?

Senator Glass contends that old 16 to 1 is not germane to the banking bill. He's lucky that Senator Wheeler doesn't substitute 16 to 1 for all other legislation.

Japan can't understand why the Dragon should become excited when its tail is lopped off.

Now, France, you see that the way for a debtor to obtain consideration is to show good faith.

ORDERLY DEFLATION

From the Magazine of Wall Street.

Immediate revision of the Federal bankruptcy laws is urged by President Hoover and the proposal also has active sponsorship in Congress. Such a measure, designed to ease and expedite the normal processes of deflation, is probably the soundest and most constructive remedy advanced since the depression began. It frankly recognizes the necessity of some further debt liquidation on the part of individuals and corporations and seeks a fairer apportionment of the burden between creditor and debtor. The idea is not to place an artificial check upon salutary deflation, but to eliminate some of its more painful effects. It looks in the direction of business salvage and reconstruction instead of that of business ruin. The general purpose of the law now in force is to give the heavily involved debtor an opportunity to free himself from all obligations but at the cost of all his assets. He has an unimpeded opportunity to start over again, but is deprived of the instrumentalities of a start.

In almost every case of business distress there are creditors who oppose any plan of readjustment, even though it is obviously in the best interests of the creditors as a whole. It is now proposed to give a debtor an opportunity to call a halt in the dissolution of his business and appeal to the courts for an orderly examination of his affairs, looking to a readjustment based on equity. The reform is to be applicable to corporations and individuals. Its application to the former is of profound interest to the investing public. It promises in the case of some railway companies, for instance, that equity securities will not be wiped out, that bonded debts will in the end gain more than they may momentarily lose. Moreover, the whole investing and financial community would be spared the devastating shock that would inevitably ensue if great institutions, strong yesterday and strong again with general business recovery, should be permitted to fail.

And How!

POST HASTE

Under the Senate beer bill the Vigilante Committee would have to confess: "Yes, we know that Bill Beer is an outlaw, but we have lost our rope."

"Borah bars beer to minors." But even the sappers will avoid Senate "wine."

The new administration was elected for four years, but in keeping with current practice the lame duck amendment reduces the term content 4.16 per cent.

Of all things, why do the two English-speaking nations have to talk about a quid pro quo basis for debt negotiations when good old-fashioned barter is so popular?

Farmers who would deflate the value of the dollar should consider the necessity of decropping 25,000,000 acres added to wheat acreage for war needs.

Congressional consistency: The House votes non-intoxicating beer but protects dry States from getting drunk on it; senators reduce its alcoholic content 1-6 of 1 per cent to be sure it is non-intoxicating and then prohibit its use by minors or advertising it to corrupt family morals.

Inflation: A scheme to aid debtors by penalizing ten times as many provident citizens by debasing sound money.

The ladies who objected to Prof. Einstein as a Red will feel vindicated. He has only been here a fortnight and has already located America's cardinal trouble.

Seventeen small nations of the League of Nations committee of nineteen outvoted France and England on a minor issue, which shows what a democratic institution it is becoming.

Geneva straining its long-distance glasses for sixteen months on the Far East might turn around and have a look at the threatened row in the Balkan back yard.

Missouri felt pretty chesty yesterday; thirty-five States had to wait for her to show lame ducks the way out.

Some of the President-elect's first trouble will come from "friends" who will start raving if the miracles do not begin to happen in the first 60 days.

If the scientists want a real job, why not work on a method by which a man might bequeath his learning and experience to another?

If Warm Springs can melt the difference between a La Follette and a Baruch, pipe it up to the White House.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

CHANGE OF MIND.

Time was with pride I used to say:
"I hope to leave him rich some day.
I hope he'll never know the cares
Which I have had to bear."
And saying thus, it seemed that I
Believed that when I came to die,
My rest would sweeter be to know
My child was free from care.

Today I know parental pride
Was dreaming on its foolish side,
And building pictures fair to see,
But bitterly untrue.
Since when have sons to manhood grown
On private incomes of their own?
Since when have sons their merit proved
Without a task to do?

And so no more I shout aloud
From motives filial and proud;
I want to save my boy from pain
And doubt and loss and care.
No! No! My cry is this today:
I want to teach my boy the way
To stand to life and work and think
And bravely do his share.

Is It the Fault of the Master If the Servants Use Their Liberty Unwisely?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHEN your job is gone and your family is forced to ask charity, it is hard to believe in a merciful Father who notes the fall of a sparrow.

It is hard to believe because we are neither fair nor honest in our thinking. It is our habit to excuse ourselves and blame others for the evil that befalls us. So we doubt God's mercy now and mutter in rebellion: "If He loves us, why does He permit such things?"

Our fault is that love of money has destroyed our sense of values.

It is true that the foxes have holes and the birds have nests. The lily is beautifully clothed, though it takes no anxious thought for the morrow. And the wild creatures everywhere obtain a living simply by working for it day by day.

But these humblest of God's creatures have only the things they need. Nowhere will you find a promise or an indication that the foxes should have mansions of marble, or the birds a nest studded with diamonds, or the lily a limousine wherein to display herself.

Now, more than ever before, the earth produces abundance for all. And nothing but man's greed and folly fill the earth with misery.

Is it God's fault that unwise statesmen so nearly wrecked civilization? Is it His fault that the world wasted its savings in a mad orgy of gambling?

Do you blame Him because your own want of foresight and prudence made you bankrupt?

"But," you say, "He might have prevented it."

True, perhaps, but do you wish to be a marionette? Could you enjoy life if some superior power controlled your every movement, so that you could do nothing wrong or unwise? And if you were such a helpless wooden toy, would such a power make you wealthy? Has wealth proved itself such an aid to character and righteousness that an all-wise guide would compel you to acquire it?

Place the blame where blame is due. And learn, if you can, that other things have greater value than money. Can you say that money bought your five most prized possessions?

One of Mr. Hoover's commissions, appointed to study social trends, reports that Americans know more about making money than spending it.

Lust for money destroys our ability to enjoy life. Surely it is blasphemy to blame God when that lust leads us into pits we have dug for ourselves.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Mr. Borah's Economics.

Boston Transcript.

Senator Borah whose capacity as an economist never has added to his reputation, has made a strike for the leadership of the forces which would reflate the currency of the United States, on the theory that more plentiful and cheaper money would of itself stimulate business and hasten the return of prosperity. The sales tax he holds to be "cruel," although he makes no reference to the proposed increase of the prices of wheat, cotton and some other commodities by Government fiat, for the benefit of certain classes and not the Treasury of the Government itself. Ogden L. Mills, in an article copyrighted by the NANA, Inc. (why should a Secretary of the Treasury at this time issue an article restricted by copyright?) although not answering the senator directly, pleads the opposite cause, and declares that to abandon the gold standard and cheapen the American dollar now would eventually intensify the maladjustment of prices which already exists; that the remedy would, in the long run, prove worse than the disease.

"Settled in a Jiffy."

Brooklyn Citizen.

What to do with Muscle Shoals, which has cost the Government up to date something like $150,000,000 and eventually will cost perhaps $300,000,000 before the grandiose plan is completed, was settled in a jiffy after President-elect Roosevelt, accompanied by Senator Norris, inspected the plant on his way to Warm Springs.

Mr. Roosevelt has elected to go along with the Progressives on the power issue. This is certain to estrange the conservative forces of the country which are adamant in their defense of private operation.

Multiple Taxation.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The House Ways and Means Committee, investigating the duplication of taxes levied by the Federal Government and by State or other local agencies, finds 326 instances, says a preliminary report issued by the chairman, Representative Vinson, of Kentucky. This is one of the flaws in our tax system, lending itself not only to excessive levies in some instances, but to duplication of tax-collecting machinery that accounts for much of the rising cost of government. The respective provinces of Federal and local taxes have never been clearly defined. As the needs of hard times force legislators, Federal and local, to seek new sources of revenue, there is an increasing tendency for each body to invade fields formerly considered exclusive to the other.

As to Cuba.

Brooklyn Eagle.

The Fish resolution asking President Hoover to "pacify Cuba," if necessary by our right of intervention under the Platt amendment, can hardly be taken too seriously. Mr. Hoover has only seven weeks' tenure in the White House. The job of pacifying Cuba can not be accomplished in that time.

Public sentiment in this country would not sustain intervention by force either by the passing administration or the incoming administration. To use a colloquial expression, we are selfish enough to "let Cuba stew in her own juice" rather than add to our own numerous stock of trouble.

Jeffersonian simplicity marked so many of the recent inaugurals, it's a matter of surprise that no one was given a ticket for tying his horse to a fireplug.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

"Democrat" Says Naming of Progressive to Cabinet Would Offend Regular Democrats.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Practically all the leading newspapers of the country are carrying daily articles and editorials on the possible line-up of the President-elect's Cabinet. The disquieting and unusual feature of this speculation is that so many of the writers are confidently predicting the naming of at least one of the so-called Republican progressive senators who bolted the Republican ticket and voted for Mr. Roosevelt.

The right of Mr. Roosevelt to select his own Cabinet will not be disputed by any one, but it would be unfortunate for the Democratic party, to say the least, if he should go so far as to appoint one of these so-called progressive Republicans to his Cabinet. I use the word "unfortunate" advisedly, because there are many able and deserving Democrats who would be discouraged by this recognition of party enemies.

The contention made by some of the writers that the appointment to the Cabinet of one of these progressives would be entirely justified in recognition of the (alleged) fact that they were responsible for placing some of the States in the Democratic column in November, is, as every political leader of both parties in and out of Congress knows, pure bunkum. Due to the conditions that prevailed in this and other countries there is not a man in either party who might have been President that could have been reelected to that office. While it may be true that the bolting of the Republican ticket and the supporting of the Democratic nominee of some or all of these progressives had the effect of adding some few thousand votes to the Democratic ticket, in not a single State would the result have been changed had these so-called Republicans supported the ticket of their party. As proof of this statement, if there be any who are inclined to doubt it, just look back to 1928 and remember how Nebraska acted in spite of Senator Norris' enthusiastic support of Al Smith.

On the other hand, it is claimed by some of the Cabinet guessers that other Presidents have gone outside of their respective parties in the selection of their Cabinets. What President, Republican or Democrat, has ever appointed on his Cabinet a man who was then serving in Congress as a member of a party to which the President did not belong? Not one, so far as the writer can recall. It is one thing to appoint a person not so prominently identified with the opposition party, and quite another thing to appoint to a prominent and important position a man who is at the time serving in Congress as a member of the opposite party.

If I were a Republican I certainly would not relish the prospect of having such men as those progressives now being mentioned as possible appointees being named to the Cabinet by a Republican President. Being a Democrat, the prospect of such an appointment is, of course, much more offensive.

A DEMOCRAT.

Says Black Bill, to Provide Beer in District, Would Bring Return of the Saloon.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Early in January, Congressman Loring M. Black, of New York, introduced a bill to regulate the sale of beer in the District of Columbia—if and when the Volstead act is modified. The congressman made it known that the bill had been approved by the Crusaders with a view of making it a model for State-control legislation. The Crusaders are generally recognized as the wet organization that has made the highest professions of social concern. They would replace national prohibition with regulations making for "true temperance." They have been most positive in their opposition to the return of the old-time saloon with its brass rails, spittoons and vile atmosphere.

Now what does the Black bill, which they helped to frame, provide? It provides a licence fee of $100 for all dealers selling beer by the glass and a fee of $25 for all dealers selling the stuff by the bottle. The outcome of the legislation, presumably, would be that establishments selling bottled beer could sell it by the drink and vice versa. It takes no great amount of perspicuity to see that those places selling beer by the glass would be to all intents and purposes saloons. Now who was it that said something about not permitting the saloon to return?

A Shame to Cut Down American Defensive Forces.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I agree with your correspondent that a reduction of any of our forces is a sad mistake; and the reducing of the Marine Corps is a shame to our country.

I was born amid the echoes of the morning gun, while our bright flag went up the flag pole, and from that time to this I have served under it, on the frontier, near cities and in foreign lands. Our soldiers are always ready to spring to the help of any one.

One time there was a fire in a nearby town. They asked our help. We went in to see how the fire went. Standing near by was a fine big new fire engine. We asked why it stood idle. They said they did not know how to work it. And so our small antique engine went chugging along, our soldiers working like beavers, and the fire was quelled.

The Marines are soldiers, like the Infantry, and the Artillery, only they live on ships. Soldiers are quite as well trained as the Marines, but as they are stationed on land, it takes longer to get them to out-of-the-way places. Their fighting ability is quite as good as the Marines.

Early Bankruptcy Reform Is Pledged

House Vote Likely Monday as Railroads' Plight Is Put Forth.

(Associated Press.)

Plain statements on the plight of the railroads yesterday reinforced a move for House passage of bankruptcy reform legislation under suspension of the rules next Monday.

The House already has agreed to make Monday suspension day, which provides a short cut for a vote on the bankruptcy measure with Speaker Garner's consent. He has already indicated that the bill may be brought up. A two-thirds vote would be necessary for passage.

"We want to vote on the bill next Monday," Chairman Sumners, of the House Judiciary Committee, said yesterday, "although there'll be some counting of noses before a definite decision is reached."

Comments in the formal report on the measure yesterday emphasized the reasons for characterizing it as emergency legislation.

It provides means of cutting down the indebtedness of and reorganizing the affairs of hard-pressed individuals corporations and railroad corporations.

Greek President Orders Election

Chamber Is Dissolved at Request of Premier Venizelos.

Athens, Greece, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—President Zaimis signed a decree today dissolving the chamber and setting new elections for March 5.

The president's action followed approval in the Senate of a resolution calling for the dissolution of the lower house under provisions of the Greek constitution.

Eleutherios Venizelos, who became premier for the fifth time in 23 years last week, requested new elections because he had only a bare majority of two votes in the chamber. The Senate vote on dissolution showed a majority of 52. The meeting of the new chamber was fixed for March 27.

Plan to Return War Bodies Fails

Browning's Plea Is Ruled Out of House Bill on Technicality.

(Associated Press.)

An effort to provide funds in the War Department supply bill for the removal of bodies of American soldiers remaining in Europe failed yesterday in the House.

A former captain in the American Expeditionary Force, Representative Gordon Browning, of Tennessee, offered an amendment, which was ruled out on a technicality raised by Representative Collins (Democrat), of Mississippi.

"I am not willing," Browning had told the House, "for the remains of American troops to remain in European cemeteries. Conditions have changed since they laid down their lives. The conditions changed in a remarkably short length of time. Countries have disregarded their written word to the United States. We might as well admit that a feeling has been engendered. We should bring back the bodies of our dead so we can control our sentimental attachment."

Ratification Cheered By Lame Duck House

(Associated Press.)

A lame duck session of the House yesterday applauded word that the country had ruled against any more such sessions.

Representative Nelson (Democrat), Missouri, brought on the cheers when he told the House his State had been the thirty-sixth to ratify the lame duck amendment.

KING OF THE JUNGLE

by CHARLES THURLEY STONEHAM

SYNOPSIS.

Kaspa, a 4-year-old white boy, is found in the heart of the jungle by Kali, a powerful lioness, who had just been bereft of her cubs and the little manchild is raised by her in the midst of the lion family. The family consists of Kali's mate, the leader of the pack, her two young cubs, Ruka and Dogo, another male lion, Nguvu and Mua, his mate, who is trapped and killed by natives. Paka dies of old age and the family is left without a leader. One day, while the lions are enjoying their kill, a strange male lion, Bulu, black-maned, young and powerful, drives Nguvu and the two young cubs away, chases Kaspa up a tree and takes his place at the kill. Kali, obedient to the law that governed her kind, accepts Bulu as the new leader of the pack.

CHAPTER IV.

IT seemed to Kali that they could not do better than obey Bulu and wax fat under his dominance. Ruka and Dogo would fall into line, of course. The habit of subservience to an older lion was implanted in them. They were not yet old and experienced enough to take independent action. Nguvu must fend for himself. He had challenged Bulu's supremacy and had lacked determination to gain his point. Kali obeyed the instinct of her kind. But Kaspa was not so amenable.

He understood that while Balu ruled the lion pack there was no place in it for him, and the idea of joining with strangers or living a solitary life was frightening.

He resented the intrusion of the big lion into their circle, and, unlike the young lions, had no wish to let that resentment cool. He had all the pertinacity and determination of man. As long as he lived Bulu would be his enemy and he would direct all his energies to overcoming him.

He watched the dawn break over the line of dark trees and in silence suffered his companions to depart to seek their daytime lair. When they had vanished from the glade and the waiting hyenas had gathered to the remains of the kill, he slipped down the tree and took the trail of Nguvu. He found the old lion lying in a donga about a mile away. It being the tail end of the rains, the donga had water in it, and Nguvu had drunk there. The old fellow was badly mauled and had lost a good deal of blood. Kaspa sat down by him and conveyed to him his sympathy. Nguvu did not reply. He was feeling sore and savage; his pride had been hurt even more than his body.

Kaspa understood that he would lie up near the water for at least three days to recover somewhat from his injuries. After that he intended to live solitary. He had not had a mate since Mua's death, and he did not want one. Doubtless there was plenty of meat to be had by a single lion, and certainly when a kill had been made it would last longer. He did not ask Kaspa to share his fortunes, by which the boy knew that he had no desire to be reminded of his ignominious dismissal from the pack. It seemed probable that Nguvu would turn into a dangerous old misogynist, who would become a cattle or man killer and eventually end his life in a battle against spears or bullets, as such beasts always do.

Kaspa stayed the day with him. He did not know what to do. In his mind a fierce anger against Bulu held sway, but he knew that his only safety lay in keeping out of the big lion's way. He dared not remain in the district, for sooner or later his enemy would take him at a disadvantage with no trees or rocks to hand, and then he could not live a minute in combat with that terrific strength.

When night came he took leave of Nguvu and headed away up river. He had determined to seek the high veldt where Paka had been fond of hunting when the dry season was firmly established. It was nearly a hundred miles to the cave in the donga, but he accomplished it in two nights. He killed a dik-dik (a small forest antelope) on the way, and when at last the high, open country was about him he felt quite cheerful and contented.

Things were different from what he had expected. The Bomogo had not yet left the district, and the plains were covered with their cattle and the little mud-built villages in which both men and cattle lived.

Those little inclosures of bush and hard-baked mud had always been empty, and frequently half destroyed when Kaspa had seen them before, but now they were occupied by hordes of evil-smelling natives and mongrel dogs that barked at the lion smell drifting down-wind to them.

Kaspa took up his quarters in the old cave and went about his hunting. He left the larger game alone and concentrated upon tommy, grant, duiker and such creatures as he could overpower without trouble. His hunting was successful. At first he had found it difficult to steal up on a buck single-handed and capture it with a quick rush, but after a few failures he discovered that there were easier ways of hunting than those employed by the lions.

For instance, he could run down his quarry like the cheetah. Let him get within 50 yards of a buck, and he would follow it without difficulty over 5 miles of veldt until the exhausted animal could no longer keep ahead of him.

He discovered this hitherto unknown attribute with great pleasure. Such heavy beasts as lions are disinclined to run long distances, and rapidly become blown, but Kaspa found there were few animals that could match him over a long distance.

His first dash at a buck was usually unsuccessful. It would bound away as fast as himself, and sometimes faster, but after a mile or so the animal would be straining every nerve to maintain its lead, while Kaspa would be running quite freely and with plenty in hand. The chase invariably ended one way—in the success of the pursuer.

For a time this method of hunting contented him, but the urge to experiment and innovate which was in his blood caused him to wonder if he could not copy the tactics of other animals besides those of the cheetah and the wild dog. One night he lay out along the branch of a tree, over a trail to a water-hole in the forest. As a duiker passed below him he dropped upon it, and broke its neck. That was the leopard's trick, and owing to his ability to climb trees he could easily employ it.

On nights when he felt disinclined to chase his meat on the veldt he procured it by this means. But though for a time the chase kept him busy, he was not altogether satisfied; he found loneliness disagreed with him. There had always been the communal interests of the pack, the games in the evening sunlight or under the full moon when the kill had been sampled and every one was full and happy. Here there was nothing but the same routine night after night, and the daytime sleep that was singularly unsatisfying without the comfortable breathing of his friends to sing his lullaby.

Also it was ill to be forced to depend upon himself alone. Nothing attempted to molest him. Mixture of lion and man as he was, the creatures of veldt and forest treated him with respect and often with fear; but he himself feared man, and here he was surrounded by him. From the edge of his donga he could look out upon the numerous herds of cattle and the youths and children in charge of them. At night his approach to the manyetta was heralded by shouts and the waving of brands, for it was second nature to him to employ the hunting grunt of the lion, and these people could not tell the difference. He feared man because he did not understand him, and most of all he feared that he would be surprised in his sleep and butchered as he had seen Mua butchered.

Together with his brothers he would not have feared, for in their strength and courage he had supreme confidence, but what could he do single-handed against a number of creatures each as powerful as himself. It did not occur to Kaspa that man might be as frightened of him as of a lion; he thought that beings who controlled creatures as powerful as oxen must indeed be among the most powerful of beasts.

Ruka or Dogo could kill an ox easily enough, but in his present stage of development he could not. It took him all his time to kill a big grant, or a kongoni. He must, then, respect creatures who drove oxen about like sheep.

The discovery of how puny his enemy actually was came to him by accident. Walking along the edge of the forest one morning after a night's hunting he came upon a man at work upon something of interest. Kaspa realized that the man had not seen him, and with a single motion he swung himself into a tree and concealed himself in its foliage.

The man held a long broad-bladed knife in his hand. He was searching about for a rough stone. Having found one to his satisfaction, he came slowly toward the tree in which Kaspa was concealed, whetting the knife upon the stone.

A sapling growing beside the trunk of the tree appeared to please him. He put away the stone and began to chop it, using his knife like an ax. Kaspa was astonished to see that each blow of the instrument left a deep white gash in the hard wood. He had been in great fear when the man approached his hiding place, but now fear began to be swallowed up in curiosity. He craned down from his leafy screen the better to observe.

The man did not seem satisfied with his tool. After a few blows he produced the stone again and worked with it for some minutes. Kaspa marked his manner of grinding the edge of the blade, and wondered at the purpose of it. In his interest he exposed himself too much. The man looked up and saw him. A grimace of terror distorted his face; his mouth opened in a shout of horrified amazement. Then he hurled the knife at the dreadful apparition above him, turned and fled. By chance the knife struck Kaspa in the shoulder and stuck in his flesh. He uttered the awful roar of the enraged lion, tore the thing loose, and leaped out of the tree, intent upon the destruction of the creature that had wounded him.

The man was twenty paces away, running with all his speed for the veldt and the assistance of the cattle herds, but Kaspa overhauled him as a greyhound overhauls a terrier.

His progress was a succession of leaps, each 10 feet long. His legs seemed to fly over the ground as though equipped with powerful springs, but his body did not rise in the air; rather it crouched and glided, flattening down like that of a four-footed animal when it runs at its highest speed. He overtook the man and dealt him a terrific sweeping blow on the side of the head, with the hand that held the knife.

The sharp blade entered the man's neck below the ear, and it was the impact of the hilt that sent him spinning into the bush with a cracked skull and a severed jugular. Still retaining his hold upon the knife, Kaspa walked up to the dead man, growling harshly. He examined him with nose and eyes. He was interested in the wound that had killed him, and noticed that his hand was covered with blood, which also stained the knife.

A slight nervous contraction of the body caused him to thrust a restraining hand against the man's chest. The knife sunk into the flesh, and Kaspa discovered what had caused the other wound. He examined the knife carefully, stroked it and sustained a stinging wound that caused him to drop the thing as though it were a snake. Thought enlightened him. Of course the knife would cut if wrongly handled—did not a claw scratch by accident when one was playing? He picked up the knife gingerly and made his way to the cave, where he spent the morning playing with the thing and learning its habits. By the time he settled down to his sleep he knew all about the knife and how to handle it so that it would hurt others and not himself.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

The long, slender face can be either "skinny" or "slender," depending upon the lines she selects! (Says Dah-ray.)

NOW we come to the last face in our Face Series, I mean. This is, as you have guessed from the illustration—the long and slender face. Usually with long and slender neck, often with a severe or tightened up expression—sometimes even a crabbed one. Which has nothing whatsoever to do with the character, my deah! 'Tis just an effect produced by the physiognomy—and an effect which can be completely changed by the wearing of the proper lines.

Now I have sketched a misguided lady for you at the left, who is not content with having a long slender face and neck, wrists and arms, but insists upon wearing all of the things that make her seem positively skeleton-skinny, instead of gracefully slender! Look at her hat, which shows too much forehead, and adds to her height by its trimming. At her V-neckline, and the V-lines of the darker dress—this type seems to dote on the coat dress, which it never should! Then the long, hanging necklace, the long, dangling earrings, and the shortish and loose sleeve which is forever slipping to the elbow to display the scrawniness of the arm. Everything this lady is wearing contributes to making her seem long, skinny, severe and sour faced!

The very same lady—after Dah-ray has talked to her, at the right, is wearing a hat which makes her face seem softer and fuller, and shorter; has fluffed her hair out for the same effect; wears the kind of gloves which flatter her arms and wrists, and effects high, round necklines and collars and a softening and concealing fur or scarf whenever possible. Left to right, or horizontal lines, all of them. Below, she is wearing a coiffure and round necklines which make her seem anything but skinny—exotic, rather. What say you? And in the circle a couple of sleeve effects which flatter the too slender arm and hand!

Why not wear the right lines, when it is so easy to do so? In every style change these lines can be found—and what a world of difference there is between "skinny" and "slender!"

Are you one of the ladies who only looks lovely in a frock when it is new? Just because you haven't a personal maid to keep you soignee? Well, if you are—and who isn't?—just you sit right down this very minute and address one envelope to yourself and another to the Dare Department of The Washington Post and send the one to yourself inside of the one to Dah-ray, so she can mail you back a lo-o-o-o-o-o-ng leaflet telling you all the secrets of all the French maids she ever had, so that you can just turn this leaflet over to your maid and have her learn what it's all about. Or so that you yourself can learn, and act accordingly. Thereby keeping yourself always looking chic and smart and as though you were in a new frock from head to foot—all in less time than it takes to read this!

* * * *

And a Little French.

I think I have hit on the best explanation of a very troublesome syllable in French—one that is almost impossible to describe to you in English—the "j" which sounds the word "I" referring to oneself—and which starts off many a fashion word such as "jabot" and "Jean," &c. Well, you know how to say "rouge," referring to lipstick, and "beige," referring to the color, don't you? So then, it's the way the last end of both of these words is said—that you pronounce the "j" when you use it in French. Figure it out now—say "rouge" aloud, then say "Jean" and say the "j" just as you said the last half of that "rou-ge." Not as it is spelled, but as you said it!

Au Revoir.

Culbertson on Bridge

By ELY CULBERTSON

570.

AN OLD FRIEND.

ONE of the prettiest plays in bridge is the Vienna Coup. I have touched upon it many times, but it seems to have a habit of cropping up about every two weeks. The latest example enabled the Declarer, who had reached a small slam contract in notrump, to pick up an extra trick on the hand. As the hand was played in a Howell match-point game, this extra trick gave North and South a top-score on the board.

North—Dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ A ♡ A K 8 7 ◇ A K Q 3 ♣ A 4 3 2
♠ J 5 3 2 ♡ J 10 4 3 ◇ 9 7 ♣ J 9 6	N W E S	♠ K 10 7 ♡ 6 4 ♡ 6 5 ◇ J 5 4 2 ♣ 10 7
	♠ Q 9 8 ♡ Q 9 2 ◇ 10 8 6 ♣ K Q 8 5

The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
		2♡	Pass
2NT (1)	Pass	3◇	Pass
3♡	Pass	4NT	Pass
6NT (2)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1. Although technically South with almost 1½ honor-tricks, has a right to respond with three notrump, his hand, distributionally weak, suggests caution.

2. South, who has given nothing but minimum responses up to this time, decides, in view of his partner's very strong bidding plus his own King and three Queens, to immediately contract for the Slam.

West chose, rather unwisely, to open his fourth-best heart. He feared that South's only strength was in the spade suit and he did not want to lead up to any tenace holding; accordingly, he decided to lead through the strength in the Dummy hand. Of course, the heart 9 in the South hand won the trick. Twelve tricks were now assured—that is, 4 heart tricks, 3 diamond tricks, 1 spade trick and 4 club tricks—barring a bad club break. To make the extra trick Declarer had hopes of either the diamond suit breaking or a possible squeeze. A squeeze could be developed if the hand containing four diamonds also had the spade King. Naturally this eventuality must be prepared for, and that is where the Vienna Coup enters into the play. South first cashed his 3 remaining heart tricks and then led the Ace of spades from Dummy, deliberately setting up the King, which turned out to be in the East hand. He then led two rounds of diamonds and followed by running the club suit, taking the last 3 club tricks in his own hand. The last lead of clubs had East "staggering against the ropes," as to give up a diamond would obviously set up the last diamond in Dummy. Therefore, East played the one card which he was not sure would lose a trick. He discarded his spade King, and Declarer promptly claimed the rest of the tricks, the Queen of spades in his hand and the diamond in Dummy being good. Although the Opening lead helped South to take all the tricks, he could not have done so without combining his good fortune with perfect play.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

THIS diet compiled with the aid of a physician and a dietetic specialist is not strenuous and will not harm anyone in good health. Having started with a three-day liquid diet, continue your reducing regime by accepting the following or a similar diet as your regular maintenance diet. Let your scales tell you what progress you are making. With a little exercise and this diet you should be able to trim down 2 pounds every week. For those who wish to reduce between 10 and 15 pounds, a few weeks should mark the end of their troubles and any excess bulges. If you wish to reduce more than 15 pounds, however, it is fairly strenuous to do it all in one long lap. Stop at the 15-pound mark. Rest awhile; two weeks, anyway. Keep your weight constant at that mark. You may eat a little more during the two weeks. Then start afresh, shrinking your stomach again with one day's liquid fasting and resuming the diet that follows:

Foods for Use.

Proteins: Eggs (boiled, poached, baked and light omelette), lean beef, mutton, chicken, lamb, turkey, squab, thin crisp bacon, sole, tuna, halibut, seabass, pickerel, fresh cod, perch, black bass.

Vegetables: Celery, spinach, asparagus, summer squash, eggplant (baked), cucumber, beet tops, turnip tops, lettuce, okra, turnips, oyster plant, mallow, small carrots, cauliflower, endive, rhubarb, tomatoes, kale, water cress.

Fruits: Apples, peaches, pears, pineapple, oranges, lemons, grapefruit, cantaloupe, honeydew melon, watermelon, blackberries, raspberries, cranberries, loganberries.

This diet should help you take off a few pounds a week.

What Today Means

"AQUARIUS."

IF JANUARY 25 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:30 a. m. to 8:30 a. m., from 11 a. m. to 12:15 p. m., and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 1 p. m. to 1:45 p. m., and from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m.

There are many opposing forces operative on this January 25, so do not be surprised if you see sudden "reversals of form" in both business and personal affairs on this date. The business that is just humming along and showing a neat profit may suddenly hit a slump. The business plan or venture that seems about "to go under" may suddenly show signs of renewed activity. Friendships will be made and broken, lovers may come together or part, quickly, definitely, and even without apparent reason.

The child born on this January 25 will not bring a great deal of joy into the lives of his parents. He will be stubborn, secretive, and not at all receptive to the love offered him. The child will not turn to them for guidance or encouragement. He will early seek to make his own way in life and will have a useful career of some sort.

If January 25 is the date of your birth, you are inclined to be inconsistent. One can never tell which side of the fence you will be on in any matter, and you do not hesitate to reverse your stand at a moment's notice. You are a person who enthuses about everything and everyone that comes along, consequently your enthusiasms are of short duration and not productive of any lasting results. In the course of your life you will probably embark quite seriously on any number of "careers," only to drop them after a short time to take up something else. You are a rolling stone. You like to travel, and in all probability you will get around a good deal more than the average person.

You are a keen observer of life if your birthday is on January 25. People interest you greatly and you like to watch their struggles for existence. If only you would stop long enough to put your impressions on paper you should be able to turn out some worthwhile and interesting writing. You are a delightful and sparkling conversationalist, and a great asset to any gathering where light and airy chatter is the order. You are vacillating in love and should marry only after most careful consideration.

Successful people born January 25:
James E. Murdock, actor.
George Edward Pickett, soldier.
William C. DeWitt, lawyer.
Theodore F. Seward, musician.
William M. Taggart, journalist.
Selden Connor, soldier and politician.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

CONSERVING THE TEETH IN WINTER.

TO keep the teeth through the winter time a person must watch his diet. If he does not he will develop a lot of decay and the dentists will empty his sock of money put there for a rainy day. Or he will develop scurvy, inflammation of the gums, and, eventualy, pyorrhea will take away all the teeth that decay has left.

One group of dental men, research students and clinicians think that the chief error in diet leading to tooth trouble is insufficient calcium in the diet. Among the foods rich in lime, or calcium, are all forms of greens. On the basis of this opinion, every man should provide himself with a supply of winter greens. If he has a late turnip patch or some collards in the garden, let him protect them against the live stock.

When the animals are turned into the fields and gardens to mop up, put something around the greens to keep them for use by the human beings who will need them more than the cows do, or cover them over as protection against snow and freezing, or get them into the cellar, or, better still, into cold storage.

One cause of winter tooth and gum trouble, according to Dr. James, is a diet that is poor in antiscorbutic vitamin. He reports several cases which came on after fairly protracted use of diets too rich in eggs, meats, cakes and breads, and too poor in fruits and vegetables. Some of these cases became normal quickly after switching to a diet in which there was an abundance of fruit juice. The farmers are lucky if they have stored an abundance of apples and turnips for the winter. Here, too, is a place for the greens from the late fall and winter patches and also for those that have been stored.

Another view held by many dentists is that the vitamin which is needed for protection of the teeth is D. This vitamin is found in such fish oils as that of cod, halibut, liver and of canned salmon and sardines. It is fairly abundant in milk and milk products. Vitamin D has some effect on the calcium or lime of the body, and lime is the most important ingredient in teeth and jaws.

The various nuts are rich in lime. These are among the foods that are readily stored for winter use.

CROUP.

D. S. M. writes: 1. We have a 2½-year-old son who seems to have croup or a croupy cold. Yesterday he started coughing a loose cough, as if his throat would be cleared if he knew how to cough. He has been well heretofore, but had difficulty breathing last night and was awakened several times.

2. Is croup contagious?

REPLY.

1. For the relief of croup, sirup of ipecac is given. Children who are prone to have croup are given some tonics that contain lime mixed with something to make the lime stick.

2. It is not.

Glass Mills' 'Twin,' Senator Long Says

Louisianan Assails Sponsor of Banking Bill as Candidate for Cabinet.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Long said yesterday that appointment of Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, as Secretary of the Treasury would give that post to a "twin brother" of Secretaries Mills and Mellon.

As debate on the Glass Bank bill rolled along in the Senate, and talk of Glass as Secretary of the Treasury continued in the lobbies, Long left the chamber to dictate a statement to newspapermen saying in part:

"The philosophy which Mr. Glass has contended here all day and for the last three days is the identical policy of Mellon and Ogden Mills."

Woman Grows Weaker In Attack of Sneezing

Princeton, Ky., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Growing weaker hourly from incessant sneezing since five a. m. Monday, Mrs. Lonnie Dickson, 48, a plumber's wife, tonight was considered by physicians to be in a serious condition. Dr. W. T. Morse and Dr. W. L. Cash, who are attending her, said Mrs. Dickson has sneezed approximately 20 times per minute.

The physicians said they were at a loss to explain what caused the ailment and had been able to provide but little relief by adminstering sedatives and employing the usual remedies. The ailment, the doctors said, will prove fatal unless some relief is given.

Nobody Loves a Fat Woman

The old saying has it that "everybody loves a fat man," but it's probably truer to say that nobody loves a fat woman. Man or woman, excess fat is a handicap. And with many a woman it is a tragedy as well.

A woman's charm is in a slender figure. Fat is the foe of beauty, the hallmark of middle age. And fat is unnecessary. Science has discovered a way to control excess weight. A simple, easy way that supplies the same normal element that the body itself uses. Thousands of women about you are using it every day. They find it in Marmola.

All you do is take four tablets a day. Moderation helps, of course, but starvation diets and strenuous exercise are not necessary. Try it yourself. Take it as directed in the book that you will find in every package. And when you reach the weight you desire, stop. It is so simple and easy that you will regret that you did not get rid of that hated fat months or even years ago.

You owe it to yourself to try Marmola. Why not start tomorrow? You can get it at any drug store.

COUNTY WOULD WAIT NEW STATE BUDGET

Prince Georges Proposes to Delay Until Outcome of Economy Plans.

A bill allowing Prince Georges County to defer making up its budget until after the Legislature has acted on proposed economy measures is being studied by State Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer, who represents Prince Georges County.

Senator Sasscer discussed his proposed measure with the county commissioners yesterday, although no formal action of approval was taken by the county board. The proposal was generally favored, it was understood. Before introducing the measure Senator Sasscer will discuss the bill with leaders of other counties to make sure that it will not disrupt other fiancial arrangements.

The present law provides that the county budget must be signed by the last Monday in March, while the Legislature's session extends through March. Changes in amount to be contributed by the State to county expenses are pending in the Legislature and probably will not be settled until the last days of the session, making it impossible for the commissioners to make up their budget by the legal date.

The new law also will postpone the signing of the school budget, which is due earlier than the county levy. Inasmuch as many of the Legislature's changes will affect school expenditures directly, the school board was faced with the problem of making a budget without knowledge of what State funds will be available. The proposed bill will apply only to Prince Georges County, as the date of signing the budget varies from county to county.

California's Coast Is Lashed by Gale

San Francisco Shipping Feels Brunt of New Storm From Sea.

San Francisco, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—High winds, heavy seas and rain pounded coast regions of northern California today as a new storm swept southward and inland, affecting many Western States.

San Francisco and the Bay Region felt the violence when strong winds and heavy seas interrupted water traffic. A large barge being towed to Monterey by a tug broke its line and was tossed high on the waves 5 miles off the Golden Gate. Five men were reported on the barge, clinging to the superstructure while two Coast Guard vessels worked to get it in hand.

A 34-mile an hour wind whipped the surface of San Francisco Bay, waves lapped the lower deck of a ferry boat. Maritime men said the storm, including snow and hail, was the worst on the bay in several years. The new liner Santa Paula, arriving here on its maiden voyage from New York was unable to dock.

Legal Snarl

Averted When Police Fail to Find Man Who Shot Across River.

A fine question of jurisdiction failed to materialize yesterday when Montgomery County (Md.), police failed to capture the culprit who started the whole thing.

Police at Bethesda, Md., were informed yesterday by Arthur Counselman, an employe of E. Lee Jones, of McLean, Va., that Will Grinage, another employe who had been working with Counselman on the Virginia shore, had been wounded by a bullet fired from the Maryland side. Counselman said that some one firing a rifle on a small island above the dam called Snake Island had shot across the river and that the bullet had ricocheted from a rock and struck Grinage in the stomach.

Sergt. Leroy Rodgers and Policeman Thomas DeNeil, of Bethesda, hurried to the island, but were unable to find the assailant. Later it was learned that Grinage was not seriously injured as the bullet had broken the skin but had not penetrated. And so ended a question that might even have been considered by the Supreme Court.

French Budget Cut By Finance Group

Ten-Billion Franc Project Reduced to Total of 3,445,000,000.

Paris, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—The finance committee of the Chamber of Deputies today cut the government's budget project calling for 10,000,000,000 francs in new taxes and economies down to 2,530,000,000 francs in new taxes and only 915,000,000 in economies, after a week's solid work. The debate opens in the chamber on Thursday.

Finance Minister Cheron is dissatisfied and will demand restoration of his project, but is unlikely to pose a question of confidence until after the bills come back from the Senate, where he expects support.

Socialist proposals for greater military economies including discontinuance of work on the cruiser Dunkirk were defeated.

Police Protect Burlesque Show

Yale Students in Uproar in Attempt to Steal Performance.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—A demonstrative group of Yale undergraduates at a revival of burlesque at Shubert's Theater last night made so much uproar that the company management asked for police protection. A squad of eighteen officers was sent. The theater has been given over entirely to drama, comedy, and opera for the last five years and the showing in burlesque was the first here in that period.

The merriment started when five students in evening clothes wearing beards of different colors appeared in a box and "stole" the show from the company. The audience from orchestra to gallery was largely of students.

While it was understood about thirty students were escorted outside during the evening, no complaint was entered or arrest made.

ARLINGTON CHAMBER HAS ANNUAL DINNER

Citizens Are Overburdened With Taxation, Rust Says at Meeting.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

With more than 200 persons gathered in Odd Fellows Hall at Clarendon last night, the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce held its annual dinner meeting. The invocation was by the Rev. Perry L. Mitchell, pastor of the Clarendon Baptist Church. Louis C. Carl, president, acted as toastmaster.

State Senator John W. Rust, of Fairfax, the principal speaker, declared that the people today are greatly overburdened with taxation. The population or the wealth of the country does not justify the heavy increase in taxes which since 1890 has increased from $1,000,000,000 to $15,000,000,000 in 1932, he said.

In Virginia alone the Federal Government derives $75,000,000 in taxes from tobacco alone, while the budget for the State is but $45,000,000, he pointed out.

County Manager Roy S. Braden urged all citizens to become better acquainted with the operations and expenditures of their local government.

He stated: "The highest tax we pay today in Virginia is the automobile tax, including gasoline tax. We never hear much complaint about it, but we do about real estate taxes that are not near as high."

President Carl made his annual report.

The program included piano solos by Roy Gurley, organist at Clarendon Baptist Church, and dances by Louise Carl, Jane Carl and Susan Hall.

Stockholders of the Arlington-Fairfax Counties Railway Co., at its annual meeting yesterday in the office of the secretary, Charles T. Jesse, elected the following directors:

Preston E. Dewey, Mrs. K. H. Echols, Howard B. Fields, S. W. Flagg, Dr. J. B. Gould, W. R. Gray, Ashton C. Jones, Dr. J. H. Parmelee, Carroll V. Shreve, B. M. Smith, Dr. Frank T. Stone, Dr. T. M. Talbott, Franklyn Williams, Harry R. Thomas and William C. Gloth. Officers will be elected later.

The newly elected directors of the Arlington-Fairfax Transportation Co. are Charles T. Jesse, Dr. J. H. Parmelee, Preston E. Dewey, B. M. Smith and Dewey J. Edwards.

Encouraged in their drive for members in the recently organized Clarendon Business and Professional Men's Association, officials last night declared the organization promises to be the largest and strongest in Arlington County which has as its aim "Boost Business!"

Many interesting features are being planned for the February meeting, according to an announcement by the entertainment committee.

Adoption of a resolution calling upon the county board to reduce salaries and other compensation of county officials to a comparable basis with salaries of similar officials in other counties and to exercise greater economy with a view to tax reductions was given by the Arlington Citizens Association last night. The association met in the auditorium of Patrick Henry School.

BANKER SAYS CLARK KEPT TWO ACCOUNTS

Former Montgomery Clerk Shifted $426 to Personal Fund, Court Told.

Maintenance of two accounts by Berry E. Clark, former clerk to the Montgomery County Commissioners, and transferring funds between the two accounts was revealed yesterday in testimony by George P. Henderson, president of the Montgomery County National Bank, at the second day of the trial of Clark for alleged embezzlement of county funds in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville, Md.

Mr. Henderson testified that Clark had maintained one account under the title of "Berry E. Clark, clerk to the county commissioners," and a personal account under the title of "Berry E. Clark." He testified to the transfer of funds amounting to nearly $4,000 from the clerk account to the personal account, one of the transactions being the sum of $426 for alleged embezzlement of which Clark is being tried.

The bank president said that Clark had withdrawn in November, 1930, the sum of $426 and deposited it in his personal account. He identified the check which was issued by Clark in the transaction. He also identified a number of other checks which had transferred funds from one account to the other. Mr. Henderson declared under cross-examination that there was nothing secret about the accounts.

Recalled to Stand.

Later in the afternoon Mr. Henderson was recalled to the stand by State's Attorney Stedman Prescott to identify a number of checks which passed through the two accounts. In the course of his testimony, Chief Judge Hammond Urner warned the jury that only the $426 check cited in the indictment should be considered in arriving at whether or not Clark was guilty, and informed them that the evidence regarding other checks was merely to show the system used and intent to embezzle the money. The judge's caution came after Defense Attorney Thomas L. Dawson had requested the judge to do so.

Mr. Henderson said on cross-examination that the checks deposited to the clerk's account all bore rubber stamp signatures. He said that the checks were returned to Clark after they had been honored at the bank. He stated that the clerk's account had been started October 23, 1925.

Accounts of Insane Patients.

Defense attorneys objected to questioning of Charles Y. Latimer, who succeeded Clark as clerk to the commissioners, regarding books kept in the clerk's office at the time of the alleged embezzlement. They contended that he was not competent to offer such testimony.

F. Barnard Welsh, of the defense, declared that Clark is not being tried for failing to make entries in his books, but for taking $426. State's Attorney Prescott said he wanted to show the jury that there are only two entries in the book where accounts of insane patients' reimbursements should be shown.

Mrs. Mary O'Brien, who had worked in the clerk's office for eleven years, then was called. She said the accounts should have been shown in "miscellaneous receipts" and also told the court where other items should be found. Mrs. O'Brien denied knowledge of a "little, black book" in which the defense alleges Clark kept his accounts.

Parade of 40 Witnesses.

A parade of some 40 witnesses was presented to the court yesterday by State's Attorney Prescott to identify checks which had been paid to Clark as clerk and checks which he is alleged to have drawn to pay grocer, meat, household and personal expenses. Among these were J. Fred Imirie and Martin F. Iverson, county building inspectors, who testified to turning over funds to Clark. Both said that sometimes they were a week or two late in turning over their reports because of some holdup in issuance of building permits or for other causes.

The trial has not been as well attended as had been expected. Although well-filled, the courtroom has not held the capacity crowds which attended the first trial. Much of the interchange of animosities between counsel that marked the first trial also is markedly lacking.

Objector to Military Drill At Maryland U. Is Upheld

Court Rules Expulsion of Ennis Coale Was Imposition of Religious Test in Violation of State Constitution; Capital Youth Involved.

It was ruled yesterday in circuit court in Baltimore by Judge Joseph N. Ulman that the expulsion of Ennis Coale from the University of Maryland because of his conscientious objection to military training was the result a religious test in violation of the Maryland constitution.

Coale was one of two students dropped from the university last fall for refusal to take the military training course at the university. Wayne L. Lees, of Washington, was the other student. His mandamus suit, seeking reinstatement, is still pending.

In deciding the case Judge Ulman said that it was of extreme importance and raised an entirely new question never passed upon by any court in this country. Assistant Attorney General Willis R. Jones, who represented the university, said the case would be taken to the Maryland Court of Appeals.

Judge Ulman's decision was that the exclusion of religious conscientious objectors against military training from the university, except on their relinquishment of their religious beliefs, is the imposition of a religious test.

Coale, who resides near Churchville, Md., had declared that his Methdoist Episcopal training caused him to oppose compulsory military training and was responsible for his conscientious scruples against warfare or preparation for war.

In the decision, Judge Ulman said: "The petitioner is sincere in his religious conscientious objection. Perhaps he is fanatical. Certainly he is one of a small minority in the youth of America."

Attorneys in the case will confer later with the judge to determine the form of the order which he will sign to carry out the reinstatement of Coale at the College Park institution.

Bloody Gran Chaco Battle in Fifth Day

Buenos Aires Reports 10 Attacks by Bolivians on Paraguayans.

Buenos Aires, Jan. 24 (U.P.).—Bolivian troops delivered their tenth smashing attack against the Paraguayan defenders of Fort Nanawa today, the fifth day of the bloodiest battle in the Chaco War.

Small advances were claimed by the Bolivians, but Paraguayan headquarters declared the attack was completely repulsed, with heavy casualties among the attackers and few among the defenders.

A Bolivian announcement this afternoon said Bolivian airplanes had decimated a column of Paraguayan troops which was attempting to retreat from Nanawa.

Firemen Propose Appropriation Cut

Sandy Spring Department Would Accept Slash of 20 Per Cent.

An offer to accept a 20 per cent cut in the annual appropriations made by the Montgomery County commissioners for the upkeep of the department was received yesterday by the commissioners from the Sandy Spring Volunteer Fire Department.

The firemen wrote that they realized the present tax conditions in the county and are willing to accept not more than a 20 per cent cut. They said they are able to do this because of rigid economy which has been practiced in maintenance of equipment. The volunteer fire departments of the county are allowed a $500 annual appropriation for each piece of fire equipment, the money to be used in purchase and upkeep.

The commissioners also received a petition from 38 taxpayers of the Laytonsville district asking that at least 1 mile of road be improved between Laytonsville and Unity, which they say is one of the heaviest traveled dirt roads in the county.

Stocks Continue Declines In Dull, Dawdling Dealing

Three-Tenths Loss Added to Previous Drop; Sales, 491,601 Shares.

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Stocks dawdled today, but the financial community found its attention diverted from dull security markets by happenings off the stock exchange.

Sterling jumped more than 3 cents to the best quotation since last October and silver futures became the medium for a time of excited speculation.

On the other hand, the Government security list hardly looked as though it expected a cheapening of the dollar.

Irregular stock changes by the close averaged into another small net loss, so that the market's drift was still downward. Weakness appeared in a few issues, notably National Biscuit, which tumbled 2 points. Professional traders were reported to have taken a short position in the stock, anticipating a reduction of the common dividend, but directors after the close voted a regular quartrely payment of 70 cents. Earnings for 1932 were somewhat under the annual rate. U. S. Steel preferred bogged down a bit; Wall street's prophets are currently rather inactive concerning the probable fate of that dividend next Tuesday, though a change of some sort is looked for in many quarters.

Tobacco shares tried to help the market, but their improvement, based partly on expectations of the usual extra disbursement by American Tobacco and partly on an increase in production of cigarettes in December, proved to be independent of the general list's trend. There were, however, scattered gains by metal shares, especially those of gold-producing companies.

Fractional net losses were listed for New York Central Pennsylvania, American Can, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, General Motors, Loew's, Woolworth, Montgomery Ward, North American and Consolidated Gas. Minor gains by Westinghouse, American Telephone, Corn Products and Pacific Gas made for a little irregularity. Norfolk & Western Railway hopped up a couple of points in response to the regular $2 dividend and estimated 1932 earnings of $11.30 a share, against $14.39 for 1931. Total stock sales were only 491 601 shares, with one exception the year's smallest volume.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Optimism prevailed on the stock exchange regarding war debts. Transference of funds to London raised sterling exchange, but the market remained unresponsive, the public still holding aloof. Professional operations improved gilt-edged securities, home rails and gold mining shares fractionally, while other sections drooped. The closing was quiet.

Paris—Prices on the bourse improved, particularly international issues, owing to the sharp rise in the pound sterling. The closing was firm.

Berlin—The boerse opened dull and inactive and the closing was slightly better.

GOODS MARKETS.

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Cotton goods continued quiet but steady today. A fair demand for rayon specialties was noted. Acetate yarns are oversold for the immediate future, with a corresponding pressure for deliveries. Burlap prices were stronger here following cables of higher Calcutta quotations.

CURB SINKS LOWER IN IRREGULAR SALES

Utilities Under Pressure as Sales Volume Mounts to 100,000 Shares.

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Listless currents of selling carried the curb market irregularly lower today. The turnover of 100,000 shares was only slightly larger than yesterday's.

In the mining group, Bunker Hill and Sullivan rose about a point in a light turnover, coincident with argument in Congress of proposals to aid silver. Lake Shore, one of the principal Canadian gold issues, was more active, however, gaining fractionally.

Utilities were under pressure in spots. Consolidated Gas of Batlimore lost nearly 2 points. American Gas & Electric sagged a point, then recovered all but a small fraction. Electric Bond & Share and Niagara Hudson eased small fractions. In some brokerage quarters it was suggested that the program for Government operation of Muscle Shoals, and more stringent control of utilities generally, may have brought some selling into these issues. It was recalled, however, that the President-elect has asserted that investors in sound companies must be protected.

Oils were barely steady, and there was little activity in the industrials. Aluminum Co. lost a fraction. In the investment trusts, Goldman-Sachs Trading was a shade higher, in response to its annual report, showing a reduction in bank loans, and indicated net asset value of $5.84 a share as of December 31.

Employment in manufacturing industries decreased 1.9 per cent in December, as compared with November, and pay rolls decreased 2.3 per cent.

These changes are based on reports received from 18,044 establishments in 89 of the principal manufacturing industries of the United States, having in December 2,636,280 employes whose combined earnings in one week were $44,795,448.

Increased employment was reported in 20 of the 89 manufacturing industries included in this monthly employment survey, and increased pay rolls were reported in 24 industries. The most pronounced increase in employment was shown in the agricultural implement industry, in which a gain of 15.2 per cent in number of workers was coupled with an increase of 14.3 per cent in pay rolls. The automobile industry also reported pronounced gains in both items over the month interval, employment increasing 11.3 per cent and pay rolls 15.6 per cent. The rubber boot and shoe industry reported an increase of 6.7 per cent in employment, and the copper, lead and zinc smelting and refining industry reported a gain of 3 per cent. Increased employment ranging from 2.9 per cent to 2.1 per cent was reported in the rayon, machine tools, textile machinery, aircraft and turpentine industries. The petroleum refining and the book and job printing industries reported gains in employment of 1.7 and 1.2 per cent, respectively. The increases in the nine remaining industries reporting increased employment were less than 1 per cent.

The most pronounced falling off in employment from November to December (19.8 per cent) was reported in the cement industry, while a decrease of 17 per cent was reported in the plumbers' supplies industry, and 15.7 per cent in the beet sugar industry. Decreases in employment of approximately 12 per cent were reported in the brick, typewriter and jewelry industries and the steam fittings industry reported a decline of 11.4 per cent from November to December. Employment in the stove and radio industries decreased 9.9 per cent and 9.3 per cent, respectively, and the marble-slate-granite industry reported a decline of 7.3 per cent. Decreases in employment of approximately 6 per cent were reported in the men's clothing, confectionery, cottonseed oil-cake-meal, millinery, beverage, and fur-felt hat industries. Losses of slightly more than 5 per cent in employment were shown in the cigar and cigarette, fertilizer, men's furnishings, electric and steam car building, and stamped and enameled industries. The iron and steel industry reported a decline of 2 per cent in employment from November to December, and foundry and machine shop and the cotton goods industries reported losses of 0.5 per cent each.

BOND MARKET SAGS IN CAUTIOUS SALES

One-Tenth Loss Is Recorded as Turnover Drops to $9,609,000.

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Bond market gains, losses and enthusiasms were equally low today as most traders and investors sought the sidelines of cautious contemplation.

With the exception of United States Government issues, some foreign loans and a few domestic corporation specialties, trading was almost at a standstill at times. Sales totaled only $9,609,000, par value, while the average for 60 domestic corporate bonds declined one-tenth of a point.

The Federal list apparently was unaffected by talk of currency inflation, an unbalanced budget and the unusually heavy tone of the American dollar in relation to the British pound sterling. The Treasury's recent $250,000,000 note offering was oversubscribed and an issue of Treasury discount bills approximating $80,000,000 was placed yesterday at the low rate of .18 per cent, comparable with a rate of .24 per cent on a previous offering.

Most of the long-term Treasuries and Liberties advanced 1-32d to 7-32ds of a point. Liberty 3½s edged up to another new 1932-33 top before relaxing.

Most of the semispeculative rails slipped despite efforts in Congress to enact an amendment to the bankruptcy laws which would facilitate reorganization plans of some of the roads. There were a number of losses of around a point and Chicago & Northwestern general 5s were off 6. At the same time, gains of 1 to 2 or more points were recorded by some bonds of Louisville & Nashville, New York Central, Norfolk & Western, Pittsburgh & West Virginia, Atlantic & Danville and Union Pacific.

Amusement corporation issues were unsettled. Loew's 6s were off 3¼. Paramount Publix 5½s, off 1 and Pathe Exchange 7s, off 4⅞. Pan-American Petroleum 6 per cent certificates were up 7; Niagara Shares 5½s, up 1; Republic Iron & Steel 5s, up 2⅛; Hudson Coal 5s, up 1¼; Federal Light & Traction 6s, up 2¼, and Youngstown Sheet & Tube 5s, up 1⅛. Loans of U. S. Rubber, Western Union, Shell Pipe Line, Armour & Co., American Beet Sugar, Interborough Rapid Transit, National Dairy, Murray Body, Laclede Gas Purity Bakeries and Pure Oil were heavy.

While German government 5½s retained a fractional gain, other obligations of Germany were irregular. Polish, Belgian and Brazilian issues advanced. South Americans were soft, with Buenos Aires Province loans losing a point or more following announcement that foreign debt charges would be suspended indefinitely.

U. S. Crude Oil Output Boosted 4,250 Barrels

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Daily average gross crude oil production in the United States increased 4,250 barrels in the week ended January 21, totaling 2,015,300 barrels, the American Petroleum Institute's weekly summary indicates. Daily average production east of California decreased 6,650 barrels to 1,542,900 barrels.

Refineries representing 91.8 per cent of estimated total capacity, operated at 59.6 per cent of their capacity, reported daily average runs of crude oil to stills as 2,106,000 barrels. Daily average the previous week for refineries representing 91.6 per cent of total, operated at 58.2 per cent of capacity, was 1,984,000 barrels.

Daily average cracked gasoline by refineries representing 95.4 per cent of total charging capacity was 394,000 barrels. Daily average the previous week by refineries representing 95.4 per cent of total was 379,000 barrels.

Imports of crude and refined oil at principal United States ports totaled 1,253,000 barrels against 691,000 barrels.

Foreign Debt Holiday Voted in Buenos Aires

Buenos Aires, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—The Chamber of Deputies of Buenos Aires Province today approved an indefinite suspension of provincial foreign debt payments. The Senate already has approved the measure, which is sponsored by the provincial government.

The debts of the province abroad are the largest of any Argentine governmental unit except those of the Nation. They approximate $140,000,000, of which one-half is owed to the United States.

Two Banks in Indiana Declare Moratorium

Huntington, Ind., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—The two local banks, the First State and the Citizens State, today declared a moratorium and their action was followed by a proclamation by Mayor Zach T. Dungan declaring a business holiday.

The mayor and bank officers said the length of the moratorium and holiday was problematical. Bank officers said the institutions would be reopened as soon as a sufficient number of depositors sign waivers of their right of withdrawal.

Dollar Gains on Franc After Earlier Decline

Paris, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—The dollar recovered sharply today, closing at 25.61 francs after a drop during the morning of 8½ centimes.

The drop was partly attributed in banking quarters to talk of the possibility of inflation in the United States. Bankers said that the recovery was largely attributable to the fact that more sterling was being bought against francs than against dollars while there seemed to be some buying of dollars to sell for pounds which jumped to 87.08.

WHEAT VALUES GAIN AS STERLING CLIMBS

Buying in Chicago Against Winnipeg Sales Proves Market Feature.

Chicago, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Four points jump in British exchange, together with good-sized corn export business from the United States, helped give a lift to grain values today.

With United States corn quoted in Europe more than 2 cents a bushel lower than Argentine corn, today's overseas purchasing of corn from this country was estimated at 500,000 bushels, the largest amount this season. Crop reports about domestic winter wheat were extremely unfavorable, and European advices told of severe frosts, especially in the Balkans and southern France.

Wheat closed firm, ½ to ¾ above yesterday's finish; corn, ½ to ⅝ up; oats, unchanged, and provisions, unchanged to a rise of 5 cents.

Buying Against Sales.

A feature of wheat trade was buying here against sales at Winnipeg. Drought reports from domestic winter wheat territory were unabated, and anxiety as to the effects of moisture dearth was intensified by word of widespread thawing and freezing. Absence of offerings, however, rather than aggressiveness of demand, chiefly characterized the market.

Soaring of British exchange was reported here in cables from abroad as due to the American Government invitation to discuss debts and other subjects construed to include stabilizing of the pound sterling. Fluctuations of each point in sterling were figured by Chicago grain traders as equal to ¼ of a cent a bushel on the price of wheat. Some notice was taken of 864,000 bushels decrease of the world's wheat visible supply total this week, making aggregate stocks 443,452,000 bushels, compared with 478,991,000 a year ago.

Corn and oats averaged higher mainly as a result of enlarged export demand for corn. Country offerings of corn to Chicago increased as a result of the upturn in prices.

Provisions reflected firmness of grains.

OKLAHOMA OUTPUT OF OIL IS REDUCED

Other Areas Increase Their Yield of Crude on Daily Average.

Tulsa, Okla., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—A big decrease in the Oklahoma City field countered production gains in other areas to put last week's daily average crude oil output 16,897 barrels under the figure for the preceding week in the United States, Oil and Gas Journal reports disclose.

Total daily average production for the week ended January 21 was 2,022,073 barrels, compared to 2,038,970 barrels in the week ended January 14. The Oklahoma City field fell off 31,720 barrels to 71,220 barrels and Oklahoma's total daily average was 26,540 barrels less, or 374,820. In east Texas, however, the figure was 298,226 barrels, a gain of 4,818 barrels, and total Texas flow increased 4,868 barrels to 801,800 barrels.

Kansas was up 3,355 barrels to 91,940; Rocky Mountain area, up 4,876 to 71,676. Eastern fields fell off an even 2,000 barrels to 114,000 and California was 2,500 less to 469,500.

Cotton Cloth Factories Plan Deal With Russia

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—The Evening Post said today that certain cotton cloth manufacturers had made inquiries at the Reconstruction Finance Corporation as to the possibility of a loan to finance a sale of 1,000,000,000 yards of cloth involving about $30,000,000 to Soviet Russia.

It was reported that the Soviet government would pay 60 per cent cash on the transaction and the balance in installments. The textile manufacturers were advised, it was stated, that the only obstacle to aid from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation would be the quality of the collateral offered. A. P. McKissick and J. S. Self, of Greenwood, S. C., were named as having conferred with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. It was estimated that the order in average weight gray goods would require approximately 400,000 bales of raw cotton.

PURCHASE OF SILVER FUTURES AIDS PRICE

Speculation Is Laid to Hope of Inflation in Money.

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Heavy buying of silver futures on the National Metal Exchange today brought the sharpest price advance in several months. Active contracts jumped from ½ to 1¾ cents an ounce. Traders attributed the rush of speculative demand to the possibility of some form of inflationary legislation that might benefit the silver industry. However, the advance was checked during the forenoon on realizing reports that amendments to the Glass Banking bill proposed increased ratios of silver to gold had little or no chance of adoption.

Trading was particularly active in the May delivery which rapidly rose nearly 1½ cents an ounce before realizing caused a setback. From the early high level prices generally settled back about ½-cent an ounce.

The spot silver market was also strong, being quoted at 26¼ cents an ounce, an advance of ¼ cent from yesterday. The price has been above the 26-cent level since last fall. In December the metal sold at a record low of 24¼ cents.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IF Washington's theatergoing populace is awaiting some word of expert approval before making up its mind about Eddie Cantor in Samuel Goldwyn's production of "The Kid From Spain," opening Friday at Loew's Palace, the comments of Ernest Hemingway, who saw the picture in New York recently, may be it.

Hemingway not only said that he had a great time at the Eddie Cantor picture, but also spoke of his satisfaction and pleasure in the manner in which the bullfight was handled.

"They've made a clean job of it," said the strapping young author of "A Farewell to Arms," referring particularly to Sidney Franklin's exhibition of the matador's art in Cantor's support. "Bullfighting at best is—well, messy. In 'The Kid From Spain,' they've made it fast and clean."

This should be reassuring to those who find unnecessary bloodletting next to a rough sea in inducing the more violent symptoms of mal-de-mer.

Hemingway and Sidney Franklin, the Brooklyn matador, his host at the Rivoli screening of the picture, are old friends. They were companions through Franklin's Mexican and Spanish career in the arena de toros. In the novelist's treatise on bullfighting, "Death in the Afternoon," he devotes a whole chapter to an estimate of Franklin's work, rating him as one of the six great matadors of the world.

Sidney acted as trainer and tutor in bull fighting to Hemingway's 9-year-old son, "Bumpy," presenting him with a miniature cape and costume accurately and authentically in replica of his own.

One reason that Mr. Hemingway was not a member of the Franklin party at the Shoreham last Friday was, no doubt, that he was hastening to Key West by motor. Franklin will join him in Seville after Easter. Not that Seville is in Key West, you understand. Seville is in Spain.

Although no beating of tom-toms or fanfare of brass has heralded its advent, Washington now has a theatrical agency that rather outsteps anything of the kind of which the Capital heretofore has been able to boast. It is the Winthrop Brown establishment, located at 525 Thirteenth street, locally, with branches in both New York and Hollywood.

The studio management of the new enterprise is in the capable hands of Joe Brown, formerly recognized as Washington's best Frisco dancer, and since become a seasoned trouper, familiar with the requirements of the stage, the screen and radio.

Tomorrow evening at 8 the Winthrop Brown Studio is giving an audition of its acts in costume for the benefit of those who may be interested in securing talent for any kind of entertainment.

The complete equipment of the plant will prove a surprise to those who visit it—voice test apparatus, microphones, makeup booths, dressing rooms, everything needed, will be found on the floor devoted in its entirety to the new line of theatrical activity. Big time from "A" to izzard.

Now that the Three X Sisters, the "mysterious" songstresses who are scoring so decisively as headliners of the current stage bill at the Earle, not to mention their variegated and versatile broadcasts under the sponsorship of that eminent impresario, Mr. George Marshall, who looms so big in the life of linen, have voluntarily unmasked, both on the stage and on the gaping thoroughfares of our lovely city, it can do no harm to disclose that they are the Hamilton Sisters and Fordyce.

Vi and Pearl Hamilton and Jessie Fordyce were not such unknown quantities as you might have been led to believe prior to their triumph in London as stellar attractions at the Palladium and others of the 'alls, and later at the Kit Kat Club, where they canaried for the Prince of Wales on numerous occasions.

They were, needless to say, clever before all that happened. But they have returned to the States with a European-built reputation that has been whetted by the introduction of the element of "mystery" with which they have been surrounded for purposes of becoming acquainted all over again in a big way with American audiences.

From now on they should be able to go it alone without the artificial impetus of trick concealment of their features and a carefully planned nom de theatre to add to the aura of mystery.

The girls are clever and that should be enough.

Among yesterday's callers, true to last week's promise by mail, were Miss Jean Dalrymple and Harry Essex, doing a little foreign missionarying on behalf of Tallulah Bankhead, coming to the National the week of Monday, February 6, in her new play under the Arch Selwyn banner, "Forsaking All Others."

Both Mr. Essex and Miss Dalrymple are emphatic in their declaration that Miss Bankhead has a play. They are equally unequivocal in their enthusiasm over the capable cast of known players by whom Miss Bankhead is surrounded—Ian Keith, the Tigellinus of "The Sign of the Cross;" Mary Duncan, Fred Keating, the magician, who is playing a straight role completely devoid of legerdemain or any form of black art; Ilka Chase, seen here on the screen recently with Leslie Howard and Ann Harding in "The Animal Kingdom;" Cora Witherspoon, with Basil Sydney and Mary Ellis in "Jewel Robbery;" Donald MacDonald, Anderson Lawlor and many more.

Miss Dalrymple, who in private life is Mrs. Ward Morehouse, remembered at about 3:30 that she was to catch a New York plane at 4 and still had to pack. It was suggested that if she missed that plane, Mr. Morehouse would probably understand if she told him she had been sitting in the Metropolitan Theater, oblivious to time, watching Joan Blondell, in "Central Park," of which he was the author, but Miss Dalrymple doubted the efficacy of that subterfuge, her principal argument against it seeming to be that Mr. Morehouse had seen the picture.

The assumption is that she caught the plane, leaving Master Essex to depart for Boston by train at 8. Among this department's favorite people, both.

Then came Manager Meakin's invitational preview of "The Big Drive" at RKO-Keith's of which more later.

So let's turn out the light and sub a toe!

EASTERN BEATS CENTRAL, TIES FOR SERIES LEAD

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

FRANKIE GENARO, who was champion of his class even when Pancho Villa was hanging around the flyweight division, dusted off his fighting weapons last night at Portner's Arena and overcoated Jone Fino with a full repertoire of punches that earned him and the wife and three kiddies a unanimous decision.

A year's absence from the ring which not only checked the family income but seriously depleted the family exchequer, is causing Genaro to hit the tank towns of pugilism with a double motive, first, to fight his way back into condition to reenter the select circles, and secondly, to provide the family with the wherewithal to carry on during these parlous times.

Last night Genaro was more than a shadow of his former self. And he was fighting no palooka in Fino, the Mexican, who gave Genaro a very busy evening from gong to gong and even went so far as to smack the former world champion in the mush on a half-dozen occasions. But, as the prophets have been telling us, class will tell, and it told the story in the unanimous decision voted Genaro.

Genaro Refuses to Be Stepping Stone.

Fino was in there in an attempt to convert the reputation of Genaro into a stepping stone to better things in the bantamweight class, and he was a relentless pursuer of the almost-phantom figure of the former champion, catching up with him on occasions to bring Genaro up sharply with punches to both the head and the body, but in return he was speared by the leather-incased rapiers that now dangled at Genaro's side, now looped in long arcs to the side of the head, and now were brought up sharply from underneath, in uppercuts.

The Genaro reputation, though, held no terrors for Fino, who forced the fight, and not with his chin, from the outset, but for his pains he was usually impaled on the end of one of Genaro's gloves at the end of every exchange.

Genaro displayed his true greatness in the eighth and final round. Then it was that he came out fighting. He measured Fino with his left and socked him with his right. Once he let Fino have both gloves full in the face simultaneously. Then, as the master boxer, he made Fino miss with both hands and finally, as the master showman, he checked a curtains-laden right in midair at the final bell.

Young Van Wins Back Admirers.

They brought Young Van back to the wars last night, all nicely groomed and pompadoured for his season's debut, and the fighting stereotyper won back his erstwhile admirers with a smashing exhibition that stopped Billy Vermillion midway in the third round.

Van was fighting for redemption last night, the memory of two one-round knockouts at the hands of Sammy Britt in his farewell appearances last season still rankling bitterly in his mind. And the memory was revived quite glaringly in the second round when Vermillion tagged Van with two rights that sent the stereotyper scuttling around the ring with his chin held aloof from further damage for the time being.

The glass qualities of Van's chin was the subject of much speculation between rounds, but the bell signaling the start of the third dispelled all doubt of his gameness. He bounced out of his corner a la Dempsey, rushed Vermillion into neutral territory, belabored him with a series of jolts, squared off again, punched the weakened Baltimorean around the ring at long range, and then brought a right arm up from underneath that knocked Vermillion so cold they had to use ice picks to root him out of the ring.

Art Shires and Wife Decide to Separate

Chicago, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Arthur "the Great" Shires, of baseball fame, today said he and his wife of three years had decided to separate.

"Yes, we've decided to call it quits," Shires said, as he made arrangements for a trip to Los Angeles. "Mrs. Shires and I have decided we can't have a home when I'm traveling most of the time. We're friends though; don't get us wrong."

Mrs. Shires, the former Elizabeth Greenabaum, of Chicago, refused to discuss the case. Her mother, with whom she and Shires resided, Mrs. A. L. Greenabaum, also refused to talk about it.

Genaro Wins From Fino On Points

Mexican Takes Only 1 Round; Van and Wright Win.

By DAVE HERMAN.

FIGHTING for the first time since his disastrous trip to France over a year ago, Frankie Genaro, erstwhile Olympic and world's flyweight champion, inaugurated his comeback campaign last night at Portner's Arena in Alexandria, proving convincingly that he is still a master with his left in scoring a unanimous eight-round decision over Joe Fino, Mexican ~~bantam~~weight titleholder.

While the swarthy Fino, battling desperately to break through the Italian's defense, made a fight of it all the way, he was unable to match the former champion's pace in the last four rounds.

Genaro had the situation under control in the first and second, but Fino leaped out like an antelope in the third, speared his opponent with three stinging left hooks and unraveled his best punches to win perhaps his only round.

Genaro dominated thereafter. Fino worked himself up into a frenzy of wild punching in the fourth, as Genaro boxed carefully. In the fifth, Genaro nailed a left to Fino's body and followed quickly with two crashing rights on the Mexican's head.

Genaro Has Range At End.

Fino took his worst beatings in the sixth and eighth rounds. Famous for leaping in fast and shooting his left while practically in the air, Genaro attacked his adversary in such a manner at least five times in the sixth. In the final round, Genaro was all over the Mexican, punching him savagely with his left and smacking him gingerly with an overhand right.

In all fairness to the Mexican, it must be mentioned that while, completely outclassed, he pumped a number of blows to Genaro's jaw that were not particularly pleasing to the former champion. They stung, but did no damage. If directed by a fighter with a strong punch, the outcome might have been different.

However, the mere fact that Genaro, now 32, a veteran of fourteen years of fighting, and not having engaged in a fight for more than a year, could breeze through eight rounds in such a cool and masterly fashion, is certainly a tribute to his boxing prowess. Usually a fighter out of the ring for such a period appears sluggish. It was not the case with Genaro.

The former flyweight titleholder, however, did a bit of holding. Until he cut loose in the fifth, he tied up the Mexican frequently. Genaro weighed 113; Fino, 115.

Young Van Wins by Knockout.

Young Van's return to the ring was successful. Fighting in the six-round semiwindup after a six-month layoff, Van knocked out Billy Vermillion, 164-pounder from Baltimore, in the third round. Van set a whirlwind pace in the third, smothering Vermillion with rights and lefts, and finally turning the trick with a terrific uppercut 30 seconds before the round was over. Vermillion went down with a thump, knocked cold, and Referee Short raised Van's hand in victory. Van won the first round, but Vermillion turned the tables in the second, forcing the District 170-pounder into retreat.

Cary Wright, District 145-pounder, added to his laurels by stopping Jack Britten, 142, of Laurel, Miss., in the second round. Britten quit in the first, and Wright probably would have finished him had not Short stopped the fight. Wright is unbeaten as a professional.

Barefoot Green, of Fredericksburg, and Bob Hollingsworth, of Alexandria, fought to a draw in their four-rounder. Jack Gentile, taxicab driver, won a unanimous decision over Sammy Romano, and Eddie Compton, of Philadelphia, whipped Johnny Beadenkoff, of Baltimore, in the opening bout.

"Grid Honesty" Move Is Suggested by Coach

Easton, Pa. Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Division of colleges in the United States into two groups, amateur and professional, according to how football is conducted at each, is suggested by Harvey Harman, gridiron coach at the University of Pennsylvania.

Declaring such a move would stamp out the "hypocrisy" he said exists in some colleges, Harman said he would like to see every college president in the United States make an "honest" statement as to how football is conducted at his institution.

The statements, Harman said last night in an address at the annual banquet of the Lafayette College football team, should include how many scholarships are given out, how many players are subsidized, what other help football players receive, and how many hours they practice.

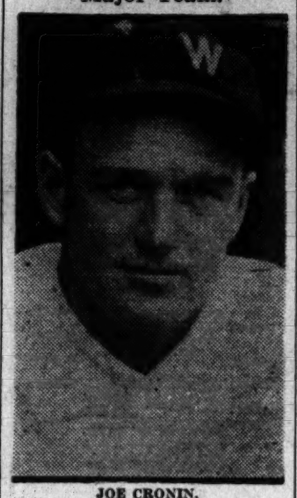
Cronin Is Most Popular Choice on All-Star Major Team.



JOE CRONIN.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—An all-star major league team without Babe Ruth, still the game's highest salaried performer, may seem like "Hamlet" without the Dame, but the final vote by baseball writers, in the sporting news' eighth annual poll, shows the Yankee slugger ousted for the first time in right field by Chuck Klein, all-round star of the Phillies.

The 1932 selections, made public today, show Klein received 11 votes out of a total of 191 cast in the poll by members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America. Ruth received 63 for the right-field post. Counting the votes given them for other outfield positions, Klein's total was 135 and Ruth's 94.

Cronin Swamps All Rivals.

The most popular choice, however was Joe Cronin, new manager and crack shortstop of the Washington club. He received 158 votes, swamping all rivals.

Six American League and four National League players gain places in the following all-star consensus for 1932:

Center field—Earl Averill, Cleveland.
Right field—Chuck Klein, Phillies.
First base—Jimmy Foxx, Athletics.
Second base—Tony Lazzeri, Yankees.
Shortstop—Joe Cronin, Washington.
Third base—Harold (Pie) Traynor, Pirates.
Catcher—Bill Dickey, Yankees.
Pitchers—Lon Warneke, Cubs, and Bob Grove, Athletics.

Puccinelli won the individual batting title with a mark of .391.

Rosenbloom Accepts Challenge of Jones

New York, Jan. 24 (U.P.).—Maxie (Slapsie) Rosenbloom, light heavyweight champion, messaged the New York Boxing Commission today and accepted the challenge flung at him by Billy Jones, Philadelphia scrapper.

Rosenbloom told the commission he would meet Jones at any distance and on any date selected by Madison Square Garden.

Jimmy Johnston, general manager of Madison Square Garden, obtained permission to show Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, in an overweight bout early in February. Johnston has yet to name an opponent for Tony.

Clark Griffith Offers Park To Schools

Nats' Owner Seeking to Stimulate Scholastic Baseball.

To Tour Schools With Umpire Moriarity in Speech Series.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

WORKING on the assumption that the high school baseball player of today is the big league star, or at least the big league customer, of tomorrow, Clark Griffith yesterday announced he would offer the ball park to the high schools of Washington for their annual baseball series and instigate a system of awards for players and teams that he believes will triple interest in the slowly dying scholastic circuit.

The park will be available during most of the month of May, the team being slated to depart on an extended Western trip on the first of the month. A large portion of the high school series is played during May.

If the league dates conflict with the home games of the Nationals, Griffith suggests that the high school games be played at Central Stadium, where measurably large crowds once gathered. Since moving the series to Eastern three years ago, the crowds have steadily decreased.

Annual Team Trophy Offered.

A week ago Griffith announced that he was placing a large trophy in competition for the winner of the 1933 high school series. He added yesterday that he will award a team trophy annually, and that winning it once gives permanent possession.

Besides this prize Griffith will have medals for the winning team members and trophies to the "most valuable player," leading hitter and the leading fielders among both infielders and outfielders.

Griffith's first move into high school baseball is expected within the next few days, when the American League sends the veteran umpire, George Moriarity, to Washington on a lecturing tour, which is taking him all over the Eastern section of the country this winter. Griffith and Moriarity will appear before assemblies of local high school students to disseminate the gospel of the national pastime.

Magnates' Interest to Revitalize Game.

The interest of the local diamond magnate in the game should revitalize the sport in the high schools. The use of the park, favorite stamping grounds of many a high school player's heroes, is expected to prove a tremendous boon to the scholastic game. It patently will result in greater numbers of aspirants for the various teams, and have an encouraging effect on spectators. Everything connected with the park would be donated gratis by Griffith.

Dykes and Vergez Sign 1933 Contracts

New York, Jan. 24 (U.P.).—The New York Giants announced today that Johnny Vergez, third baseman, had sent in his signed contract from his home town, Alameda, Calif. Vergez is the eighth Giant to enter the fold.

Jackson and Denton Lose in Cue Upsets

Chicago, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—The big tie for second place in the world three-cushion billiards championship tournament was reduced to two players today, as Clarence Jackson, of Detroit, and Tiff Denton, of Kansas City, suffered their second defeats.

When the program started, Denton, Jackson, J. N. Bozeman, jr., of Vallejo, Calif., and Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago, the defending champion, were tied up in the runner-up position. In the first afternoon match, Arthur Thurnblad, of Chicago, upset Denton, 50 to 43, in a 48-inning struggle, and in the second, Otto Reiselt, of Philadelphia, who finished second last year, won his first victory of the tournament at the expense of Jackson, 50 to 48, in 62 innings.

Denton had high run of 7 to Thurnblad's 5, while Jackson and Reiselt each clustered 6 in their match.

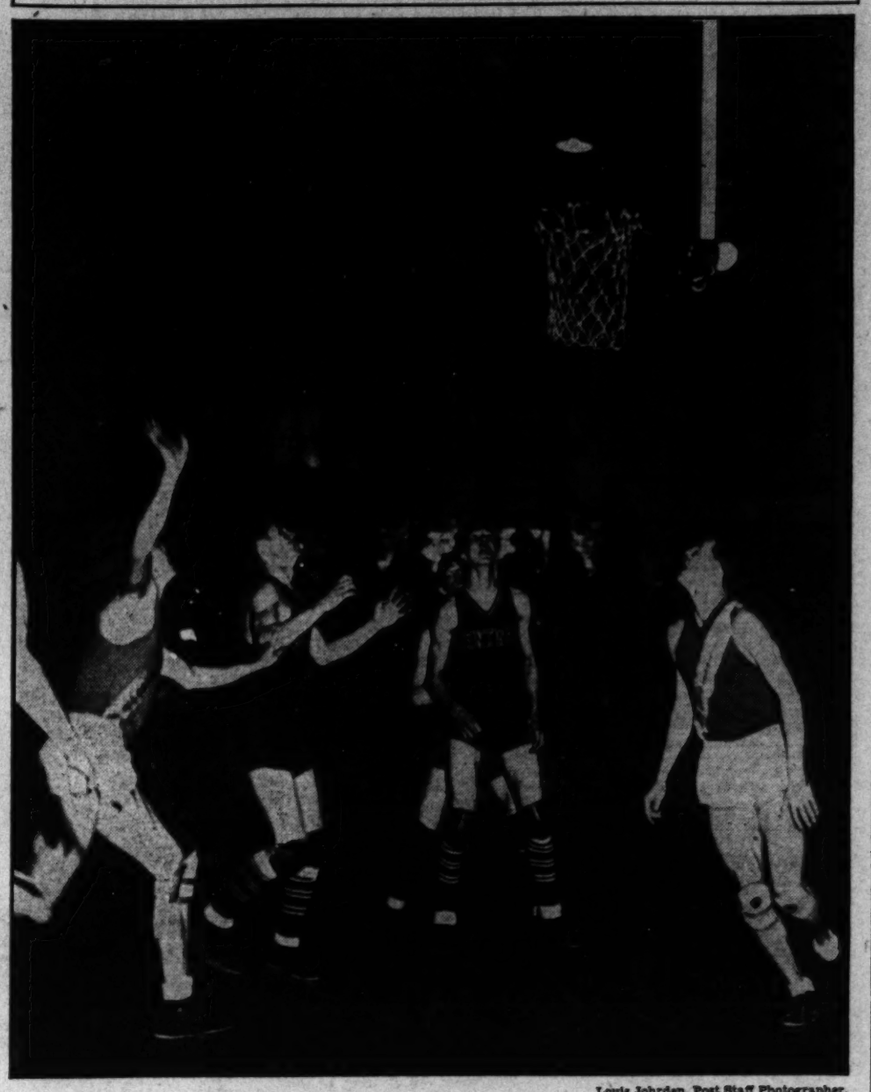
Action as Central Bows to Eastern in Series



Louis Johrden, Post Staff Photographer.

Al Waters, Eastern forward, is seen with a one-hand shot scoring two of the points that helped Eastern down Central, 35-34, in the interhigh school series at the Tech gym yesterday. The defeat was Central's first in 21 games, and enabled Eastern to tie its opponents for the series lead.

Mt. Pleasant Five Bows, 35 to 34

Central Win Streak Ends at 20; Dean and Nolan Star.

Game Series Feature; Roosevelt Downs Western, 46-25.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

IN a game teeming with thrills, Eastern defeated Central by a score of 35-34 to tie for lead in the interhigh school series before a shrieking crowd of approximately 2,000 fans yesterday at the Tech gymnasium. The fray sent the spectators out into the cool evening air on legs wobbly from the wild orgy of basket ball that had transpired before their unbelieving eyes. Western fell an easy victim to Roosevelt's Roughriders, 46-25, in the opening game of the twin bill.

No less amazed was Central's team, hailed as one of its greatest, and rightly so, as it fought with the fury of a cornered tiger to ward off the savage attack of a team that refused to accept defeat.

Slowly but surely Central felt the sharp fangs of its antagonist sink into the sweet meat of its unsullied record until finally, with one lightning thrust, Eastern seized that stack of 20 consecutive victories and sent it clattering down upon the heads of its rivals.

Eastern Win Revitalizes Series.

Eastern's triumph more than merely humbled the lads from Mount Pleasant. It means new life to a series, which virtually would have been decided yesterday, and made the remaining games on the schedule meaningless had Central won.

Tom Nolan supervised the charge of the Light Blue brigade as it raked the enemy basket with a fire that silenced, temporarily, the championship hopes of its opponent. Nolan's frigidity never changed during the entire game. The din of the howling mob ringing in his ears didn't phase the little Irishman. His passing was superb and he led the team in scoring with 12 points.

But it would be unjust to leave the other members of the team out of the picture, especially "Dizzy" Dean, who played a bang-up game at his guard post. Al Waters, who contributed 10 points to the score, Jack Bayliss, who managed to break up numerous Central advances, and Tom Davis, whose work at center gave Eastern a tremendous advantage, all played important roles in the triumph.

Fate of National Swim Hinges on College Vote

Lincoln, Nebr., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Whether the National Collegiate Athletic Association would stage its annual swimming and wrestling championships this year depended upon the response received from a questionnaire mailed to colleges and universities recently seeking an estimate of the number of entries, Dr. R. G. Clapp, of the University of Nebraska, chairman of the wrestling rules committee of the association, said today.

"Due to present economic stress there is some doubt as to whether a sufficient number of schools would participate to make the championships rally nationally representative," Dr. Clapp said. "If the reaction to our inquiries is satisfactory, we will then go ahead and make plans."

Bethlehem, Pa., and Roanoke, Va., were under consideration as sites for wrestling championship, he said.

Schmeling's Manager Pans Jimmy Johnston

New York, Jan. 24 (U.P.).—Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, deposited his "el stencho" stogie temporarily on the edge of his desk tonight and gave his views on the heavyweight situation as follows:

"Jack Sharkey has decided to fight the winner of the Schmeling-Baer bout to be held in June. His Boston statement that he wants Schmeling as a title opponent means that and nothing else.

"Sharkey is not a mental giant, but he's smart enough to know he'd be wasting his time fighting any one else. Schmeling and Baer are the only two heavyweights who can draw a crowd with him.

"Sharkey's decision on this point shows he's got more brains than certain persons connected with the Garden. I won't mention any names, but the initials of one of them is James J. Johnston.

"Jack Dempsey and I will go to Chicago Monday and confer with leaders there regarding the possibility of staging the Schmeling-Baer fight during the world fair. Leaving Chicago we will go to Denver to look over the possibilities in that city. We may visit several other cities."

SCHAAF BOUT FOR BARRY HINTED

Garden Considering Subbing D. C. Boy for Carnera.

By JACK CUDDY.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24 (U.P.).—Rumors about the involved heavyweight situation were as plentiful today as ergs in a technocrat's pocketbook.

One source, who would have his information considered as bottled in bond, claimed Madison Square Garden had an undercover agreement with both Joe Jacobs and Ancil Hoffman that the winner of the Max Schmeling-Maxie Baer fight in June would battle Champion Jack Sharkey for the title in September.

This Mr. X insisted that all the recriminations between the Garden and Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, were merely part of a build-up for the September bout.

Johnston, Jacobs Accuse Each Other.

When questioned about this, Jacobs denied the report even more explosively than did James Joy Johnston, boxing director at the Gerden. Each accused the other of starting the report.

Another widespread rumor which could not be traced had the Garden shifting the Primo Carnera-Ernie Schaaf heavyweight elimination fifteen-rounder to Miami, Fla., on February 10 because Carnera was believed incapable of drawing a good crowd in New York.

Again Johnston denied and threatened physical harm to Jacobs if he started any more "throat-cutting reports." Jacobs was entirely innocent of the charges.

Persons who claimed to be "just like that" with the Garden confided that Johnston would not go through with the Schaaf-Carnera bout, since he had decided definitely that the winner would not be matched against Sharkey for the title. They said Johnston thought some other young heavyweight such as Donald ("Red") Barry, of Washington, D. C., would draw better than Carnera. Moreover, this would enable Johnston to prevent the vast Venetian from being further discredited by a possible poor showing against Schaaf. Johnston could hold him in reserve as a Sharkey opponent in case he found it impossible to match Sharkey with the winner of the Schmeling-Baer bout.

New Orleans Feature Won by Dr. Parrish

New Orleans, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Dr. Parrish, which figured in the money in 20 of his 25 starts last year, won his first race as a 7-year-old today when he led home a classy field in the 1 1-16-mile feature at the Fair Grounds.

Carrying the silks of A. J. Bellew, the elderly son of Light Brigade took command at the head of the stretch and pulled away to beat Allegretto by five lengths with Hold Hard third.

Van Ryn Is Defeated In Australian Tennis

Melbourne, Australia, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—John Van Ryn, one of five United States players competing in the Australian lawn tennis championships, today was eliminated from the title play by D. P. Turnbull of Australia, 6—4, 10—8, 6—2.

The defeat took both Van Ryns out of individual competition as Mrs. Van Ryn, the former Midge Gladman, was eliminated yesterday in the second round of women's singles.

Wilmer Allison, Van Ryn's Davis Cup doubles partner, won his match, defeating E. P. Moon, of Australia, 6—2, 6—4, 5—7 6—0, and Ellsworth Vines, jr., and Keith Gledhill, United States doubles champion, defeated Turnbull and A. Quist.

CHARACTER WINS SECOND STRAIGHT AT HIALEAH PARK

Gelding Leads From Start To Finish

Speed Girl, at $61.30, Upsets Dope in Baby Race.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—The B. B. Stable's honest gelding, Character, kept his local record unstained when he led home five other 3-year-olds in the Lake George purse for his second straight victory here today. The even money favorite had a length and a half of daylight to spare over the Anall Stable's Helios at the wire. E. R. Bradley's Blessed Event, which was coupled with Boy Crazy, was beaten two lengths for the place. Character ran the six furlongs in 1:11 4-5.

Buddy Hanford broke Character on top and the son of Carlaris opened up a length advantage in the first furlong. Blessed Event, Helios and Gold Basis followed in close alignment. Helios made his bid in the last quarter mile, circling the field and finishing gamely through the stretch, but Character was too good for him and held the race safe. Blessed Event outlasted Gold Basis for the show position.

Character Has Won Nine In 12 Starts.

Character's record is a remarkable example for consistency. In his last twelve starts the gelding has won nine purses and never been out of the money. Having won two races at Maryland in the fall, he now has four straight to his credit.

George D. Widener's veteran racer, Hi Jack, which went amiss last spring at Jamaica and had a recurrence of his leg trouble just prior to the current meeting here, started a comeback campaign in the opening contest, a 6 furlong claiming affair, but the uncertain underpinning of the son of John P. Grier failed to stand up under the strain. After racing head and head with the fleet Irene's Bob at a dizzy pace into the stretch, Hi Jack dropped back to third place and pulled up very lame. Broad Meadows took the purse by a length from My Purchase, while the latter beat Hi Jack by five lengths for the place. The winner returned $8.90.

Speed Girl Wins Second At $61.30.

The 2-year-old contest wound up in a surprise victory for the neglected Pennant filly, Speed Girl, which drove home by a length to pay $61.30. Bib Dipper and Screen, both grouped in the field, finished second and third, respectively, a length and a half apart. Speed Girl showed a high brand of speed after breaking with the first flight. She rushed to the front and gained a narrow advantage over Big Dipper and was drawing away through the closing furlong. Screen and Luckin were with the leaders from the start.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: MIAMI, JANUARY 24.

There's so many topnotch jockeys hereabouts that the ordinary boys are getting few mounts and only an occasional winner. However, when they do get over they certainly do it with a bang. Riley's victory on Speedy Girl at $61 and Cielland's win with Leros at $23 were two of the instances yesterday. The last-named pair took the measure of General A and Workman, a combination which was played till the cows come home, if you can call those things that nibble around the fields down here cows. From the Bennings angle, the day was not a total loss. Two winners were recorded—Worthington and Character. Mike gave me the razz because Drombo won at Fair Grounds and I failed to mention the horse yesterday. However, after what I've said about Drombo, I've always got rootin' interest.

BILL.

FIRST RACE—I'm taking GOLDEN GATE in the opener. This one has a smattering of class that may tell in a cheap field of this kind. Has been going about the works in a businesslike manner. EBONY LADY looked good here the other day and off that effort can not be kept out of the money. BELOW COST, a Bradley representative, to take care of the show.

SECOND RACE—MACADAM ran a good second in her outing behind Slapdash the other day and can be counted upon to show improvement today. CHAGRIN and IFIDA for the rest. Mike has recommended the last named.

THIRD RACE—IDLE STEFAN is in excellent form as that recent victory indicates and gets 20 pounds from HIBALA, the one I believe the B. B. Stable representative must beat. Then Belizzi will do the riding. BARCELONA PETE appears capable of taking the show end.

FOURTH RACE—TRY IT can beat this kind as I have told you before. Scratched yesterday and bounced right back into the entries. The only medium of doubt connected with this one is the rider. Has the apprentice mark and it all depends who TRY IT draws. TOTEM showed a fine place effort here and may beat BANDERLOG for second money.

FIFTH RACE—INLANDER was beaten less than two lengths by CHARACTER here, and gets my edge over this field. The Brookmeade Stable has this one in fine trim. Looks like another Bellizzi mount. BOLILEE was close the last time and should hold the place safe. STEALING AWAY is in tougher company but may be a factor.

SIXTH RACE—GOLD STEP handled a field of this kind to the satisfaction of his handler and backers here opening day. Picks up only a pound. LARRANAGA looks second best but needs more route, I believe. CURACAO to show.

SEVENTH RACE—SEA FOX, the eternal tip in Maryland, has evidently gone back, but still has a very good chance of winning over these. SUN FALCON and SOME KNIGHT for the place and show.

Hitting the Headpin

LOTTA JANOWITZ, ace of Baltimore's women duckpin bowlers and more recently the winner of the Ladies Dixie Sweepstakes, has challenged Lorraine Guili to a home and home match and the two will clash in Baltimore, Sunday, February 5, it was announced last night.

Charley Hughes' 369 set and Ed Vanderschaff's 144 game were high in the East Washington Church League at Convention Hall. Ninth Street Christian No. 1 rolled 572 and 1,656 to garner team prizes.

Harry Seyforth carried home all the individual awards in the Masonic League at the Auditorium, rolling a game of 152 and a 363 set. Potomac's 587 game and Stansbury's 1,666 set topped the teams.

Miss Rockenback won high game honors with 114 in the Ladies Lutheran League at Arcadia, but was obliged to accept a tie for set prize with Miss Gerner, who rolled a 291 also. Takoma carried off team honors with 497 and 1,400.

Charley Devine rocked the maples for a 142 game and 344 set to lead the Postoffice Department League at Columbia. The Whites had a 1,515 and Ebonies a 552 game.

Paul Clifford, who was a three-letter man at old Duckpin U., displayed old-time form in The Washington Post League at Lucky Strike yesterday afternoon when he picked off 130 pins for high game. Gordon Scott bagged set honors with his 342 score. Up from the cellar rose the Gothic pinspillers to snatch the team honors with a 580 game and 1,574 set while relieving the loop-leading Breviers of three games.

Temple rolled a high game of 630 in an 1,808 set and won all three from King Pin in their District League match at Lucky Strike. Chief "Roll 'Em in the Coat" Lovett massaged the jumber for a high game of 156 and a 412 set.

King Pin socked the maples for its ninth consecutive 1,800 set, finishing with 1,869, while making a forfeit from the Rinaldi Tailors official in the National Capital League at Lucky Strike. Astor Clark had a 147 game and 416 set.

A 542 game, property of the Columbians, and 1,573 set, rolled by the Eli Gees, captured prizes in the Washington Ladies League at Columbia. Lorraine Guili's 360 set was high, as was Annette Mathew's 130 game.

The Harrison boys, Paully and Joe, copped the individual honors in the Columbia Heights League at Arcadia last night, rolling 151 and 397, respectively. Arcadia and Vincent's Barbers rolled a high game of 656, while Cool's Drinks finished with an 1,802 set. Ford Electric swept its match with Kline's Regulars, running its string to 15 straight wins, one more than the record hung up by Cool's.

EASTERN NOSES OUT CENTRAL ON COURT

It was Davis who swung the pendulum of victory toward Eastern by controlling the tap-off. He completely stopped Jack Moulton, outjumping him and holding the Central star to a mere 4 points.

Dean continuously ran in to nab the tap from Ollie Tifton, Central forward, whose work was not on par with his past performances.

Central was behind at the end of the first period, 9-4, after being held scoreless from the field during the first 6½ minutes of play, and trailed at the half, 17-11.

The Blue came out fighting at the start of the second half and tied the score at 19-19 on Shore's pivot shot, going into the lead when Nau grabbed a loose ball and choked it through the basket. Davis and Dean usually managed to prevent Central players from retrieving balls off the backboard, a phase of the game the Mount Pleasanters have excelled in.

Nolan sank a pot shot to even the count at 21-all, and the score was still deadlocked at the end of the third period when Waters, for Eastern, and Shore, for Central, came through with baskets.

Central's Late Rally Fails.

Waters, Nolan and Dean scored in rapid succession midway in the final period, staking their team to a lead it never relinquished. Playing desperately, Central attempted shots from all angles; some went in, but the majority missed. A brief flurry near the end that fell 1 point short of tying the score brought the fans to their feet as Nau, Burke and Shore fired the ball through the hoop, but shots by Burke and Moulton were blocked by Waters and Dean just before the final gun.

As had been expected, Roosevelt was not particularly hard pressed by Western in running up a 46-to-25 victory. Billy Harris and Joe Sherman were the spearheads in the Roughriders' attack, while Forney and Corcoran were most consistent for the West Enders.

THREE FINISH MAT BOUTS LISTED

Pesek, Champion in Ohio, in Feature With Vassell.

BELIEVING that new faces are the monkey glands that the local rassling situation is in need of, Matchmaker Joe Turner tomorrow night presents a brand-new mugg in that of Johnny Pesek, the world's heavyweight champion of Ohio and several other Midwestern ballitwicks, who will take on a deposed local hero in George Vassell, sturdy Greek.

Hans Kampfer, the German who made his debut here last week, returns for another match and stern competition, for he meets Gino Garibaldi. Both growlers rank near the top of the Londos circuit.

Pesek is a militant independent among the mat boys. He rarely ventures outside his little rassling domain in the untracked corn belt, where he is highly regarded by opponents, confreres and customers alike. He is a little smaller than the usual beefy-dimension boys and much quicker on his feet. He wrestles something like Joe Turner, in his prime. He is full of mat science, trick holds and the like. Vassell is slow and ponderous and should be a perfect foil for Pesek's pyrotechnics.

Three Bouts to Go to Finish.

The Pesek-Vassell match is one of three finish bouts. In the feature of the remaining two, Jumping Joe Savoldi, the reformed Notre Dame football full back, matches his assorted butts and leers with dependable Johnny Maxos. In the third finish match Frank Judson returns to the local stage to meet big Jim Clinstock, the hefty Indian, who seems slated for bigger and better things in Washington.

The Kampfer-Garibaldi match stands out among the preliminaries like a nose boil. It'll probably go the full 30 minutes. In the other bout on the big card, Jacques Humberto, the Mexican rassler, meets up with Floyd Marshall, the professional villain.

Women spectators will be admitted free of charge, if escorted by paying customers.

ALTROCK AND RICE GOLF VICTIMS

Bow to Shorey, Price in Good Match, 4 Up and 2.

MEL SHOREY, East Potomac professional, spanked his No. 3 iron shot within 5 feet of the pin on the sixteenth green of Rock Creek's course yesterday afternoon, and sank his putt for a birdie three to climax a match in which he and Al Price, home pro, teamed to defeat Sam Rice, outfielder, and Nick Altrock, comedian-coach, both of the Washington ball club, by 4 and 2.

With a gallery of 150 following the foursome, the pros, thanks to Shorey's 34, commanded a 1-up advantage going to the tenth tee.

Altrock's spectacular putting managed to keep the ball players in the thick of the battle. Single-handedly, the famous funster of the Nationals captured the 148-yard eleventh hole by canning a 25-footer.

Shorey Makes Round In 68.

Shorey finished the round with a 68, one above par, missing a short putt on the home hole. Altrock strolled around in 36—35—71, Rice had 38—35—73 and Price, decidedly off his stride, hit the municipal trail for 38—36—74.

Both Altrock and Rice exhibited eagle eyes in scoring deuces on the 159-yard seventeenth. Nick smacked in a 20-footer, while the fleet outfielder sank a chip shot off green for his birdie. Shorey started with a birdie 3 and deposited birdies on the fourteenth and sixteenth.

Tommy Bones, left-handed ace from Columbia, derives a lot of pleasure out of defeating his father-in-law, David L. Thomson, energetic golf chairman at Manor. The other day in a resumption of their foursome rivalry at Manor Bones teamed with G. E. Moore to defeat Thomson and A. G. Wood, 3 and 2.

Another match is docketed for the week-end.

Gen. Shanks May Give Up Duties.

With the Senior Golf Association activities at Chevy Chase scheduled to go into full swing with the beginning of spring, it is doubtful if Gen. D. C. Shanks will serve this season as golf chairman. Gen. Shanks has held the chairmanship of the senior body for the past three years, and under his leadership the organization has become one of the most active in the country.

At present, a number of the senior golfers at Chevy Chase are limbering up daily in anticipation of weekly and monthly events, and championship tournaments.

One of the most elaborate and modernly equipped golf shops in the District will be christened in a few weeks at the Beaver Dam Golf Club.

It will be a fireproof shop, and will be situated just a chip shot or so from the first and tenth tees, taking the place of Cliff Spencer's shop, which now is near the first green. The new shop will be convenient for Beaver Dam golfers, who for years have to walk quite a distance in order to secure their golf equipment.

More Room Provided For Pros.

There will be more room for Spencer and his assistant, Carroll Spencer, to work. The new shop, which will be painted in green, is on the site of the clubhouse destroyed by fire last year, and also is a part of a dairy which operated some 15 years ago.

R. C. Mitchell, popular Beaver Dam golfer, broke 90 for the first time in his life yesterday. He came home to tell his friends he finished with an 89. Judge Henderson, another member at Beaver Dam, shot a 91, one of his best scores.

Dates for tournaments are expected to be set by the Middle Atlantic Golf Association at its annual meeting on March 11 at 8 o'clock at the New Willard Hotel.

An announcement yesterday from A. M. Reid, secretary of the United States Golf Association, states that the selections for the national open and amateur qualifying tests will be made known in about six weeks. Manor is the only Washington club that has put in a bid for the amateur trials scheduled on August 8, while Richmond is seeking the national test.

RUNS-HITS and ERRORS

By BOB CONSIDINE

IF worse comes to worse and the unsigned Nats decide to stay home and whittle next season instead of playing ball here, the 11 boys whom Clark Griffith already has signed could make up a pretty darn good ball team, probably a lot better than several teams which have represented the city in the past.

The addition of the familiar face of Buddy Myer to the rolls of the signed players yesterday just about completes a hypothetical team. Buddy Myer could lead off and, of course, play second base. Fred Schulte could fill in at first base and bat second. Of course, Goose Goslin and Joe Cronin would bat third and fourth and play right field and short stop. Dave Harris could fill in at left field and bat fifth, and little Johnny Kerr could probably play center field and bat sixth. Ossie Bluege would cavort at third, as usual, and bat in his unlucky seventh place, and Catcher Bolton could hit eighth, followed by a trio of pitchers—Crowder and the two Thomases.

What the Washington Baseball Club needs is a couple of knock down and drag out holdouts to while away the weary hot stove season. Doubtless one of the most important ingredients that go into making the New York Yankees the most colorful team in the league is the carefully arranged preseason ballyhoo that keeps the team's name in the headlines, while the good conservative clubs like Washington and the Cincinnati Reds are relegated to page 10, column 9.

There is not much doubt in my mind that Col. Ruppert and Babe Ruth have a sort of tacit understanding each season before putting on their annual act, which year and year old consists of the same old routine.

Scene 1: Vague rumors of a big cut. Scene 2: Babe receives contract, tears up same and gives lengthy and not very modest statement on own worth from a sweat box in Artie McGovern's gymnasium. Scene 3: A pitched battle between the two fatties. Scene 4: (some months later) The two fat men are smiling broadly seated at a table set on the sunny lawn of a St. Petersburg Hotel. In front of them are 19 movietone cameras, 416 graphlexes, 743 newspaper men and a crowd variously estimated. Curtain.

As a matter of fact, Washington has a fine set of holdouts—Earl Whitehill, Bobby Burke and Walter Stewart—but you can't convince Dean Griffith that the boys are contractually eligible. Griffith argues that no player is a holdout until he fails to report at training camp, which is logical enough in itself. On most other teams, the trio mentioned above would be called holdouts. In Washington they are simply "continuing salary negotiations."

Eddie Eynon, the secretary of the treasury of the Washington baseball government, bounced in the presidential suite at the Georgia Avenue White House yesterday and triumphantly displayed the sample cover of the Nats' Team roster for 1933. It is a very handsome folder with a blue Capitol, a white background and a bright red strip across the middle on which is embossed the title of the folder.

Griffith took one look at the fat red stripe and promptly vetoed it.

"You'll have to deemphasize that red," pronounced Griff.

Which is one way of getting the ball club out of the red.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

RADIO'S next innovation in the entertainment field may be the development of original musical comedy. B. A. Rolfe holds the belief that "radio listeners are ready for new music and fresh entertainment," having just completed "Tracked Around the World," which he believes is the first original musical comedy written specially for broadcasting.

Rolfe's new show is a departure from musical comedy as it is known on the legitimate stage. An original musical comedy for radio, Rolfe describes it as a combination of music of the caliber of Friml, with dramatic elements similar to those of the old-time melodrama, but dressed in 1933 sophistication.

Written in thirty-nine half-hour episodes, "Tracked Around the World" boasts a beautiful heroine, a desperate villain and a versatile hero. The show requires a maximum of sixty-seven persons, including an orchestra and seven arrangers, for the production of any one episode.

"Producing an original musical comedy for radio presents problems entirely different from those faced in the production of a similar show for the stage," Rolfe explained. "The music must be bright and catchy because the score is new to the listeners. The plot must be strong. It must have continuity to maintain listener interest. Situations must be dramatic—much more so than in musical comedy as we know it. Radio musical comedy must be melodramatic with a touch of light opera to give listeners the same flavor they are accustomed to on the stage."

Rolfe denies the theory that radio listeners will not listen to music the first time it is played. Sponsors, broadcasters—all need new music, and the audience will appreciate it when properly presented. Listeners are ready for radio musical comedy. They'll get it within the next year, not only from me, but from dozens of other producers."

THE Three X Sisters, harmony team, now appearing at the Earle Theater, will attempt a broadcast from three separate points simultaneously over Station WJSV at 7:15 o'clock tonight. One will be heard from the Shoreham Building studios of Columbia, one from the Alexandria studios and the third from the Palace Laundry.

The feat will be accomplished through the use of special telephone lines, which will permit each of the singers to hear the other two and sing in harmony. The three voices, coming from the separated points, will be blended on the air to make perfect harmony.

"Robert Burns Celebrates a Birthday," a special feature commemorating the birthday of the famous Scotch poet, Robert Burns, will be presented over WRC at 10:30 o'clock tonight. The presentation will be directed by William S. Rainey, and a selected group of dramatic artists will participate.

Edna St. Vincent Millay, American poet, will give another reading over WRC at 9 o'clock tonight. She will be heard during the symphony concert conducted by Issay Dobrowen and appropriately will read her poems, "The Concert," "Renascence" and "On Hearing a Symphony of Beethoven." A Beethoven symphony will be played during the concert.

FRANK MUNN, tenor, has been on the air for the past seven and a half years and has never missed a program. During that time he has sung on fourteen different programs and has never been heard less than once a week, a fact which should give Frank some sort of a radio record.

The Tobacco Boys, whose spirituals each week form a feature of the Corn Cob Pipe Club programs, all work in the tobacco factories of Richmond and frequently rehearse their songs while working.

It's not an uncommon occurrence for one of them to break into a song while stemming tobacco and within a few minutes all of them are singing at the top of their voices. They will be heard during the program tonight (WRC, 10 o'clock).

Mischa Weisbord, young violinist, will make his radio debut over a network, including WRC, at 7 o'clock tonight. A pupil of Leopold Auer and Ysaye, the young Russian violinist is a familiar figure on European concert stages. He will be accompanied in his radio recitals by Joseph Bonime, pianist.

Josef Pasternack, radio conductor, has mastered seven different languages. They are French, Italian, Russian, Polish, Hungarian, German and English. When a musician makes too many mistakes he generally hears about it in his native tongue.

"EASY ACES" will shift to a new schedule after the broadcast tonight. The series will become a Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday attraction, inaugurating the new schedule on Saturday, January 28. The new time is 8 o'clock.

Nancy Garner, soprano, said to be a niece of Speaker Garner, will be heard over Station WOR, Newark, at 8:45 o'clock tonight, accompanied by an orchestra under the direction of George Shackley.

The kind of business men newspaper writers become will be discussed over WJSV during Bill Schudt's "Going to Press" when William C. Murphy, jr., chairman of the board of governors of the National Press Club, goes on the air at 4:45 o'clock this afternoon.

"WEVD, in New York, dedicated as a memorial to the late Eugene V. Debs, the Socialist leader, is an unusual station," a New York radio scribe declares "Formerly subsidized by the Socialist party, it is now financed by the Jewish Daily Forward. The executives realize that they can't compete with the popular programs on the network and don't try to. They have built up a definite following of the metropolitan intellectuals and will not take a commercial if it interferes with a sustaining program which they like. They feature very few jazz periods."

That being true, the first thing we know Ben Meiman, Washington correspondent of the Daily Forward, will be blossoming out as a radio commentator, along with Dave Lawrence, Fred Wile, Bill Hard and the rest of them.

WOR, Newark, will broadcast a half hour of the speeches from "Authors of the Year" dinner at the Waldorf, New York, from 9:30 to 10 o'clock tonight. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mark Sullivan will be heard during the broadcast.

Bob White
The Old Philosopher
SAYS:

Question—Do you hold out much hope for the future of our country with the new Government coming in next March?

Answer—Yes, I hold out great hopes for the future of our country because I am a firm believer, not so much in forms of government as I am in people. You must remember that the character of a country is not in the Capital City, but on the streets of every hamlet throughout the wide countryside.

Many pin their faith to one man—to one party. This is false. No one man can destroy, nor can one man build up. It is only when that one man, symbolizes in his high office the thought and will of a people as a whole that we shall have a true representation.

It is only when we write into the heart of the individual a pure, unalloyed national outlook that we shall have that same predominant ideal within the law assemblies of the nation.

Only when—through a sense of civic pride we write Americanism in the heart and home of every living soul shall we ever hold hope for a safe and sane posterity.

The change in our political rulership will benefit a few, the change in every strata of life will come only when we realize that we have been worshiping false gods, and placing our hopes in the tangible things of life, rather than on the high altar of nationhood. . . . And this is coming fast. The soul of our people is trembling with hope.

Bob White, the old philosopher, will answer an outstanding question each week day on this page. He is heard twice daily over WMAL at 8 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.

Former Senator Goff's Estate Here $100,000

Guy D. Goff, former United States Senator from West Virginia, left an estate here valued in excess of $100,000, it was indicated in the District Supreme Court yesterday when Anita B. Goff, his widow, named as executrix, filed a petition for letters of administration.

Mr. Goff owned the home at 1606 New Hampshire avenue northwest, valued at $50,000, and he had personal property valued at $58,000 here also. Attorneys William E. Leahy and Eugene B. Sullivan represented Mrs. Goff. The main portion of the estate is in West Virginia. Mr. Goff died January 7.

8-INCH CUPS UPHELD BY SARAZEN

Expected Criticism, He Says, But Reaffirms Stand.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—A telephone rang today in the office of the Associated Press.

"This is the Santa Monica Hospital calling. Mr. Sarazen wishes to speak to you. One minute, please."

"This is Sarazen in rebuttal."

"In what?"

"Rebuttal. It's a legal word, means a comeback. Sort of a counter-punch."

It was easy to identify the voice of the American and British open golf champion, even with his tonsils removed, so the reporter asked:

"What do you propose to rebut?"

Not Surprised at British Opposition.

"Some of my friends who are firing at me for my suggestion that the golf cups be increased to 8 inches. From the papers some of them seem to think I'm loony."

"Go ahead."

"Well, take the British. I see I can't get any support there. Well, I'm not surprised for I did not expect my friends on the other side would agree with me in any proposal for a change in any part of the golf game. My answer to that is that in the old days we fought with knives and swords? Now we use airplances.

"A lot of games have been better for changes. In baseball once upon a time a batter was out if a fielder caught a ball on the first bounce, but not any more. The catcher used to stand way back until the third strike. But not any more.

"I noticed Pinehurst didn't think much of the big cup. The answer to that is they have sand greens there. A 12-inch cup wouldn't make any difference on a sand green.

Sure Size of Cups Will Be Increased.

"Mr. Gates (business administrator of the P. G. A.) thinks I'm kidding the public. I'm not kidding anybody. I am sure the size of the cups will be increased, not to eight inches maybe, but they will be made bigger than they are now.

"While its interesting, the tests they are having now don't mean anything. The showdown will come when we have that $5,000 72-hole tournament with many of the best players in there shooting at 8-inch cups. I insist the thrills will be doubled or more.

"That's part of the rebuttal. I will have some more when I get out of the hospital and try that big cup myself."

"When will that be?"

"Tomorrow, I hope. I am all O. K. from the influenza and I hope the doctor will think my throat is well enough after the operation to start for Miami Wednesday night."

Aviator Squashmen Beat Racquet Club

March Field Aviators' squash team of California flew to Washington yesterday from Langley Field and defeated the strong Racquet Club team of Washington, 6 to 2. The aviators are making a training tour of the country in pursuit ships. They have squash games scheduled in New York and Toledo on the return voyage.

Marshall Exnicios, District champion, scored a sensational victory over his Army opponent after dropping the first two games and trailing 8-12 in the third.

The Washington outfit will meet the Baltimore A. C. here February 3 at the Racquet Club courts. Aces of the Baltimore team are Fred Bolger, Maryland State champion, and Phillips Lee Goldsborough, Jr.

Bethesda-C. C. Routs Friends Five, 29 to 5

Friends tossers were no match for the Bethesda-Chevy Chase five at Bethesda yesterday afternoon, going down in defeat by the one-sided score of 29 to 5. It was just a romp for the home team which used its second-stringers during most of the second half, while its varsity simply toyed with Friends while it was in the game.

The first half ended with Bethesda-Chevy Chase leading, 19 to 0, and it was not until the third period was well under way that W. Davis scored Friends' first points.

One-Sided Games In Center League

Favorites Win Contests; Four Frays Scheduled for Tonight.

Close scores were scarce in the Community Center League last night as favorites romped home to victory over their less fortunate rivals.

Only four games, two in each section, are scheduled tonight. Sigma Lambda meets the Drakes at 9 o'clock at Hine, while Utah State Society tackles Swann Service at 9:30 o'clock at Central in Section A.

St. Alban's Preps Defeat Donaldson

St. Alban's Prep went into high gear yesterday and trounced Donaldson Prep, of Baltimore, 50 to 24, in an intercity scholastic basket ball game played at the home gymnasium of the local squad.

The Saints were never headed, leading at all times by a comfortable margin and holding a 25-to-10 advantage at the half. Page Cornwell and Johnny McGee led the assault on the losers, whose only consistent scorer was Halburt, center.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

IN spite of the fact that he has a gunshot wound in his heart, and the bullet is still embedded there, Virgil Bennett, of Halls Summit, Kans. enjoys good health. He was wounded in the fall of 1930—more than two years ago, and his case has been a source of wonder to the medical profession.

Strange as it seems, Bennett suffered his wound from a shot in the head. "The bullet," according to Bennett, "struck me behind the right ear. It hit the mastoid bone through the inner ear and struck another bone, glancing down my throat and into my heart." Bennett has been told by his physicians that the bullet will probably always remain in his heart.

Joshua Rogers, of Leitchfield, Ky., was given a linen dress shirt made by his sister in 1861, when he was 17 years old. He wore the shirt for 67 years, until his death in 1928. Strange as it seems, Mr. Rogers refused to wear a necktie.

By sidestepping a wild punch, Tiger Walker, Zanesville, Ohio, fighter, won an effortless victory over Ray Newton, of Mansfield, in Columbus last year. The fight was over in 60 seconds, and Walker never landed a blow.

The victory came when Newton swung wildly and, missing, threw a cord out of place in his neck. He dropped to the floor, unable to continue.

JOHN HIX IS ON THE SCREEN. A COLOR REEL OF HIS "STRANGE AS IT SEEMS" IS BEING SHOWN THIS WEEK AT RKO-KEITH'S THEATER.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

WHEN A PRESIDENT AND HIS SUCCESSOR CONFER.

MR. HOOVER (after preliminary pleasantries)—I'm glad you dropped in, Franklin. I thought perhaps you'd decide not to.

Mr. Roosevelt—Oh, no. I wanted to look over the place, anyway, and see if there was anything that had to be done before I moved in. How are the walls?

Mr. Hoover—The walls?

Mr. Roosevelt—Yes, Mrs. Roosevelt asked me particularly to find out if we'd have to do much redecorating

Mr. Hoover—I think everything's all right. Of course, here and there where we take down a picture or something you may have to touch things up a bit.

Mr. Roosevelt—By the way, are you moving much furniture out?

Mr. Hoover—We have a few personal things. Some of the curtains are ours.

Mr. Roosevelt—That's all right. Mrs. Roosevelt always likes to put in her own draperies, anyhow. Women always do. How's the plumbing?

Mr. Hoover—There hasn't been a leak since we've been here. All copper pipes, you know.

• • • •

Mr. Roosevelt—And how's the heating system? Does it give you any trouble?

Mr. Hoover—Very little. Sometimes it's hard to force heat into the Pink Room, but the place is fairly warm all winter.

Mr. Roosevelt—How do you find the neighbors? Are they nice, agreeable people?

Mr. Hoover—It's a pretty good neighborhood. The only objectionable feature is the closeness to the Capitol. It's pretty noisy over there in the Senate and House at times.

• • • •

MR. ROOSEVELT—How have you found Washington on the whole?

Mr. Hoover—Frankly, it's been rather uncomfortable, but I had a four-year lease and had to stick it out. You've lived in Washington before, haven't you?

Mr. Roosevelt—Yes, indeed; but it will be different now, I expect.

Mr. Hoover (aside)—And how!

• • • •

Secretary Stimson—You'll pardon me, gentlemen, but the purpose of this conference was to discuss action on the war debts.

Mr. Roosevelt—That's right; I almost forgot.

Mr. Hoover—I thought it would look nice if we sort of got together on the matter.

Mr. Roosevelt—Quite so. Well, I'm willing to have it stated that I have gone half way with you.

Mr. Hoover—And I'm willing, of course, to have it appear I've gone half way with you, Franklin.

• • • •

PROF. MOLEY—Two halves make a whole. I think we can consider the matter settled for the purpose of publicity, at least.

Mr. Hoover—That's fine.

Mr. Roosevelt—Splendid. Now one thing more, Herbert?

Mr. Hoover—Yes?

Mr. Roosevelt—You and Mrs. Hoover will be prepared to be out by the fourth. I don't want to rush you, but . . .

Mr. Hoover—We've arranged to have the moving man here March 3.

Mr. Roosevelt—Thanks.

Mr. Hoover (as an after-thought)—Oh, there's one thing I'm leaving. You'll find it in the big closet at the head of the stairs, ready for you to put on.

Mr. Roosevelt—What is it?

Mr. Hoover—The hair shirt.

WHITE HOUSE CONFERENCE.

"Morning, Franklin!"
"Morning, Herb!"
"Put the sign up—
'Don't Disturb.'"

"You 'yes' me and
I'll 'yes' you,
For the old red,
White and blue."

"Okay, Herbert!"
"Okay, Frank!"
Cameras ready?
"Turn the crank!"

The trouble with those voting machines in New York at the last election was that they had wizard control.

1932 Tags Repainted, Autoist Draws Fine

Tags made for 1932 are no good in 1933, especially if it is found that they have been doctored to look like '33 tags, Judge Isaac R. Hitt decided in Police Court yesterday when he fined Dennie L. Poage, of Lewisburg, W. Va., $25.

Poage was arrested for a minor infraction of the traffic laws, and an investigation revealed that on his tags the "2" in "1932" had been painted into a "3." The defense said Poage thought the tags were all right, because they had been offered to him in his home town.

2 Volunteer Solicitors Draw Terms in Larceny

Two solicitors for the Volunteers of America were convicted of petit larceny in Police Court yesterday and were each given 90 days in jail. They were J. F. Smith, 53, and A. F. Glogow, 29.

Police testified they were notified that Smith was shaking money from a collection box he was carrying around. He entered a plea of guilty, while Glogow said that money police found in his pockets was left over from his pay. Notwithstanding that assertion, he also was found guilty.

CURLEY STATES KEY TO RECOVERY IS HELD BY CATHOLIC CHURCH

Tells Holy Name Society It Must Play Big Part in Regeneration.

"If this country is going to survive and be saved from the many influences now gnawing at its vitals, it must be done through the Catholic Church and the Catholic Church alone," the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore, declared last night at the quarterly meeting of the Washington section of the Holy Name Society at St. Martin's School Hall.

"Our religion," Archbishop Curley told an attendance of several hundred men who packed the hall, is the only power left. Nothing else of religious or morals force remains."

Members of the Holy Name Society must take a leading part in regenerating the country, and members of the society in Washington have a special duty to perform by radiating this force from the Capital, the Archbishop said. He urged the Catholic men to carry the teachings of Jesus Christ into their daily life, into their social life, into business, politics and every activity.

New Deal In Christ.

"Regardless of what administration comes into power or what laws are made, a force is needed that no civil law can give," the prelate continued. "We need a new deal and I hope we get one, but our real need is to go back twenty centuries and kneel at the side of Christ. That is where we will find the real new deal."

Archbishop Curley spoke ironically of politics and technocracy. Promoters of the latter have been proven fakers, he said. Touching on the subject of racketeering, he said that it has been brought within the portals of the church by unscrupulous men who have attempted to deceive the clergy.

The present troubles of the Nation were attributed by the archbishop to the creation of new dieties by the American people, those of success, prosperity and pleasure. "Men have forgotten their God," he said.

Deplores Survey Oversight.

The laymen also were exhorted by the Very Rev Thomas F. Conlon, O. P., national director of Holy Name Societies, to bring the country back to the realization of Jesus Christ. He deplored the fact that in an exhaustive survey of American civilization by the Rockerfeller Foundation that not one reference was made to religion or God as a remedy for present-day evils.

The following officers were re-elected by the society: Joseph Neale, president; Col. William L. Peake, vice president; Francis Anthony McCann, secretary; John J. Curtin, treasurer, and P. Frank Hannon, marshal.

Entertainment was given by the Wheeler Boys Band of the Holy Comforter parish. Miss Mary O'Donoghue and Matt Horne and George O'Connor, John McCarron was chairman of the entertainment committee.

2 Filling Stations Holdup Victims

Failure to Lock Manager of One in Washroom Fails to Worry Bandits.

Entering the station with guns in their hands, two young robbers last night held up and robbed James Crockett, night manager of a gasoline filling station at New Jersey and New York avenues northwest.

After rifling the cash drawer of about $20, they forced the manager into a washroom, and attempted to lock the door. Unable to turn the lock, they walked nonchalantly out of the station and down the street, leaving the man free to spread an alarm.

Two robbers of the same description, also held up and robbed a gasoline station at Fifteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast a short while later. They held Samuel Clyde Hudson, an attendant, at bay while they looted the cash drawer of about $9.

7 Rose Bushes Stolen As First Sign of Spring

It may be a harbinger of spring, but Dr. Walter S. Harban, 2101 Wyoming avenue northwest, can't see why his back yard should suffer the consequences.

He reported to police yesterday that seven rose bushes valued at $5 apiece, were stolen from his back yard.

GIRL'S PHOTO SEES MAN END OWN LIFE

But Friends Doubt R. F. C. Worker Killed Self Because of Quarrel.

Found slumped over a table with the photograph of a pretty girl before him, Dennis Irvin, 26, an employe of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, was declared a suicide yesterday. Irvin's body was found in his gas filled apartment at 815 Eighteenth street northwest.

The janitor discovered the body when the odor of illuminating gas was detected.

Friends of Irvin said that he had quarreled with the girl pictured in the photograph, a tenant of the apartment, but they expressed doubt this drove him to suicide. A native of Temple, Tex., Irvin was said to have been worried over a recent illness and loss of weight.

Surviving him is his mother, Mrs. Laura Irvin, who is said to be ill in a hospital at Temple.

TRUESDELL SCHOOL REPAIRS TO BE MADE

Reichelderfer Views Site; Scant Possibility for New Building Seen.

Plans for making certain repairs and alterations at the Truesdell School, Ninth and Ingraham streets, were made yesterday afternoon during an inspection of the school by Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the Board of Commissioners; Director of Construction H. W. Baker, and Jere C. Crane, business manager of the schools.

The repairs, which District officials believe will answer the major criticisms leveled at the school, will be made soon by the District Repair Shop out of current funds.

The inspection was made at the instruction of the House subcommittee on District appropriations, which on Monday heard protests from representatives of the Truesdell Parent-Teacher Association, who complained that requests for an appropriation to build a new addition to the Truesdell School had been stricken out of the District budget for the last three successive years by either the Commissioners or the Budget Bureau.

"I found no menace to health or any greatly insanitary conditions at the school," Dr. Reichelderfer said, "but it is unsightly."

Major repairs will constitute the moving of a classroom from the rear to the front of the building, the laying of a new floor and certain plumbing replacements. No estimate could be given yesterday on the probable cost.

Dr. Reichelderfer told the Parent-Teacher representatives yesterday that there was scant possibility that an appropriation to erect a new addition could pass the Budget Bureau at this time, even if asked by the Commissioners themselves.

Answering criticisms of the heating system at Truesdell, Dr. Reichelderfer said that 25 or more other schools in the city are equipped with hot-air furnaces and many are in worse shape.

Settlement Group Hears Bob White

Columnist Declares Their Service Essence of Christian Work.

Speaking on the subject "Settlement work," Bob White, who conducts a column in The Post, addressed the Women's Service Group of the Southeast House, where he was a guest for dinner yesterday.

"Here I find the essential of Christian work, a helping hand to those who need it most. If this spirit could be infused into our high offices of Government, peace and happiness would be given to our people," Mr. White said.

The Southeast House is one of the agencies of the Community Chest. It is the only organization in the Southeast section of the city concerned with character-building activities for colored people, Marion Grace Conover, head worker, said.

Not Climax

It's a Marked Bill and Rum Suspect Chews and Swallows It.

Although they used a marked bill in making a purchase, Policeman W. C. C. Renn and W. O. Connor were thwarted last night in their attempt to obtain evidence of the sale of liquor.

When they conducted a raid at 1209 Thirtieth street northwest, following the purchase, the suspected man, Charles C. Weadon, pulled he marked bill from his pocket, jammed it into his mouth, chewed and swallowed it.

The policemen rushed the man to Georgetown Hospital where a stomach pump was used with only slight success. They failed to get the marked portion of the bill.

The man was held, however, on a charge of possession when a quantity of alleged liquor was found on the premises.

SEMINAR CONDUCTED BY CITY LEADERS ON CRIMINALS' PAROLE

Speakers Cite Importance of Having Board's Personnel Composed of Experts.

Seeking to aid the District's recently created and appointed parole board, social workers, psychiatrists, judges and police officials, Federal prison executives and civic leaders yesterday and last night gathered at the Y. W. C. A. for a practical seminar in the work of reclaiming those who are branded by society as criminals.

Dr. Loren Johnson, prominent psychiatrist and member of the parole board, was one of the speakers, outlining difficulties faced by the board and reciting some achievements. Isaac Gans, civic leader, and Dr. Emmett Scott, of Howard University, other members of the board, attended.

Sanford Bates, director of United States Bureau of Prisons, declared that enforced supervision of the paroled prisoner during the period he is adjusting himself to the change from prison to the atmosphere of normal life is a paramount essential of a successful parole system.

Dr. White Also Speaker.

Other speakers, including Dr. William A. White, superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital and nationally known psychiatrist, bore out Mr. Bates' further contention that personnel of parole machinery is another major essential.

"You can't hire a lot of broken-down politicians and expect parole service," Dr. White said. "You must have persons of better-than-average intelligence, for character remolding comes as near being an impossibility as anything can be."

Urges Special Types.

Dr. White said his experience demonstrated that certain types of persons are endowed naturally with intuitive abilities which make them able to get at the root of criminal or other antisocial tendencies in individuals and then induce corrective measures. He said these are the only type of persons that should supervise the paroled criminal.

Winthrop D. Lane, director of the New Jersey State Division of Parole, told of the operation of parole system in his State. All paroles, he explained, are recommended by the classification committee which is made up of leading officials and professional men attached to the institutions.

Recommendations Made.

Consideration is given the prisoner's sociological attitude, his physical and mental condition at the beginning of his incarceration. Recommendations are then made for the beginning of rehabilitation so that the man resume his status in society when he shall have expiated the offense he is sentenced for, Lane said.

Among other speakers was Ray L. Huff, parole executive, U. S. Bureau of Prisons.

Among District officials present at both afternoon and night sessions were Commissioners Luther H. Reichelderfer and Herbert Crosby; Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, and Inspector Frank S. W. Burke, chief of detectives.

The discussion was arranged by the Family Welfare Committee, Council of Social Agencies.

Besides being a president of the American Automobile Association for the latter section, Mr. Ladd is a director of the Texas Association of Real Estate Boards, the San Antonio and Lower Rio Grande Valley Real Estate Boards and the Missouri Pacific Railroad Co.

PEACE HOPE PLACED IN NEW GENERATION

D. A. R. Chapter Is Told of Need for Elimination of Prejudices.

The upbringing of a generation without national prejudices was advised as the best way to create a friendly world, in an address last night before the Capt. Wendell Wolfe Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, by Augustus O. Thomas, secretary general of the World Federation of Education Associations.

Two strong currents, he said, are struggling for mastery at the present time, the one being nationalism and the other being internationalism. If the nationalistic tendency wins, he said, the nations will have to develop their own markets, which will mean they must limit the hours of labor and also of production.

The great questions which must be settled, he said, are: Adjustment of intergovernmental debts as soon as possible; free trade relations; an international monetary system which will allow a more satisfactory trade system; the scrapping of the war system as rapidly as nations can agree, and the observance of the sanctity of the Nine-Power Treaty, particularly in the Far East.

4 Hearings Are Set By Commissioners

Opponents of Taxi Dance Halls Will Make Plea Next Friday.

Four public hearings, which had been postponed on account of hearings before Congress on the District budget, were scheduled yesterday by the District Commissioners.

Several welfare organizations, which have been seeking to prohibit the operation of so-called taxi dance halls except under rigid regulation, will be heard at 10:30 a. m. on Friday, February 3.

The boys' emergency committee will be heard next Tuesday, at 10 o'clock, on the problem relating to transient and homeless boys. On the same day, at 10:30 o'clock, the National Association Opposed to Blue Laws, Inc., will be heard on its plea for repeal of the District regulation requiring places of amusement to close from midnight Saturday to 2 p. m. Sunday.

Arthur B. Heaton will be heard on February 7 at 10:30 a. m. on the proposal for creating a housing board in the District as outlined in Senate bill 5374.

Confession of Robbery. By Fugitive Is Claimed

Returned from Los Angeles to face a charge of grand larceny, William L. Joynes was said yesterday to have admitted to robbing a safe of several hundred dollars in a Connecticut avenue drug store which he was managing in 1927.

Police have been seeking Joynes in connection with the robbery since that time and, according to Detective Sergt. Carlton Talley, the man was indicted for the theft in 1931. Joynes was quoted by police as saying he opened the safe and took the money when some men armed with guns forced him to commit the deed.

300 DISTRICT DRYS STORM PROTEST ON BEER BILL IN HOUSE

Mission Head Declares Brew Is Worse Than Morphine; Hearings Continue.

District drys yesterday stormed the House District judiciary subcommittee 300 strong in protest of the Black beer bill, assailing beer as more harmful than morphine and attacking the bill as the opening wedge for stronger drink.

Harvey V. Prentice, superintendent of the Gospel Mission, testified morphine is a sedative, while beer inspires crimes of violence. He said he once had been a morphine addict.

The situation is one of "competition between bread and beer," Francis D. Nichol, of the Seventh-Day Adventists, contended, while John B. Hammond, representing the Rechabites, argued the real object of the Black bill is to repeal the Sheppard act.

Hearings will be concluded by the subcommittee tomorrow morning, with wets on the stand. Chairman Vincent L. Palmisano announced. Rufus S. Lusk, of the Crusaders, co-author of the Black bill, is expected to challenge the dry stand with a unique proposal, as yet undisclosed.

Denies Prosperity Claim.

Mr. Nichol told the committee yesterday there is no reason to believe beer will restore prosperity.

"One thing only would be assured by the passage of this bill," he said, "no one, old or young, would ever lack for beer, no matter how great his appetite."

Canon William Sheafe Chase, of the International Reform Federation, said the Black bill is merely a subterfuge to legalize the whole liquor business outlawed by the eighteenth amendment.

Others Who Testified.

Among others who testified against the bill were Mrs. Wilson Compton, representing the Young Women's Christian Association; Mrs. Joseph N. Saunders, president of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers; Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, president of the Federation of Women's Clubs of the District, and Mrs. W. H. Wadleigh, president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

Meanwhile the District of Columbia Antisaloon League, in a letter to the Senate District Committee, yesterday asked permission to testify on the Tydings local beer bill, if hearings are held by the Senate group. Signed by Andrew Wilson, president of the organization, the letter characterized the District beer bill as "the worst beer bill" introduced in half a century.

Congress Asked to Allow Statuary Hall Changes

Authority to rearrange and relocate Capitol statues was asked of Congress yesterday by the joint Congressional Committee on Library, which seeks to lighten the strain on the floor of Statuary Hall and relieve congestion of statues in the chamber.

Architect of the Capitol, David Lynn, read an engineering report before the committee holding Statuary Hall, while not in a dangerous condition, yet lacking the safety required of modern structures. There are at present 65 statues, and 31 more are entitled to be set up in the hall.

And Prompt Digging Save Workman Buried Alive; Only Slightly Hurt.

Though buried by 6 feet of dirt when a sewer ditch caved in at Walbridge place between Adams Mill road and Park road northwest yesterday afternoon, Jack W. Kinard, 36, colored, 2001 Gales street northeast, apparently escaped with only a sprained left leg.

When the 15-foot ditch caved in, pinioning the man standing, Thomas J. Hayden, 1101 Florida avenue northeast, foreman for the Shapiro Construction Co., quickly started all his men digging the dirt away, and summoned the rescue squad. When the man's head was uncovered, first aid was administered, but it required about 15 minutes of strenuous digging to remove him.

He was taken to Freedmen's Hospital, where his leg was bandaged, and later removed to his home.
